Banned For Cobalt Use at the Meadowlands, Lambert Plans to Fight Charges

By Bill Finley

Aaron Lambert, one of two trainers to be denied racing privileges at the Meadowlands after a test on one of his horses came back for an excess level of cobalt, said he is innocent and believes he should be reinstated.

Believing that trainers were using cobalt as a performance-enhancing drug, the Meadowlands began out-of-competition testing looking for the substance and sent samples to a lab in Hong Kong. Last week, the Meadowlands revealed its policies on the drug and said that any trainer whose horses come back with a level of cobalt four times the norm will be banned. Cobalt is a naturally occurring substance in the body, but if a trainer uses the drug as a performance-enhancer the horse will likely test positive for an excessive level.

The New Jersey Racing Commission does not test for cobalt.

Lambert said he will meet with Meadowlands owner Jeff Gural next week to talk about his case.

"They keep calling it an illegal drug, which it is not," he said. "It's not even a drug. It was bought by my veterinarian and administered by my veterinarian and none of that is illegal. They are just in a witch hunt, really. Before I got in trouble there was no ruling, nothing said about it. The New Jersey Racing Commission came out and saw me and said they thought it was wrong. When something like that is said, you know you must have a case."

Lambert last started a horse at the Meadowlands on January 4. He has had four winners from 19 starters at the current meet.

Woodbine Announces 2014 Harness Stakes Schedule; Purses Stay Largely Intact

Having weathered the worst of the storm created when the Slots at Racetracks Program was eliminated, the Woodbine Entertainment Group unveiled a lucrative and packed 2014 harness stakes schedule yesterday.

The purses for a few races suffered minor cuts, but WEG more than made up for them by adding the "Final Four" races that were held in 2013 at the Meadowlands. The Goldsmith Maid, Three Diamonds, Valley Victory and Governor's Cup will be held Oct. 25 and the combined purses for those events will be $1.9 million.

The other significant change was the movement of Elegance Stakes. Held last year on June 15 it has been moved to the late summer and will be contested on Sept. 13 on the same night as the Canadian Trotting Classic.

The stakes schedule includes races worth a total of $12 million.

The signature race of the meet will once again be the Pepsi North America Cup. With a guaranteed purse of $1 million, the Cup final will take place June 14 at Mohawk. The June 14 card also includes the $400,000 Fan Hanover, the $325,000 Roses Are Red, the $270,000 Armbro Flight, the $225,000 Goodtimes and the $100,000 Gold Cup.

The Metro will take place on August 30. Its purse was reduced to $685,000 from $700,000 last year.

Also in 2014, all finishers in the stakes finals will earn purse money. The winner will continue to receive the traditional 50% of the total purse, while those sixth through last will get 1% each. Those finishing second through fifth will receive 50%-24%-16%-10%, respectively, of the remaining purse.

Plus, if 11 horses or fewer declare to start in a stakes series, there will be no eliminations and all declared horses will advance directly to the final. Byes will no longer be issued in stakes events.

Woodbine Announcer Dawn Lupul May Have Found Her Calling

By Perry Lefko

In a sport that is male-dominated, Dawn Lupul continues to break the gender barrier every time she calls a card of harness racing.

Lupul works as a broadcaster for Woodbine Entertainment Group, appearing on camera as a host for both thoroughbred and harness racing, but has subbed a few times for veteran standardbred announcer Ken Middleton, most recently while he took some time off during the holiday season.

"After two years on the shelf, I was brought out of retirement briefly," Lupul told Harness Racing Update this week with a laugh.

Dawn Lupul with jockey Eurico Rosa da Silva

It's believed the only other woman to call a card of racing is the late Sandy Penvose Green, who filled in a few times for Roger Huston at the Meadows when he was occupied driving in amateur races.

In September, 2009, Lupul made Canadian history when she became the first female to announce a full card of racing. Kelly Spencer, the innovative marketing director for Grand River Downs in Elora, Ontario, wanted to try something different so she gave Lupul the chance to call a card. Lupul has a background in both harness racing as a onetime owner/trainer, as well as broadcast experience that began in 1995 at Northlands

Park in Edmonton. But calling a card of racing presented a different challenge and drew significant attention at the time.

The legendary Roger Huston has high praise for Dawn Lupul

Some of the veteran race-callers working in and around the Toronto area, including Grand River's Gary Guy and former Woodbine announcer Frank Salive, had been urging Lupul to call some races.

Spencer, who is always devising different ways to promote Grand River, called on Lupul to fill in Guy for one card because he had a commitment calling races at Flamboro Downs. Lupul received on-line plaudits leading up to and following her historic broadcast. One person called it the Dawn of a new era.

"I did as much prep as I could by calling races off of the TV, but it wasn't really the same as doing it live," she said. "I was nervous because I knew that I was the first woman to call a card in Canada and I didn't want to be horrible. I had never called the races before, but it was something that I always wanted to try. I found it interesting that it is such a male-dominated profession. There aren't too many of those areas left."

She called about a dozen cards that year filling in for Guy because of his Flamboro commitments.

Lupul called four cards in her recent stint and gave herself a passing grade.

"For the stint I just had, I didn't make any glaring mistakes or call the wrong horse coming in," she said. "I thought I offered some good insight, yet there's still going to be people who aren't going to like it. I'd say it's just because it's a female and it's bucking tradition."

"You look at football broadcasts and they have women on the sidelines (doing interviews), but there are no women play-by-play announcers or color commentators because it is still much a male-dominated world," she added. "Horse racing is no different. There just are no female race-callers. It's been met with a lot of resistance (from the racing public). There's also been some people who encourage it and like it. I know Woodbine drew a lot of flak (over her recent spate of announcing)."

Apprised of Lupul's announcing, Huston said there is no reason women shouldn't be calling races. He has apprenticed 33 announcers, and is all in favour of women doing the job.

"No woman has ever asked me to be an announcer," he said. "I can't speak for any other track's management, but (management at The Meadows) has always been very supportive of it. I really think (the only reason there aren't more women race announcers) is because women haven't tried to be announcers."

Huston offered Green, who worked as a secretary in the publicity office at The Meadows in 1976, a chance to call a Powder Puff race.

"She did fine. I was tickled pink with her," he recalled.

He had her hone her craft calling qualifying races and turned over the microphone to her when he had driving commitments. She did so well that the late Stan Bergstein offered her the chance to be the full-time announcer at Freehold Raceway, but she turned it down because of family reasons.

"She was good," he said. "She had the perfect voice for announcing. It wasn't a high shrill."

Lupul's work caught the attention of Moira Fanning, the director of publicity and event operations for the prestigious Hambletonian Society/Breeders Crown.

"I always have TVG on in the background at home and was pleasantly surprised to hear (Dawn's) voice calling the races," she said. "She did a good job. I had not heard any advance on this and on consideration why should there be? She's a sharp analyst and very capable caller. WEG has an incredible stable of TV and announcing talent, of which Dawn is one. I'm glad they are making use of her."

Jamie Martin, WEG's vice-president racing, praised Lupul's work.

"It's not always easy to find an announcer, but I feel confident if Ken were to go away again they would not hesitate to use me in the future," Lupul said,

Born in Alberta, Lupul will only list her age as somewhere in the 40s. She has been involved in horse racing for much of her life. When she was six, her father, Silver - yes, that's really his name! - bought his first standardbred racehorse. A professional engineer at the time, he moved the family to a 20-acre farm just outside of Edmonton to begin training his horse. In later years, Dawn began owning and training racehorses, including one horse, Cams Best Bet, that won almost $400,000 in his career. Lupul stopped training horses last year because of the demands of her job.

She said there are various challenges for a race caller beyond just being a woman.

"I find that I try to make my voice even lower," she said. "It's a muscle like anything else, so for me the preparation is to try to preserve the instrument as much as possible. In terms of looking at the card and trying to memorize it, I don't have that kind of photographic memory. I know some announcers scan down the names and they just know (the names of the horses). I don't have that luxury. I make my sheets out very carefully so I can see who's driving the horses and what saddlecloths they're wearing. I print the names very big on my computer, so even though I'm using binoculars I need to look down with my left eye. It's a bit awkward for me and I haven't done enough of it to truly feel comfortable. But I do think I've come a long way since I first started. I would never say my (recent) performance was flawless because it wasn't, but considering how (little) I've done it I was pretty happy. I know the more I do it, the better I'll get at it and the more comfortable.

"Through routine you get into a flow. You know exactly when you want to say something. Woodbine is a little more challenging because the harness track is so far removed from the grandstand. Even when the horses are coming down the stretch and in front of the grandstand, they're still quite a ways away. It's a little bit more of a challenge than calling at Grand River, which is a half-mile track. It's like you can reach out and touch the backstretch.

"I try to stay away from catchphrases because I don't want to be redundant in any way and I don't feel I'm comfortable enough," she added. "On Boxing Day in 2011, a horse was winning by 10 lengths and I said he could do the Tebow. That was when Tim Tebow was popular. Mostly what I've tried to do is be accurate and scan the field. You see movement that is happening that the casual observer wouldn't see, as opposed to calling who is first, second and third. I was trying to see if somebody was making a rush down the backside, and I thought I did that well on a couple of occasions."

Lupul has called the occasional race or card for a particular promotion - including one for thoroughbred racing at Fort Erie - and is quite willing to do it again.

"It's like being trotted out as the prodigal female," she said. "To take advantage of something like that because I am unique and to be able to use it to bring something extra to a special day is fantastic, I think."

Exchange Wagering May Debut This Year at Monmouth; Meadowlands Still Mulling Its Options

Betfair is the leader in the exchange wagering market and owns TVG. New Jersey and California are the only two U.S. states where the form of wagering has been legalized.

A few regulatory hurdles remain to be cleared before Monmouth/Betfair can begin to offer exchange wagering, but Monmouth Park's Dennis Drazin said he was hopeful that the it would be up and running by May.

"If not May, maybe June, but I don't see any problem being able to offer it at the Monmouth meet, he said.

Only New Jersey residents will be allowed to open Betfair accounts.

Monmouth's move toward exchange wagering could make it easier for the form of betting to be implemented at the Meadowlands and, perhaps, Freehold. Meadowlands General Manager Jason Settlemoir said no plans have been made yet to begin exchange wagering at the Big M, but he admits he is a fan of that type of betting.

"I made a presentation to the Board of Directors of the USTA a few years ago about exchange wagering and I happen to believe that it is part of racing's future," he said. "It's more of the quick-action type of betting that my generation of fans and gamblers seems to prefer.

Breeders Crown Goes to Two-Day Format for 2014

The 2014 Breeders Crown at The Meadowlands will be raced over two nights in November, with the year-end championships divided into a four-race block of distaff races on Friday, Nov. 21 and the remaining eight championship races held Saturday, Nov. 22.

The $500,000 Breeders Crown Trot and Pace for 3-year-old fillies, and a pair of $250,000 Crowns for Mare pacers and trotters will be raced on Friday night. All four $500,000 Two-Year-Old events, the $500,000 sophomore colt pace and trot and the $400,000 Crown Pace and $500,000 Crown Trot will be raced on Saturday night.

"We are very proud to bring The Breeders Crown back to The Meadowlands," said Meadowlands Chairman Jeff Gural. "Expanding the event to two nights is something I am very excited about. It creates a weekend of championship racing and gives us an opportunity to be very innovative with new kinds of wagers, promotions and an opportunity to make the Breeders Crown experience even better for our customers.

"The new facility at Meadowlands Racing & Entertainment offers excellent dining options including Pink, featuring the highest quality of food and Trotters, an Owners Club, where owners of horses racing in the Breeders Crown can enjoy elegant dining in a wonderful atmosphere while watching their horses compete." continued Gural.

"Many will take advantage of our luxurious sky box suites to watch the races. In addition, fans will be able to enjoy The Breeders Crown in high-definition at The Meadowlands and can watch the Championship races on massive 12 by 20 foot high-definition screens in Victory Sports Bar. This will be a Breeders Crown experience unlike any other."

Tom Charters, president of The Hambletonian Society, which owns and administrates the Breeders Crown series, is familiar with the demands of staging the event at rotating host tracks, as well as the Society's flexibility in presenting the event.

"The Breeders Crown has been conducted in just about every format – single races, blocks of races, all 12 races on one night – and we try always to be sensitive to host track parameters while still getting the most "bang" out of the event in regard to publicity, TV and promotions," said Charters.

"The Meadowlands Racetrack has been home to many of harness racing's most important events over the past 30 years," continued Charters. "We look forward to the return of the Breeders Crown under Jeff Gural's management and especially look forward to the new facility. The horsemen of New Jersey and the SBOA of NJ realize the importance of stakes racing in maintaining the profile of the New Meadowlands and have always been supportive of our efforts."

The one-mile oval in East Rutherford, New Jersey, has hosted 67 Breeders Crown races – more than any other racetrack and in 2014 will celebrate 30 years of Breeders Crown history.

January Mixed Supplement Now Available

Big McDeal is among the horses scheduled to be sold Monday at the Meadowlands

The Supplement Catalog and updated racelines for the Meadowlands January Select Mixed Sale are now available on the Tattersalls website, www.tattersallsredmile.com, and on the Equineline sale catalog app for the iPad. The printed supplement catalog will be available at major racetracks and at the sale.

The January Mixed gets underway at 11:00 a.m. next Monday, January 20, in the Meadowlands race paddock, with yearlings, stallion shares and broodmares selling first, followed by racehorses.

The supplement features a share in leading first-crop pacing sire Well Said, whose book is full and closed for the 2014 season. Several green 3 year olds will also be sold in the supplement, including Ideal Shadow, who won his first career start in a recent qualifier at the Meadowlands in 1:56.1-:27.1.

"We've had a tremendous number of inquiries about the sale from all the big racing outfits, and as always, I expect there will be a huge demand for fresh, quality racehorses," said sale manager David Reid. "The number of horses that are currently racing with success, and those in-to-go this weekend, is outstanding. Over the past week or so there have been well over 25 horses that have won races just at the Meadowlands, Yonkers and Woodbine," he added. "Also, over 100 horses that are selling will race or qualify between now and sale time."

The racehorse section of the sale also features "Magnificent Mares" to race or breed, including the pair of World Champions Big McDeal and Frau Blucher.

First Foal of 2014 Arrives at Hanover Shoe Farms

The first of 316 anticipated Hanover Shoe Farms foals of 2014 arrived at the Farms Saturday morning at 4.00 a.m.

The foal, a filly by leading pacing sire Somebeachsomewhere, is the second foal from the young Rocknroll Hanover mare Summer Thriller p.2,1:59.2, a half sister to Vertical Horizon p.2,1:57.2, 3,1:50.4f, 1:49.3f($856,063). Summer Thriller's first foal is the yearling Somebeachsomewhere colt Speedster Hanover.

He will be one of the featured yearlings in the Hanover Shoe Farms consignments this Fall.

In addition to the remaining 315 Hanover Shoe Farms foals scheduled to arrive in 2014 another 74 outside owned foals are expected.

Ohio Jug Sale Back in '14

The Ohio Selected Jug Yearling Sale will be back in business this year, with the 2014 sale slated for September 15 at noon at the Eden Park Equestrian

The Eden Park Equestrian Complex will host the return of the Ohio Selected Jug Yearling Sale

Complex in Sunbury, Ohio.

The single-session sale, conducted by the Ohio Harness Horse Breeders and the Lexington Selected Yearling Sales Co., will be held on the Monday prior to the Little Brown Jug.

The Jug Sale has been on hiatus the past three years due to the shrinking foal crop in Ohio. Now that video lottery terminals are in place at Ohio's harness tracks, the state's foal crop has blossomed over the past two years.

According to the U.S. Trotting Association and the Ohio Harness Horsemen's Association, there were 1,650 Standardbred mares bred in Ohio in 2012, 2,200 in 2013... quite a considerable jump from the 400 bred just a few years ago.

"We're glad to be back in business in Ohio," said sale manager Randy Manges. "Ohio is now second only to Pennsylvania in number of mares bred each year, and as all the new farms and new stallions show, interest in the program has never been higher."

According to Manges, the sale will again represent a solid core of Ohio's most prominent breeders. "With the quality of the horses we'll be selling, and the skyrocketing growth in Ohio Sire Stakes purses, we expect to see buyers from not only Ohio, but from all over the U.S.," he said.

Entries for the sale will be taken through April 15. Those wishing to consign should contact the sales company's Lexington office by calling (859) 255-8431 or email Randy Manges at randy@kentuckystandardbred.com.

Freehold Gets Through Card Without Incident

For the first time since starting gate-gate, last Friday's horrific accident in which six drivers were injured after the starting gate car spun out of control and crashed into the field, racing returned to Freehold yesterday.

The remainder of the card was canceled after the accident, as was the next day's races. Yesterday, over a fast track and on a dry day in Central New Jersey, they conducted 10 races without any mishaps.

Race 7, F&M B-1 Pace

That was a tough DQ last week for MARTY PARTY after Pierce wrestled her down into the two hole after being parked early through a :26:4 opening quarter. She still had enough to flaunt her class and power away late; at least this one still finds herself in the B-1 classification albeit against a slightly tougher group. BIG MCDEAL was no match in her last pair against Lorrie Please but this is a key drop; won at this level three back. BILLMAR SCOOTER faded when last seen at the end of December and is a tough read now at age 9; I wouldn't blame anyone for playing against. MANDY'S MATTJESTY was hard used in her last couple for Burke but those were against 3-year-olds only; this will be tougher. SO NICE makes her second start back but isn't done any favors by the post draw.

Race 8, B-2 Trot

SMOOTHER RIDE rode the wood last week when starting from the pole but he was overmatched anyway in that spot. He'll be put in play tonight and with Andy committed elsewhere, we get Simons instead. Will offer a price. CORAGGIOSO makes his first start since September while going first start for Julie Miller; a definite wild card in here. MCTINY'S HOPE went first over last out into a 1:53 mile; in sharp form. RIVERFEST steps back up off a win and loses Callahan; needs a live flow. SHEENA'S SHADOW is CC's pick although I'm not sold at a short price. FOR YOU ALMOSTFREE took all the money last week and didn't have the easiest trip.

Race 9, F&M B-2 Pace

MARINADE HANOVER looks like a new horse since moving to Toscano a couple races back and that most recent where this one brushed through a half in :54 was really decent looking. DM opts off to the morning line favorite but RP will do here just as well; must include. HANDSOFFMYCUPCAKE was Miller's pick of a few but needed a bit more in her last pair; former NYSS star is not a cinch. PRECIOUS ROSE N paid instant dividends last out on the barn change to Burke and now takes the appropriate step up; an obvious short priced contender. UNRED HANOVER was involved in a fast mile when last seen here and generally does good work over this track. SARANDON BLUE CHIP is a reach but wouldn't be a total shock.

Race 10, B-2/B-1 Trot

GREY ICE had the unenviable task of going first up last week against #9, but it wasn't a bad try and Pierce does stick here. Can win with a trip. There's no question TEMPLE OF DOOM is going in the right direction and it would be hard to think Miller won't be leaving with him; needs to overcome any early trouble from out here. OMNIPOTENT beat many of these two back and now is likely to be overlooked; I wouldn't be so quick to dismiss now. TWIN B SPIKE MAN was a top selection here two weeks ago and then won last out at 25/1; go figure. AISLING was empty when last seen here and I won't be playing; MARION MONACO continues to be put in good early positions.
