A horseman's guide to being a better racehorse owner

by David Mattia

ADVENTURES IN HARNESS RACING

with DAVID MATTIA

There is a particular moment in harness racing when a good owner can begin to go bad. It usually doesn't happen after a horse wins. Nobody is looking for a new trainer when the horse is winning races. Everybody feels a little smarter than they actually are. The calls from the owner are friendly. Everybody has a melodious theory about the horse's future, and the trainer is generally considered a pretty damn good horseman.

Oh, and about the phone calls to the trainer: Remember that the trainer has both a business and a personal life. Yes, the trainer owes you a call now and then, but think about what a lawyer does when you call him about your case.

Anyway, the trouble usually starts when the horse stops winning, although that isn't always the trigger. It may take a few starts or a few months. The horse that looked like a bargain when the owner bought him suddenly looks like a bad investment, and the trainer who seemed to know exactly what he was doing six months earlier suddenly doesn't seem so brilliant. Maybe the owner doesn't like the driver. Maybe the vet bills are getting too high. It could be anything.

Often, and this is the most sickening part, it is another trainer telling the owner that things would be better if the horse were in another barn... his.

The owner, feeling more and more comfortable in the barn area, starts asking questions of other horsemen because he has discovered that he can. He starts having conversations he probably wouldn't have if his trainer were standing beside him. He hears that somebody else's horse is going well and begins wondering whether that trainer might get more out of his horse.

Pretty soon he isn't simply asking questions. He's shopping.

There is nothing wrong with an owner wanting to make a change. The horse belongs to the owner, the owner pays the bills, hopefully, and the owner has every right to decide who trains the horse. But there is a considerable difference between making a legitimate business decision and quietly pimping out your ownership. That difference matters because horsemen talk. Very few things travel faster around a backstretch than the news that somebody is looking for a new barn.

I spent roughly 30 years running a public stable, and over those years I had owners from just about every corner of the financial and personality spectrum. Some could afford to own racehorses comfortably. Some could afford it only when everything went right. Some paid their bills without ever making you wonder whether the check was coming, while others could turn a month's training bill into a negotiation worthy of Morty's Used Car Lot in Van Nuys, CA.

That's part of the business. You learn to live with it.

But you also learn something else: Winning changes people. More accurately, losing changes people.

Most new owners start out with a perfectly reasonable understanding of what they are getting into. They know the horse costs money every day whether he wins or loses. They understand that the training bill is only one part of the nut. There is stall rent, shoeing, veterinary work, equipment, transportation, racing expenses, and a seemingly endless collection of fees that have a remarkable ability to appear whenever you think you've finally paid the last bill.

The trainer gets a daily rate, and in most cases is also entitled to five per cent of the horse's earnings. The owner carries the financial load. The trainer carries the horse.

That's supposed to be a partnership.

And when both sides understand what that word actually means, it can be one of the best relationships in racing.

THE RULES OF THE GAME

Maybe what harness racing needs is an owner's rulebook. Not an official rulebook. The USTA has enough rules already. I'm talking about a common-sense list of things an owner should understand before he starts moving horses from one barn to another because the horse hasn't won in six weeks.

DON'T CONFUSE LOSING WITH INCOMPETENCE

That sounds obvious until you've been around this business long enough to watch an owner fall in love with a trainer after three consecutive wins and then decide that same trainer couldn't train a chicken after three consecutive losses.

Racing doesn't work that way. Sometimes the horse simply isn't good enough. Sometimes he draws badly. Sometimes he gets stuck behind a dead piece. Sometimes he gets used too hard in the early going. Sometimes the trip sucks. Sometimes another horse is simply better. And sometimes, yes, the trainer has made a mistake.

The trick is knowing the difference.

A trainer is not a magician. A trainer cannot manufacture talent that isn't there, and no amount of screaming will change that. For every Fight The Foe, there are hundreds of Ambro Cockroach also-rans.

KNOW WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW

I learned something about owners from the other side of the fence when I left the business.

I had never worked for anybody, not really. I had been around horses since I was very young and had done the usual stable-hand work while learning, including working for one thoroughly detestable character whom I somehow liked and who seemed to like me. It is amazing how quickly you can learn about horses from a monster. Once I became a trainer, however, I trained my own horses. I built my own public stable. I had owners. I had some very nice horses. Basically, I had enough success as a young trainer that people knew who I was.

Then, about 14 years ago, I walked away from the horse business.

I went into show business instead. In fact, I have remained there to some extent, but within two years, I came back. This time, however, I decided to work for somebody else.

Although I wasn't exactly Mickey Mantle looking for a job as a batboy, I was considerably overqualified for the kind of job I was seeking. I just needed a rest, and I wanted to get back around horses. Quickly, I found somebody I liked, so I went to work as an employee.

I discovered something rather strange. I worked harder for an employer than I had ever worked for myself. Why? Because I respect good trainers and the work they do for owners.

My employer had one principal client, an older owner who could have been my owner years earlier, but I didn't bite. In hindsight, I dodged a rubber bullet. Not because the owner was a bad person. The owner wasn't a bad guy at all, and I might have done very well for the owner, but there was a "don't go there" vibe in my tired head. My tolerance level was zero.

Anyway, while I was working at my new job, this owner did almost nothing but talk to me about the trainer. I became an unwilling confidante.

"Why was I billed for this, Dave?"

"What would you do if your horse was doing this, Dave?"

"Why doesn't my trainer do this or that?"

Every day there was something.

I repeatedly told the owner the same thing: "Don't badmouth your trainer to me. I like your trainer. Your trainer works hard. You're a pain in the ass."

I wasn't trying to be coarse. I was trying to establish a boundary. I had been a trainer with owners of my own for decades, so I knew exactly what was happening. An owner who spends his time moaning to one trainer is eventually going to moan to the wrong guy.

Anyway, one day the owner cornered me while I was cleaning a stall.

Yes, me. Cleaning a stall of all things. I suck at cleaning stalls.

The owner told me the plan was to take all the horses away from the trainer and give them to somebody else. The trainer being considered was somebody I didn't know, but the numbers on paper for the new prospect were, at best, mediocre.

Without giving it a second thought I said, "If you take your horses out of this barn, you're going to regret it for the rest of your career as an owner."

Even if I had agreed with half of what the owner was saying, I wouldn't have let him know. Unless I believed the horses were being mistreated or abused, I wouldn't steal an owner or spite one. That kind of behavior comes full circle to bite you in the butt.

I was in a position to do something that happens all the time in this business. I could have encouraged the owner. I could have agreed with every complaint. I could have quietly positioned myself as the better horseman, cultivated the dissatisfaction and eventually benefited from it.

I didn't.

I knew the difference between being offered an opportunity and behaving like a thief, and I respect other trainers under most circumstances.

There is a right way to handle a disagreement with your trainer. You talk to the trainer. You don't wander around the backstretch auditioning replacements while the person currently responsible for your horses is standing 10 feet away.

The owner in my story was talking to people who had something to gain from taking the horses. The owner-stealing scenario is as old as Ben-Hur. It has probably been happening since the first horseman discovered that somebody else's owner had money and wasn't completely happy with the current trainer.

There are plenty of people working around racehorses who would be delighted to tell an unhappy owner exactly what he wants to hear if they think it might result in a horse coming into their barn. That doesn't mean every groom or assistant trainer is dishonest, and it certainly doesn't mean that everyone working for somebody else is there because he lacks the ability to train horses.

There are only so many owners, only so many horses and only so many public stables. A man can be a damn good horseman and spend his working life cleaning stalls because there aren't enough owners to give everybody a barn of his own. Another man may have mediocre statistics and still wind up with horses because of an owner, a connection, a family name, money behind the operation or some other advantage that has nothing to do with whether the person can actually get a horse to the races.

So when an owner is unhappy and starts talking to every trainer within earshot, remember that the people listening aren't necessarily disinterested observers. Some of them are highly-motivated manipulators.

The owner in this story eventually stayed with the trainer and continued to achieve roughly the same amount of moderate success. There was no miraculous transformation waiting in another barn.

But the owner did make another mistake, and this one had nothing to do with the trainer.

The owner thought he knew more than the trainer about picking horses out of yearling sales.

He didn't.

Picking yearlings is a skill. It is also an art, and even people who have spent their entire lives doing it get plenty wrong. You can stand at a sale, look at a yearling, watch him walk, examine his conformation and breeding, study his attitude and athleticism, and convince yourself you've found the next great horse.

You can almost always be completely wrong.

Like they say, "That's horse racing." Oh, how I hate that phrase. It oversimplifies some pretty horrible stuff.

A good owner doesn't have to know everything about the horse business. In fact, one of the characteristics of a good owner is knowing where his checkbook ends and his trainer's expertise begins.

A good owner knows how much money can be lost without destroying the household. A good owner knows what questions to ask his trainer before he asks anyone else. A good owner knows when to listen. And occasionally, a very good owner knows when to shut up and let the horseman make the horseman's decision.

That doesn't mean the trainer is always right.

It means somebody has to be allowed to do the job that person was hired to do.

A FEW BAD OWNER QUICKIES

Over 30 years, I have had enough owners to learn that there are probably as many ways to become a bad owner as there are ways to lose a race. In truth, I have only had three owners I truly liked. One was on a budget, but brilliant, and his inexpensive horses did well for me. He treated me with fatherly respect, and his death affected me deeply. The other was a very wealthy New York City guy who knows who he is, and we never had a harsh word because he knows I would never cheat him and I know he would never cheat me. The third is a doctor who is far too nice to be involved with harness racing.

First and foremost, however, a good owner is not a heavy gambler or bettor. It's fine to bet a few dollars here and there. Why not have a little fun? But some owners exist only to bet. It's never a good recipe. What's even worse is when they win big and tell you they didn't get the bet in.

Then there was the owner who wanted to know why every expense existed, as though the veterinarian, farrier, farm manager, driver, and racetrack had all gathered in a secret room and decided to rob the owner. Everything was a conspiracy.

How about the owner who wanted a deal on everything. He found out that his open pacer was being towed four miles per day. So, rather than pay the trainer, me, he trailered the horse to the training farm every morning. He then sat on the shaft and towed his own horse to save the money, until he broke the jog cart and didn't offer to replace it. The horse was earning, on average, about $7,000 per week.

Let's not forget the loon who I suspected was jealous of his own horses. If his horse won, he would be dejected. If he finished third, he'd be elated. Once I caught him measuring a horse's stride on a video replay screen with a tape measure. The next day he told me to let the hobbles out three inches. He'd measured it. The horse broke leaving the gate.

There was the owner who "demanded a blood test" every time one of his horses got beat, the owner who wanted to know why the horse wasn't winning and then objected when the trainer suggested spending money to find out why, and the owner who became a completely different person after one bad drive.

I could go on for a thousand pages, but let's aim the next one at both owners and trainers.

TRY NOT TO MAKE DEALS

This applies particularly to trainers, but owners need to understand it too.

You cannot build a stable by living on deals. Do you think Stanley Dancer made deals on overnight racehorses? Heck no. He sent the owners their full bill. He may have even charged them for the envelope and the price of the stamp needed to mail it.

When trainers make concessions to owners simply to get horses into the barn, they begin to diminish the value of their own expertise, assuming they have any to begin with. Some deals are worth making. A good horse can justify an unusual arrangement, and there are circumstances in which sharing the upside makes perfect sense, but almost always, deals are a bad sign.

A trainer should never make a deal merely because there is an empty stall that needs to be filled, and an owner should refrain from wanting deals. If you cannot afford the full freight — and I know that things are tight — just sell the horse. Let someone else deal with the deal.

The trainer isn't necessarily looking for a warm body in the stall. The trainer is trying to put enough horses in the barn to make his business work. A horse that comes in under a bad deal still eats, still needs to be shod, still needs veterinary attention, still occupies a stall, and still generates expenses. So, unless you're saving the life of an unwanted horse, don't do deals.

Eventually somebody begins to resent the deal. The trainer thinks, "I'm doing all this work and earning nothing." The owner thinks, "I'm paying all these expenses, and the trainer is getting his percentage." What began as a clever arrangement becomes another source of friction.

An occupied stall is not necessarily a profitable stall.

DO NOT SNATCH A HORSE IN THE MIDDLE OF THE NIGHT

An owner should never secretly take a horse away from a trainer when the trainer isn't there to shake hands, settle the matter, and square up the bills. The midnight or pre-dawn take-away is about as low as it gets.

One morning, before sunrise, I received a phone message.

"Dave, we took the horse. Your check is in the tack trunk."

That was the entire transaction.

No explanation. No opportunity to discuss where the horse was going, why the horse was being moved or whether there was something I could have done differently. The horse was simply gone.

And there was one other small problem.

There was no check in the tack trunk.

There never was. There never is.

I have always believed that if you're going to take a horse away from a trainer, you should at least have the courtesy to do it in person. You sit down, you say what you think went wrong, you listen to what the trainer has to say, and then you make your decision. Maybe you agree to disagree. Maybe you shake hands. Maybe you don't. But you settle the bill and you walk away like adults.

The horse may belong to you, but your trainer's dignity doesn't.

BE AWARE OF THE LOOMING MASS EXTINCTION EVENT

There is another reality an owner needs to understand before firing a trainer, and it has very little to do with whether the trainer is actually doing a good job.

Harness racing is not operating in an expanding ecosystem. It's more like a terrarium in an unheated and squalid apartment.

The sport has become smaller, and as its ecosystem shrinks, Darwinism takes over. There are fewer horses, fewer owners, fewer stables and fewer opportunities for a horseman to make a living training horses. The food supply has contracted.

Imagine a prehistoric carcass lying out on the plain. One Triceratops is down, and a herd of hungry Velociraptors is circling it.

That's a sad way to view harness racing nowadays, but it's optically accurate.

Currently, there's a relatively small group of trainers and drivers who consistently get the horses that matter, the horses that are aimed from birth at serious money and have a legitimate chance to influence the future of the sport. There are perhaps 10 guys who occupy that territory with any regularity.

And then there is everybody else.

The "everybody else" clan is not necessarily composed of bad horsemen. Some are very good. Some may be every bit as good or better than the people sitting at the top of the standings. On this end of the food chain, a lot of perfectly capable horsemen try to survive on whatever is left. They are competing in an ecosystem where there simply isn't enough prey to go around.

That is what I mean when I say harness racing is approaching a mass extinction event. It isn't that everybody suddenly became a bad horseman. The habitat changed. The herd got smaller.

And when the herd gets smaller, every animal becomes more important.

This is why something as seemingly insignificant as a driver change can become the beginning of the end for an owner and his trainer.

In a healthy owner-trainer relationship, the owner calls the trainer and says, "What the hell kind of drive was that?" The owner may remain pissed off for 20 minutes, but the matter is settled.

In a shrinking business, however, the driver change becomes an excuse. The bad trip becomes the evidence. The horse's recent record becomes the prosecution.

Suddenly the owner is thinking about moving the horse.

That is how fragile things get when everybody knows there aren't enough horses to go around.

ATTENTION TRAINERS: YOU'RE NOT OFF THE HOOK. YOU NEVER WERE

Everything I have written so far can make it sound as though the owner is always the problem.

The owner isn't.

Trainers create bad owners, too.

A trainer who treats an owner like dirt cannot reasonably expect loyalty simply because the trainer knows more about horses. Expertise is not a license to behave badly. You can be one hell of a horseman and still be a miserable businessman.

If you don't return phone calls, or you don't explain what you're doing, you're creating a toxic ambiance. If you treat every question as an insult, make decisions without communicating them, embarrass an owner in front of other people or act as though the owner is an inconvenience rather than the person paying the bills, don't be surprised when the owner eventually looks elsewhere.

And don't tell yourself there are plenty of other owners.

There aren't.

This isn't exactly a booming industry with new clients pouring through the gate every morning. The same Darwinism that makes an owner valuable makes a trainer's client base valuable, too.

A trainer who has a good owner should act like it.

That doesn't mean allowing the owner to dictate every training decision. It means treating the owner with the same basic respect the trainer expects in return.

Another mistake trainers make, particularly in an industry this small, is assuming a good horse will excuse bad behavior.

It might for a while, but it will eventually fizzle.

An owner may tolerate a trainer's personality because the horses are winning. A winning horse has a remarkable ability to make everybody more forgiving. But eventually the horse gets claimed, gets old, gets injured or stops winning. Then the owner is left with the relationship itself.

If the relationship has been neglected, there may not be much left.

BEFORE YOU FIRE YOUR TRAINER

So, before you fire your trainer, ask yourself a few questions.

Is the horse actually being trained badly, or is the horse simply not as good as you thought?

Did the trainer make a mistake, or did another horse beat you?

Are you unhappy with the trainer, or are you unhappy with the driver?

Are you angry about the veterinarian's bill, or is the veterinarian's bill simply evidence that horses cost money?

Did the trainer really mishandle the yearling selection, or did you insist on buying the horse you liked better?

And most importantly, have you actually talked to the trainer?

If the answer to that last question is no, you're not ready to fire anybody.

You're ready to have a conversation.

There is nothing wrong with leaving a trainer. I have done it myself as an owner, and I have had owners leave me. It happens. Sometimes the relationship has run its course. Sometimes the horse needs something the trainer can't provide. Sometimes personalities simply don't fit. Sometimes one side loses confidence in the other.

That's business.

What isn't good business is allowing suspicion, gossip, ego, and outside influence to destroy a relationship that might have been repaired with one honest conversation.

The harness racing business is too small for all of this nonsense. The people at the top are getting more of the horses that matter, while a large population of capable horsemen are fighting over what remains. That is not an environment in which owners and trainers can afford to treat each other as disposable.

The owner who thinks there is always a better trainer waiting around the corner may discover that the grass isn't greener. It may simply be, let's just say, over-fertilized.

And the trainer who thinks a good owner can be treated like an ATM with a lead shank attached to it may eventually discover that money has a long memory.

I've spent enough years in this business to know that neither owners nor trainers are saints. They are horsepeople, which is a different and occasionally more entertaining category of human being.

Owners get impatient and trainers get arrogant. Owners listen to gossip. Trainers tell owners what they want to hear. Owners think they know more than they do. Trainers sometimes think they know everything. Both sides make mistakes.

The difference between a bad relationship and a good one is not the absence of mistakes. It is what happens after the mistake.

Talk about it. Own it. Fix it if you can.

And if you finally decide that the relationship really is over, have the decency to say so to the person standing in front of you.

Shake hands.

Pay the bill.

Take your horse.

Then move on.

Because the next race is coming, the next bill is coming, and somewhere down the backstretch there is another horseman looking down the road at the same shrinking herd as you.

The carcass is getting smaller.

The Velociraptors are getting hungrier.

Choose your alliances accordingly.

MEADOWLANDS MATTERS

with DEBBIE LITTLE

Strive for perfection could create instant 'Classic' in New Jersey

by Debbie Little

There's always electricity in the air at The Meadowlands when an undefeated horse is competing.

Tonight (Sept. 11), the connections of Wall Of Fame and Aintmyfirstro Deo hope lightning strikes twice, as they both look to remain unbeaten in their respective New Jersey Classic (NJC) finals.

In all, there will be eight finals contested at The Big M for male and female freshmen and sophomores on the trot and pace.

Wall Of Fame is the 9-5 morning-line favorite (race 6, post 2) in the $250,000 NJC final for 2-year-old filly trotters, while Aintmyfirstro Deo (race 11, post 9) is the early 2-1 choice in the $150,000 final for 2-year-old male pacers.

Wall Of Fame is a product of the trainer-and-driver / wife-and-husband team of Julie and Andy Miller and is owned by Andy Miller Stable Inc, Jean Goehlen, Hutchison Harness LLC (Doctors Randall and Robert Hutchison), and Rick Huffman.

"I'm really lucky, me and Andy, we've really developed a business model of trying to own as many as we can with our partners slash friends that we have the horses with," Julie said. "And with this horse, that's what's happened, and I don't know, I'm just trying to take it race by race and not overthink things."

The daughter of Walner out of the Donato Hanover mare Saadet is seven-for-seven in her young career.

"Right now, she makes it very easy on me; she's an easy keeper, she's easy on herself," Julie said, adding with a laugh, "I don't have any major issues that I worry about that are not just the normal daily issues with any horse in my barn, so I try to keep that type of mentality because I could just end up in a straitjacket if I don't."

The Megan Scran-trained, Scott Zeron-driven, Aintmyfirstro Deo, a gelded son of Perfect Sting out of the Somebeachsomewhere mare Some Renditions, is five-for-five on the season.

Other than both being undefeated, Wall Of Fame and Aintmyfirstro Deo share a commonality in ownership as the Doctors Hutchison are co-owners of the former and sole owners of the latter.

Amanda Stephens

Wall Of Fame (Andy Miller, winning the Kentucky Championship Series third preliminary for freshmen trotting fillies on Aug. 26) will put her perfect 7-for-7 record on the line tonight at The Meadowlands.

Wall Of Fame and Aintmyfirstro Deo may both be perfect, but their paths to get there were quite different.

Julie had her eye on Wall Of Fame at the 2025 Lexington Selected Yearling Sale, but due to some unforeseen circumstances, almost didn't walk out with her.

"They actually said that she got sold, but I was screaming I didn't get a bid in," Julie said. "I was like jumping up and down this? Is there anything we're doing he doesn't like? Is he just being naughty or is this just the process of learning? Every horse is different.

"Once he finally was like, 'All right, I'll do what you want,' he just was like, one, two, three, four, never really put a foot out of place, and he's just done his work excellent."

in my spot... and where I stand, I guess the sun hits me where they can't see me very well. And my brother-in-law [trainer] Erv [Miller] was standing behind me and he was like, 'Hey, she's trying to bid over here.' And then they reopened up the bidding and sold her to me for $60,000.

"When I got her for [$60,000], I was just tickled pink, but you never know when you buy a yearling what you're going to get until you get home.

"What I always try to do is explain it to people in human terms. Every day you get up, do you want to hop out of bed and get going? Some days you're groggy and some days you think you could run a marathon, and other days you just want to get up and get a cup of coffee and sit down. Horses are living animals, they're the same way."

The creatively named Deo Volente Farms-bred Aintmyfirstro Deo was sold the same day as Wall Of Fame about 100 hips later, for $27,000.

"The owners picked him out and just asked me to train the horse," Scran said. "I'd never seen the horse before or looked at him. They just said, 'We bought this horse, we'd like for you to train him. Would you take him?' And of course, I said yes."

As Miller said, Wall Of Fame has been easy from day one, but Scran did not have that same experience with the fella they call "Rodeo" in the barn.

"He got gelded early because he was pretty naughty on the track when he first got broke," Scran said. "He would actually lay down all the time with the jog cart on. He would throw tantrums and just lay down. So, you know, it took him a while to actually get going, and he was a bit behind and he caught up rather quickly, and once he got it all figured out, we were all getting along finally."

Scran said she and the owners were totally on the same page in making the decision to geld Aintmyfirstro Deo.

"At that point you've just got to take a step back and go back to the drawing board again," she said. "Why is he behaving like

Some of the special sauce that goes into the mix of making both of these horses as good as they are is the relationship between their trainer and driver.

"We've never had an argument about a drive because he knows what's going on," Julie said of her husband of 30+ years. "We might have a humorous conversation when I go, 'Really, Andy, :26 to the quarter?' and he says, 'Oh, I thought the light was out, I thought it was a 28.' Then we laugh.

"Andy doesn't have the luxury to hang up the lines and walk away. Andy has to look at the horse the next day.

"I think people gravitate towards us because they like that fact [that we're a family stable], they like that [my son] Tyler and Andy drive them and know the horse very well and have a vested interest in them. And I think that's what develops the chemistry. Andy's seen her in the barn and Tyler broke her as a yearling because we were in Lexington, and we've all sat behind her numerous times, and we know the horse, you know, and that seems to work for what we do."

Julie added with a laugh, "Hats off to everybody else that has to work for eight months on a horse and give the lines to somebody else and hope it works out, you know, I'm a very controlling person, so that's hard for me."

Scran has just as much confidence in her significant other Zeron, and she said he's not afraid to let her know what he thinks of a horse.

"Maybe with a trainer where he's just a catch driver, he kind of sugarcoats it a little bit, but he can be brutally honest to me," Scran said. "And I tell him you're out there for two minutes with this horse, it's different for us trainers, we're working so hard on these horses all week long and your two minutes of glory doesn't work out, so sometimes it can be pretty upsetting when they come off the track mad and use harsh words."

"So, we've had our headbutts over that stuff before, but that's racing, I guess."

Despite the fact that Wall Of Fame has done so well up to this point, Julie said she's not yet thinking about the possibilities for next year.

"So, Andy has done a good job of programming me to worry about what's the present, so I don't, I'm worried about this Friday," Julie said adding with a laugh, "I can't do that to myself because again, I would need medication and a straitjacket."

"I can think about something two weeks down the road or two years down the road, but the only thing I can control is what's happening right now in the moment, so it serves no purpose, so I can't do that to myself."

Julie said she recently saw Scran in Kentucky and wished her luck for tonight with Rodeo.

"I told her 'Five-for-five girl, get it done, get to six-for-six,'" Julie said. "She puts her heart and soul in her horses, and, we're rooting for her."

Scran said she's happy with how far Aintmyfirstro Deo has come since being gelded.

"So, he's been like a real pleasant surprise," Scran said. "He's shown that he obviously can win on front, he's had to do that quite a bit, and the day he came from last [in his second] start, it was pretty impressive to see him come from last like that. Just his will and desire to win was pretty awesome."

"He's not staked to a whole lot just because of all the early-on issues and, because of the issues we were dealing with, we missed some of the early-on payments with him. This could potentially be his last start of this year because it's like a month-and-a-half break until the next Kindergarten [leg], and is it really worth keeping him going?"

"He's already done a lot on the track and that'll be a discussion with the owners and, you know, hopefully he races superb on Friday and we will figure it out from there."

"I'm pretty confident in him, and Scott really likes him also. So, I kind of wish he was eligible to some type of Grand Circuit race this year, but we'll have to plan ahead for that for next year at 3."

MIDWEST CHRONICLES

with JAMES PLATZ

Inverness Ave, So Joyful give Gaskin a one-two punch

by James Platz

Ernie Gaskin had a no-nonsense response when discussing the recent strong performances from a pair of trotting colts in his barn. Sophomore Inverness Ave has turned in back-to-back victories and is looking to make it three straight tonight (Sept. 11), while freshman So Joyful is already a three-time winner in Indiana Sires Stakes competition at Harrah's Hoosier Park Racing & Casino.

"I've had some good ones, but I don't know if I've had a 3-year-old and a 2-year-old like that lined right up," commented the 71-year-old conditioner. "It just doesn't happen like that much in a lifetime for a guy that doesn't spend over $20,000 and has a 15-horse stable."

That's saying something considering Gaskin's credentials. The longtime Indiana transplant is a former Hoosier Park leading trainer that worked for the powerful Haughton stable during its heyday. Gaskin has over 850 career training wins to his credit, so when he makes that kind of statement, it is worth taking note.

As the conditioner has mentioned, his formula for investment each fall is predicated on buying yearlings with partners and sticking to a specific price range. The ceiling for a baby is $20,000, and Inverness Ave, a gelded son of Helpisontheway—Arvika, checked all the necessary boxes.

"I bought him in Lexington and he's a 'Help,' obviously, and I like Helps and always have," the trainer/co-owner said. "Interestingly enough, he was out of a Trixton mare, which I really like that cross. He was a nice individual and he fell into my price range, and that's the combination it takes."

Inverness Ave was one of two Helpisontheway yearlings consigned to Lexington in 2024. The dual-eligible colt was the second foal from a mare whose family included Dan Patch Award winner Armbrus Blush. Gaskin partnered with Ted Engel and Doug Shore on the yearling.

As a freshman, the trotter collected two wins in 11 starts, winning an Indiana Sires Stakes eligible event at Hoosier Park. Also eligible to compete in the Bluegrass State, Inverness Ave scored a 1:56.2 KYSS triumph at Cumberland Run before racing third in the $100,000 final to close out the year with $64,545 on his card.

"He wasn't that good early like I had wished he would have been," Gaskin said. "He was kind of fighting to get points to make it, but luckily with dual eligibility, I was able to go down to Kentucky some and race down there. He trotted in [1]:54 on a five-eighths so I knew that he was as much as I had hoped. So, he wasn't as good as one would like as a 2-year-old, but you've got to take those 2-year-old years as they come and let the horse tell you what's going on."

Getting the best out of Inverness Ave turned out to be an exercise in persistence. The gelding started his sophomore campaign with back-to-back trips to the winner's circle in the Chad E. Carlton Trotting Series. It would take another three months to notch the next victory. In the meantime, Gaskin worked to address issues impacting the gelding's performance. After taking a culture, he was able to identify the issues and address them.

"A lot of times horses are out there not performing quite like you, I or the railbirds might expect, but underlying is there's an issue," he said. "I was pacing around in circles waiting for the culture so I could respond. It takes seven, eight days to grow everything in a petri dish to do a true culture. Otherwise, you're just guessing. There were some allergies involved, a bacterial, and a little bit of blood."

Within 10 days of receiving the analysis on the culture, Gaskin had Inverness Ave in a place where the sophomore was finishing stronger at the end of each mile. The trotter returned to the winner's circle July 9 in another INSS eligible event. Since then, Inverness Ave has not finished off the board racing in both Indiana and Kentucky. On Aug. 20, he handed previously-undefeated Dan D Man Can his first loss in INSS action. Sent off at odds of 22-1, Inverness Ave finished three-quarters-of-a-length in front in a time of 1:52.3.

"He just keeps getting better and better and better," Gaskin said. "A lot of times there are frustrations when you don't get things figured out or there are multiple things keeping a horse from their potential. But, if you can get to that point where you figure it out and they respond, then there's no better reward in the world."

"[Inverness Ave] just keeps getting better and better and better. A lot of times there are frustrations when you don't get things figured out or there are multiple things keeping a horse from their potential. But, if you can get to that point where you figure it out and they respond, then there's no better reward in the world."

— Ernie Gaskin

Inverness Ave shipped to The Red Mile for his second $30,000 Kentucky Commonwealth start Aug. 31. In that contest, driver Tim Tetrick sent the 3-year-old to the front early before being shuffled to second behind favored Untouchable As. In the stretch, the gelding kicked home in :27.1 to win by a neck in 1:51. The tally pushed his seasonal earnings to $118,040, and career bankroll to $182,585 while making him eligible to the $100,000 Commonwealth final. The victory was also a milestone win for Gaskin.

— Ernie Gaskin

“I’ve had some [1]:52 trotters and Two O B Wonkenobi obviously trotted in [1]:51 but he didn’t win in [1]:51,” said the trainer. “So, this is my fastest boy and I’m pretty proud of him.”

Inverness Ave will attempt to win three consecutive this evening, drawing into the second of two INSS legs for sophomore colt trotters. Kevin Lambright pilots the gelding from the rail in race 11.

While Inverness Ave continues to improve, freshman So Joyful established early on that he was one of the top trotting colts in his division. The Rebuff—Skateaway colt, a $30,000 yearling purchase, has finished first or second in five of seven seasonal starts, already banking $95,203 while taking a mark of 1:54.3 at Hoosier Park under the guidance of driver John De Long. The last time out, an INSS leg on Sept. 2, So Joyful raced second to Fifty And Famous as the favorite.

“I think he’s a special colt,” said Gaskin, who trains the 2-year-old for the ownership group of All-Wright Racing LLC, Brian Code, and James Nellinger. “He’s super balanced and super nice. We’ve had a lot of fun with him. John’s all on board. In the last start he left with him and then John said, ‘I didn’t want to use him again.’ When he got off and said that, I’m in love with him. He’s trying to take care of my horse for me.”

The patriarch of All-Wright Racing LLC is Bill Wright, who owned Hambletonian runner-up Classic Photo and finalist Dream Master. Gaskin considers it an honor to train So Joyful for Wright and his family. The experience, which includes a group chat with each owner set up by his daughter, Amanda, has reinvigorated the veteran horseman.

“I am telling you, they just kind of poured some blood back into my soul because it’s been so much fun with them,” Gaskin said. “Amanda sends videos of him training and stuff. It’s just been a joy to work with those guys so I’m hoping the colt’s as good as I hope he is for them.”

So Joyful is firmly in second place in divisional points with only one preliminary leg remaining before the $250,000 Super Final. Gaskin admitted that the colt is eligible to the Breeders Crown, but would have to step up considerably to be pointed to Ohio next month.

“I would say he would have to put in a heck of a performance in the [Sires Stakes] final in order for us to decide to go there, but hey, it’s a dream and we haven’t crushed it yet,” said the trainer. “We want to just take care of him and finish out the year good and then we’ll have a really, really special 3-year-old, I think. We brought him along cautiously, but he can trot really fast, so nobody’s seen the best of him yet.”

The seasonal journeys for Inverness Ave and So Joyful are drastically different by comparison. But together, Gaskin enters the fall with a one-two punch that could prove formidable when Super Finals arrive.

“There’s nothing better than a young trotter that’s got a big heart,” he said. “It restores the fun in the business, it really does. So, I’m excited.”

Clinton Raceway during the National Driving Championship event in July.

ALL OVER ONTARIO

with MATTHEW LOMON

It's a wrap on another legendary season at Clinton

by Matthew Lomon

Complete with sunny skies, a roaring crowd, and a riveting on-track showcase, Clinton Raceway's season finale was picture perfect in every sense of the word.

"The end of the season always has a special feel," longtime marketing manager Jessica Carnochan said. "It was a huge crowd, and finally, the weather cooperated."

The quaint half-mile oval officially closed the books on another successful season of live harness racing on Sunday (Sept. 6) with a 13-race matinee that brought a fresh twist to one of the raceway's most time-honored traditions.

"The Charity Drivers Challenge is always a fan favorite," Carnochan said. "Changing it up to the draft format for the drivers was a fun change that I think they really liked. A new element is always good. It keeps things interesting."

"[Playing host to the 2026 National Driving Championship] wasn't something that I had on my bingo card in 2025, so to see it happen, and happen so incredibly well, was very special for us. Realistically, it likely won't happen again like that."

— Jessica Carnochan

The star-studded roster of drivers competing in the 46th Annual Charity Driver's Challenge included Travis Henry, Jody Jamieson, Paul MacKenzie, Nick Boyd, Lorne House, Brady Galliers, Natasha Day, and Jason Ryan.

"The crew of drivers we had was not only talented, but just a great group of entertainers, too," Carnochan said. "The fact that they come and donate their fees is so special. I know all of us at Clinton, and the Royal Canadian Legions, appreciate it so much. Having it be a challenge right down to the last race was exciting as well."

“Thanks to all of our awesome [Clinton Raceway] fans, the ones who show up, are loud, and applaud, and the ones who are quiet in the background week after week.”

— Jessica Carnochan

Suspense was in abundant supply throughout the eight-race series, which was not decided until the seventh race when Travis Henry piloted Harborlite Jimmie to victory in 1:59.2.

Henry, who finished in a dead heat with Austin Sorrie for first in last year's Charity Driver's Challenge, secured a private spot atop the podium with 61 points in his encore effort.

"It's nice when it could be anyone's game all through the afternoon," Carnochan said. "And Travis winning back-to-back means he basically has to come back next year to try for the three-peat."

A captivating Driver's Challenge put a bow on a first-of-its kind meet for Clinton.

Earlier this year, the Southern Ontario racetrack hosted the National Driving Championship for the first time in its nearly six-decade existence.

"This wasn't something that I had on my bingo card in 2025, so to see it happen, and happen so incredibly well, was very special for us," Carnochan said. "Realistically, it likely won't happen again like that."

Future Hall of Famer Jody Jamieson grabbed the headlines at this year's NDC, winning the event for a third time.

The lifetime winner of more than 9,100 races will represent Canada in the 2027 World Driving Championship, where he will seek to match his domestic output with a third WDC title (2001, 2011).

For Carnochan, experiencing the spectacle of the NDC at her home track as both an organizer and fan was truly a once-in-a-lifetime moment.

"The entire NDC weekend will live rent-free in my memories," she said. "From the Junior NDC to the funny and informative Driver Showcase on the Saturday night, and the event on the Sunday, it was such an incredible thing to be a part of."

The historic occasion was further amplified by the return of Clinton's signature event, Legends Day.

The biennial showcase of the sport's most revered figures saw Hall of Fame reinsman Steve Condren steer My Buddy Sam to a track record mile of 1:57.2 (older trotters) in the $20,000 Legends Day Invitational Trot.

With both accomplished and fresh faces in the spotlight, the exhibition served as both a time capsule and a glimpse into the future.

"Keeping the [Legends Day] tradition alive and hosting the Junior NDC on the same weekend was a great way to tie in all the generations," Carnochan said. "I mean, we had three generations of Jamiesons [Carl, Jody, and Siara] here, each racing. If that isn't an incredible bridge..."

In true Clinton fashion, the raceway spent its recently concluded campaign leaving an indelible mark on the community that shows up in droves each summer.

With different charitable endeavors scheduled across 14 race dates, there's always a point of connection between the people of Clinton and their hometown track.

"I love that this program has evolved into what it is, and that we are not only able to assist these groups, but in doing so, we introduce people to the sport, who may not have otherwise attended," Carnochan said.

"We've also grown our socials substantially this season, and it's been fun to have people comment on all of the work we do."

While far from thankless, the rigors of orchestrating a season of live racing can make its final curtain call feel both satisfying and bittersweet.

"Planning a significant event each Sunday for 14 weeks can be somewhat exhausting, so when the end arrives, I won't lie, it's welcome," Carnochan said. "But when that last race goes, the final ticket is cashed and the grandstand empties for the last time, I do get a little melancholy. It's like family that I won't see again for nine months."

Within that sentiment lies a reflection of the team that brings each unique race day to life.

"We work really well together," Carnochan said. "I know that sometimes I take that for granted, but I am so lucky to be a part of such a great team. It's small, but mighty. I like to say we are a small track, doing big-track things. And it couldn't happen without all of them."

Especially, the Clinton faithful.

"Thanks to all of our awesome fans, the ones who show up, are loud, and applaud, and the ones who are quiet in the background week after week," Carnochan said.

Mellby Narrow wins dramatic Swedish Trotting Derby

by Thomas Hedlund

After a perfect trip, Magnus A. Djuse guided Daniel Wäjersten trainee Mellby Narrow to victory in Sunday's (Sept. 6) $600,000 Swedish Trotting Derby at Jägersro.

The 2026 Derby delivered drama twice over – and the first incident nearly ended in disaster after just 200 meters.

Several horses broke shortly after the start, including Carros First King, creating heavy traffic behind him. Nightlife In and Ejnar Face became tangled, and Adrian Kolgjini was thrown from his sulky. Somehow, Kolgjini managed to keep hold of Ejnar Face and keep the horse on the track.

The race was recalled. Carl Johan Jepson, driving Nightlife In, described the incident:

"Two horses broke in front of me and I had nowhere to go. I got caught in Adrian's wheel, and it was fortunate that he managed to sort the situation out."

Kolgjini said instinct took over.

"It was pure instinct that made me hold on to the horse," he said. "I haven't seen the replay, but my horse tends to move outward when he breaks, and Jepson came up behind us. Our sulkies got tangled."

The recall naturally hurt several horses who had already expended considerable energy. Special Ale was probably affected most after blasting from post 8 and reaching the lead in the aborted start.

Stablemate Wise Guy, however, remained relatively composed before the restart and became a major factor in the actual race.

Golden Kronos (Muscle Hill), who had broken in the first start, held off both Special Ale and Wise Guy in the early battle and secured the lead. Mellby Narrow (Maharajah) settled comfortably in the pocket.

Mellby Narrow himself had been involved in the fight for the lead with Special Ale in the recalled start, but handled the delay remarkably well.

Special Ale had had enough with 1,500 meters remaining and Daniel Redén pulled him out of the race. Around the same time, Nightlife In and Jepson found third-over cover.

Örjan Kihlström moved Wise Guy (Face Time Bourbon) first-over against Golden Kronos, and approaching the final turn it appeared the Derby would be decided between those two.

But Djuse was waiting behind them with Mellby Narrow.

When stablemate Zarex was unable to completely close the gap in the outer flow, Djuse slipped Mellby Narrow into the clear. Wise Guy finally put Golden Kronos away and appeared ready to take control. Then Mellby Narrow accelerated.

Wise Guy was under serious pressure when he broke stride, leaving Mellby Narrow to cross the wire as the 2026 Swedish Trotting Derby winner.

The winning time was a 1:55.2 mile rate for 2,640 meters, a new Jägersro track record.

Golden Kronos held second, completing a 1-2 finish for Wäjersten, while Carros First King (Nuncio) recovered from his early problems to close well for third.

"The horses were so incredibly good in the eliminations, so of course you wanted to win," Wäjersten said. "Mellby Narrow is such an easy horse to work with. On a scale of what you want a horse to be, he's a nine out of 10."

"It's mixed emotions right now. I drove one horse myself and failed, but another horse from the stable won. Obviously, this is huge."

Wäjersten had dominated the Derby eliminations, winning four of the six heats.

For Djuse, the victory was his first in the Swedish Trotting Derby.

"I'm incredibly grateful to have been given this opportunity," he said. "I've dreamed about winning a race this big. The horse was in top form and we got a perfect trip. The trainer doesn't need much explanation – he's simply great, and his entire team is great. Crossing the wire was pure euphoria."

ANOTHER DERBY FOR MAHARAJAH

For the second consecutive year, a son of Maharajah captured the Swedish Trotting Derby. Mellby Narrow became Maharajah's third Derby winner, following Who's Who and Dream Mine. Mellby Narrow is out of the U.S.-bred Heaven's Door (Muscle Hill–Girlie Tough), who began her career in North America with Åke Svanstedt. Her biggest American victory came in the $100,000 New Jersey Sire Stakes final for 3-year-old fillies. After moving to Sweden, Heaven's Door later won the Sprinterstoet final for trainer Reijo Liljendahl.

As a broodmare, she produced seven foals. Her first, Mellby Jinx (Ready Cash), is the richest of them with more than SEK 12.3 million in earnings and major victories including the “I’m incredibly grateful to have been given this opportunity [to driver Mellby Narrow in the Swedish Trotting Derby]. I’ve dreamed about winning a race this big. The horse was in top form and we got a perfect trip. The trainer [Daniel Wäjersten] doesn’t need much explanation – he’s simply great, and his entire team is great. Crossing the wire was pure euphoria.”

— Magnus A. Djuse

Finlandia-Ajo, St. Michel Race, and C.Th. Ericssons Memorial, along with an Elitlopp elimination win.

Mellby Jinx also finished second in the Swedish 2-Year-Old Championship and third in the Swedish Trotting Kriterium.

MEDITATE GIVES PETTERSSON LONG-AWAITED CLASSIC WIN

Stefan P. Pettersson had been waiting for a truly major victory. Kitty Hawk had won the Stosprintern a few years earlier, but a classic such as the Derbystoet was still missing from his résumé.

On Sunday, that changed.

Pettersson watched Meditate (Greenshoe), owned and bred by Stall Courant, sweep around the field to capture the $300,000 Derbystoet after a second-over trip. The beginning of the race was filled with breaks. Bonsse Garde, Hankypanky Leonie, Peggy Boko, and Global Good News all made early mistakes, removing several of the most highly regarded contenders almost immediately.

That allowed Nyharajah (Maharajah) to protect the lead from the rail.

Around the final turn, Mats E. Djuse tipped Meditate out and began advancing. She carried strong momentum throughout the turn and reached Nyharajah’s outside entering the stretch. Princessofthedawn never really found a chance to get involved, while Nyharajah fought bravely along the inside. But Meditate proved strongest over the final strides, taking the Derbystoet in a 1:55.3 mile rate for 2,140 meters.

Nyharajah finished second, with Jiovanha Falkone (Don Fanucci Zet) closing strongly for third.

Behind them, both Bonsse Garde and Hankypanky Leonie produced excellent recoveries after their early breaks, although neither could get close enough to challenge for the top placings.

Meditate became the first Group 1 winner in Europe for Greenshoe. Anders “Courant” Ström both owns and bred the filly, who is out of the unraced Amity Kronos (Muscle Hill). All four of Amity Kronos’ first foals have reached the races.

DALI PRAV TAKES CAMPIONATO EUROPEO IN RACE-OFF

Italian harness racing continues to revolve around Alessandro Gocciadoro, and Saturday (Sept. 5) brought another major victory for his stable.

Dali Prav captured the 92nd edition of the $180,000 Campionato Europeo at Cesena after defeating stablemate Dany Capar in a race-off.

Dali Prav (Donato Hanover—Latina Prav) took the lead around the opening turn in the deciding heat, and Federico Esposito slowed the pace as much as possible.

Before the final turn, Antonio Di Nardo moved Dany Capar to the outside and the stablemates battled throughout the stretch. Dali Prav refused to give way and held on by a half-length in a 1:56.1 mile rate.

The race-off became necessary after the two Gocciadoro trainees split the preliminary heats.

In the first heat, Dali Prav and Esposito were sent aggressively to the front midway around the final turn and held safely over Dolce Viky (Adrian Chip) and Global Agreement (Love You).

In the second heat, Di Nardo worked out a perfect pocket trip with Dany Capar (Exploit Caf—Sueia’ Della Luna). When the field entered the stretch, Di Nardo used Cesena’s open stretch and Dany Capar accelerated past the leader in only a few strides to score over Edgar Saba (Exploit Caf) and Dolce Viky.

That set up the head-to-head showdown, where Dali Prav ultimately settled the matter.

ADVENTURES IN ILLINOIS

with NEIL MILBERT

Fair racing was good in Illinois

by Neil Milbert

Standardbred horseplayers in Illinois said a premature goodbye to pari-mutuel betting when mini-meetings were held at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield and the DuQuoin State Fair.

Rain that negatively impacted track conditions forced the cancelation of two programs at Springfield, but 12 races were held on Aug. 13, 19 on Aug. 19, and 18 on Aug. 21.

At DuQuoin there were 14 races on Aug. 31 and 13 on Sept. 1 and 2.

All the races at both venues were restricted to Illinois-breds.

According to Scott Halpin, who heads the Bureau of County Fairs and Horse Racing, the rainouts and short post times because of rainout day races being added to the second- and third-day programs at Springfield contributed to a decline in total handle from 2025, "but the daily numbers were not far off."

The on-track and all-source totals for the two tracks: Springfield day one, $19,591 and $61,042; day two, $46,269 and $111,447; day three, $28,768 and $115,386; DuQuoin day one, $16,501 and $76,312; day two, $13,402 and $95,232; day three, $40,101 and $72,020. (All source includes Illinois and out-of-state locations.)

Pari-mutuel betting on both harness and thoroughbred racing in the Chicago metropolitan area ended in July when the last surviving track, bankrupt Hawthorne Race Course, ended its thoroughbred meeting nearly four months early and the 119-acre property was sold to a real estate developer.

All 14 Suburban Downs harness programs scheduled for January and February were canceled as a consequence of Hawthorne's bounced checks and inability to pay purses and the November-December meeting cannot be held because the track is no longer in business.

The only remaining track in Illinois is Fairmount Park in Collinsville, across the Mississippi River from St. Louis, which has thoroughbred racing and casino gambling.

Purses at Springfield ranged from a low of $4,000 on Aug. 19 to a high of $23,925 on Aug. 21.

Wyatt Avenatti was the champion driver at Springfield with 12 winners followed by Marcus Miller with six and Kyle Husted with five. Miller and Husted raced only one day.

The champion trainer was Tom Simmons with seven winners followed by Jamaica Patton with five.

Miller and Simmons collaborated when Fox Valley Tamara won the richest race of the meeting, the $23,925 second division of a race for 3-year-old filly pacers on Aug. 21.

Perennial Chicago driving champion Casey Leonard and his father, trainer Terry Leonard were conspicuous by their absence from the State Fairs as were another high-profile father-son combo, trainer Brett Wilfong and driver Kyle Wilfong. Leonard is driving in Minnesota at Running Aces, while the Wilfongs are part of the Illinois diaspora at Hoosier Park.

But the meetings still had some star quality performers thanks to some appearances by Miller and his father, trainer Erv Miller, and Husted and his wife, trainer Amy Husted.

At DuQuoin, Marcus Miller topped the driver standings with his single day total of seven winners. Avenatti was second with six and Kyle Husted with four.

Cole Prather and Simmons deadlocked for the trainer title with six winners apiece.

DuQuoin's purses went from a high of $41,000 on Sept. 1 to a low of $4,000 on Sept. 2.

With Marcus Miller doing the driving for Erv, The Monster lived up to his name by putting on the most powerful performance of the two mini-meetings in the $41,000 Governor's Cup, overwhelming seven opponents in winning the Governor's Cup for 2-year-old colt and gelding trotters by 12 lengths in 1:53.3.

The second richest race at the two fairs was the $40,550 Dudley Hanover for 3-year-old male pacers, also on Sept. 1. Trained by Simmons and driven by Avenatti, Keyser Soze defeated seven foes in winning by one length in 1:51.1.

The only other race at the fairs with a purse exceeding $23,925 was the $39,200 Pronto Don for 3-year-old colt and gelding trotters on Sept. 1. The winner by 2¾ lengths in 1:54.4 was Go Go Chrome with Juan Franco at the reins for trainer Jamaica Patton. There were seven contestants.

FINISH LINES: The only remaining event on the Illinois racing calendar is the non-betting Day of Champions at the Springfield Fairgrounds on Sept. 23.

This Illinois-bred extravaganza is the successor to defunct Hawthorne's Night of Champions, which was a scaled-down version of Super Night, which was a smashing success at now-defunct Sportsman's Park when it was introduced in 1989 and continued to be extremely popular after moving to Balmoral Park where it was held from 2000-2015.

Victorianas Secret victorious in Kentucky Championship Series

by Ray Cotolo for The Red Mile

Victorianas Secret swooped to the front midrace and dug in gamely through the stretch for a 1:50.2 victory in the $80,000 fourth preliminary of the Kentucky Championship Series for 3-year-old trotting fillies on Wednesday afternoon (Sept. 9) at The Red Mile.

Leaving from post 7, driver Ronnie Wrenn, Jr. pushed Victorianas Secret forward and secured the pocket briefly into the first turn as She's Moni (driven by Yannick Gingras) brushed by early leader Islandgirl Hanover (Joe Bongiorno) to the opening quarter in :27. Wrenn, Jr. waited for She's Moni to settle on the lead in the backstretch and then angled Victorianas Secret off the pegs to march up and grab command through a :54.2 half while staying on the muscle through the final turn.

Nezuko Kamado S (Scott Zeron), the 2-5 favorite, tipped out of fourth to grind up the rim and reached the leader's wheel to three-quarters in 1:22 but struggled to surge by upon straightening for the finish. Victorianas Secret stayed to task tightly at the pylons and reached for the finish to cross the beam a half-length better than She's Moni, who knifed through horses late for second. Madam Cheval (Tim Tetrick) kicked from a second-over trip for third while Nezuko Kamado S settled for fourth.

Vernon Beachy trains Victorianas Secret, a filly by Tactical Landing—Victoriana, for owner Ryan Smith. The filly won her eighth race from 10 starts this season and her ninth from 18 starts in her career, earning $450,531. She paid $10.38 to win.

Chiquita Ba-beeman (David Miller) blew up the tote board in the lone $30,000 Kentucky Commonwealth Series division for sophomore trotting fillies when she converted a forward-stalking trip in the nightcap to a 1:52.1 victory as the second longest shot on the board. Starting from the pylon post, Miller secured a seat third to the inside and capitalized on an opening at the bottom of the last turn when 6-5 favorite Crossover (Dexter Dunn) broke stride. Miller swung three wide rounding for home to grab the lead and found the line in time to keep a nose up on fast-closing Decreed (Tetrick) with Naked And Famous (Todd McCarthy) rallying from near last for third. Melissa Essig conditions the winning filly, by Gimpanzee—Goldavila F, for owners Russell Beeman and Charles Weaver. She returned $192.18 to win.

Numanthia (Marvin Luna, 1:51.3 winning mile; $6.06 to win) took top honors with the fastest victory from the three $15,000 divisions of the Kentucky Golden Rod Series for 3-year-old trotting fillies on Wednesday. La Mancha (Tetrick, 1:53; $5.54), a Walner filly out of world champion Manchego, and Concise (Zeron, 1:53; $5.12) took the other divisions.

Early on the card, 9-year-old Logan Shehan of Hopkinsville, KY celebrated an exciting milestone when he scored his first victory as an owner. Shehan's interest, 5-year-old Lazarus N gelding The Phantom (Zyler Maxwell), popped off a pocket trip in a $6,300 overnight race to kick clear for a 3¼-length win in a 1:55.2 mile. The win was also the first on the year for The Phantom, a now six-time winner from 61 starts with $64,203 earned in his career. He paid $10.10 to win.

Live harness racing at The Red Mile resumes on Sunday (Sept. 13) with the $80,000 Kentucky Championship Series fourth preliminary for 3-year-old pacing fillies slated as the headlining event. First-race post time is 5:05 p.m. (EDT).

BRANDON BLVD BEST IN KENTUCKY CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

Meadowlands Pace champ Brandon Blvd kept himself firmly atop the 3-year-old pacing colt and gelding division when he shipped to town and scored a 1:48 victory in the $80,000 final leg of the Kentucky Championship Series on Tuesday (Sept. 8) at The Red Mile.

Leaving from post 3, driver Dexter Dunn sent Brandon Blvd for the lead to a :26.3 first quarter and cleared Funky Buddha (driven by Tim Tetrick) with pylon-starter Sea Bistro Hanover shuffled to third. Brandon Blvd strode unfazed up the backstretch to a :54.2 half and continued to cruise through the last turn while Ubrute (Yannick Gingras) attempted to gain ground with a first-over bid. Funky Buddha gradually peeled from the pocket to attack Brandon Blvd to three-quarters in 1:22.1 but leveled off as the Andrew Harris trainee sprinted for home. Sea Bistro Hanover pushed up the inside and kept digging into Brandon Blvd through the tight seam in the final eighth, but Brandon Blvd fended him off for a half-length win. Ubrute gave chase in third and Funky Buddha settled for fourth.

A colt by Downbytheseaside—Alexis Faith, Brandon Blvd collected his seventh win from 10 starts this season and his 14th victory from 20 starts in his career, amassing $1,325,092 for owner Punisher 11 Stable LLC. He paid $2.88 to win.

Toby Ornot Toby (Tim Tetrick) vaulted from a second-over trip off fast fractions to clinch the lone $30,000 Kentucky Commonwealth Series dash for pacing glamour boys in a 1:49 mile. Parked the mile, Tetrick perched onto cover from Downbythelakeside (David Miller) to a :53.3 half cut by 6-5 favorite Door Dash (Andy McCarthy), who retreated after clocking three-quarters in 1:21. Toby Ornot Toby then stormed to the lead while holding off rallying Thiago Hanover (Gingras) by a neck. Scott DiDomenico trains the victorious gelding, by Tall Dark Stranger—Mackie Hanover, for owners Oompa's Farm Inc. and Joseph Barbera. He paid $12.58 to win.

A trio of $15,000 Kentucky Golden Rod Series divisions also went postward on Tuesday for the 3-year-old pacing males. LB I (Andy McCarthy, 1:49.2 winning mile; $9.06) took top honors with the quickest win of the three divisions after pouncing from the pocket to win by 1¼ lengths over pacesetter Stingman (Gingras). Gunmetal (Todd McCarthy, 1:50.1; $6.82) and Be Sting (Andy McCarthy, 1:50.1; $3.54) took the other divisions.

Slipped Onmybeans and Captain Ricky dazzle again at Running Aces

by Darin Gagne for Running Aces Casino, Hotel and Racetrack

The Tuesday night (Sept. 8) harness racing program at Running Aces shined the spotlight on the Minnesota-sired freshman trotters and pacers and both Slipped Onmybeans and Captain Ricky turned heads yet again to extend their winning streaks. Both are from the first Minnesota crop of pacers sired by Captainryanmichael.

Slipped Onmybeans rolled to her seventh straight triumph in the $16,000 filly 'A' pace in 1:56.1 and checked home 2½ lengths clear of Stormy Shores and Icing On The Cake. Dean Magee was the winning pilot for owner/trainer and breeder Scott Banitt.

It was the ninth win from 10 career starts for Slipped Onmybeans who paid $2.10.

Captain Ricky advanced his scorecard to five in a row in the $16,000 male 'A' division with a career best 1:54 mile over Heroic Honor and Bombi. Casey Leonard was in the driver's seat for owners Alan and Cheryl Sandbulte and Stephanie Anfinson and trainer Justin Anfinson.

Captain Ricky, who paid $2.40, now shows seven wins from nine career outings.

Cash Money Twenty (by Stevensville) and driver Dean Magee rallied inside of Alta Revelry N and Nick Roland late to capture his 10th win of the year in the $17,000 open handicap pace with a 1:52.1 mile.

The $2.80 winner is owned by Heart and Soul Racing and trained by Brett Ballinger.

Turbo Tinker (by Big Oil) notched his fifth career win with a career best 2:01.4 showing in the $17,500 male trot over Fossil Fuel and Matagi.

Casey Leonard drove the $5.40 winner for owners Cathy Dessert and Ken Stauffer and trainer Justin Anfinson.

Jr's Starburst (by World At War Deo) posted her second straight win in the filly trot with a 2:02.2 score over Big Keliene and SD Count Trotula.

Leonard drove the $2.40 winner for owners Friendship Stables, George Dremonas, and trainer Harold Herrera.

The other freshman pacing winners included Hot Dog Money (Roland, $2.60) in 1:55.3 and Bee Cee Dee (Leonard, $6.80) in 1:55.1.

Casey Leonard led the program with four driving wins while Dean Magee drove two winners and Justin Anfinson scored a training double.

Maine SIRE STAKES REPORT

Upsets abound for Maine trotters at Bangor

by Chris Tully for the Maine Sire Stakes

All the usual suspects invaded historic Bass Park on Wednesday (Sept. 9) for four $17,000-plus divisions of the Maine Sire Stakes for 2- and 3-year-old trotters, but when the dust settled two previously unbeaten harness horses had finally tasted defeat.

The first $17,210 Pine Tree State-bred event on the Bangor Raceway betting card for freshmen male trotters saw Heath Campbell send Pembroke Zagursky right out to the front ahead of the heretofore unbeaten 1-5 heavy favorite U Know I Know. They hit the first panel in :30.3 with the favorite in a loose pocket for driver Ken Watson, an unfamiliar spot for the division's leading high-stepper who had won all six of his previous outings.

Mark Athearn tipped Come On Charlie into a 1:03.4 half-mile marker and found himself right alongside U Know I Know who was gapping in third place as they hit the third station in a swifter 1:34.4.

Around that long, far turn, Watson found a seam and slipped out in front of a stalling Come On Charlie and engaged the pacesetter for the stretch drive. However, there was no catching Pembroke Zagursky as the trotter sped off like a good horse while the formerly unbeaten U Know I Know drifted out while giving chase.

It was the first lifetime victory for the son of Pembroke Slugger who split the beam in 2:05.3, and returned $7 for the quarter length win.

Trained by Valerie Grondin for owner Brenda Varney, he was bred in Maine by the late Bill Varney.

High Fashion Owyn (Nick Graffam) finished third.

A few races later in the $17,711 event for 3-year-old trotting fillies, 1-5 favorite Hayden put her seven race seasonal winning streak on the line from post six, but was quickly thwarted at the start by the well-positioned Our Last Quote and Mike Cushing who sent his charge to the top while protecting the pylons.

After a speedy start Hayden and Gary Hall found themselves shuffled back to third into the :30 opening panel as I Think I Can and John Nason had ducked into the pocket during the opening foray.

As the field hit the half in 1:01.3, Coronation Moon (Ivan Davies) flushed Hayden out of her third position to be first over. That filly stuck her nose out and then advanced to the front into a 1:31.1 third panel while looking Our Last Quote right in the eye. And then, in the blink of an eye, Hayden jumped off stride which allowed the pacesetter to continue unfettered to the wire in 2:02.1, a new lifetime best.

Trained by Charlene Cushing for owners-breeders Nelson DiPompo Jr and Mike Graham, the daughter of Cantab Fashion picked up her first seasonal victory by 3-3/4 lengths, returning $8.20.

Race Me Boomer (Andy Harrington) finished second; I Think I Can was third.

As part of the early, non-wagering card, driver Gary Hall got redemption for his previous week's defeat with Princess Caledonia who won easily in her $16,681 Maine Sire Stake for 2-year-old trotting fillies.

The daughter of To The Hilt got away on top and never looked back, scoring by 1½ lengths in 2:07. Princess Caledonia now has five wins this season and earnings of $48,975. Co-owned and trained by Gary Hall with partners James Kelly Jr., Betsey Kelley and Kristina Hall, she was bred in Maine by Anita Anastopoulos.

Cape Cod Friday (Dave Ingraham) finished second; Mikella Bella was third.

In the $17,008 Maine Sire Stake for 3-year-old trotting colts and geldings, it was a repeat performance for driver Heath Campbell and Gus's Workout as they enjoyed another front end circuit for that colt's second consecutive score.

Winning by a measured length in 2:01.2, he is trained by Valerie Grondin for owner/breeder Lynn-Marie Plouffe. The son of Whataworkout now has $105,688 on his card.

Wilder N Idy (Mark Athearn) finished second; Trottingfortreasure (Kevin Switzer Jr.) was third.

Looking ahead, the Maine Sire Stakes action resumes for the Bangor home stand with the 2-year-old male pacers on Saturday (Sept. 12) and their female counterparts on Sunday (Sept. 13). Then it's back to the glamour boys who make their triumphant return to historic Bass Park on Wednesday (Sept. 16).

Ohio Super Night comes back to Eldorado Scioto Downs this Saturday (Sept. 12). The 16-race card will not only recognize those who were successful on the Ohio Sires Stakes circuit throughout the summer, but there will be fun for fans of all ages who attend the races. First post is 5:25 p.m.

Ohio's Super Night has turned into an Ohio super weekend with the eight $300,000 Scarlet championship races to crown Ohio's best will be on Saturday and eight $100,000 Gray championship races on Friday (Sept. 11).

Saturday's race card will also include the $250,000 Grade 2 Charlie Hill Memorial Trot and the $260,000 Grade 2 Jim Ewart Memorial Pace. Both races are stops on the prestigious Grand Circuit schedule.

All horses racing in the 16 championship races, the Charlie Hill, and Jim Ewart are required to report to the Scioto Downs paddock at least six hours prior to their race post.

Saturday's race card will also have family fun activities surrounding the grandstand, including:

For wagering customers, there will be multiple guarantees and a second chance drawing for those on-track. If you have a losing Saturday ticket, put your name and phone number on the back and drop it in the drum near the grandstand teller line. Each ticket drawn throughout the night will get a $100 win wager on a designated race. The six designated races are the four Scarlet championships for 3-year-olds, the Charlie Hill Trot, and the Jim Ewart Pace.

The three multi-race guarantees on Saturday, each having a 14 per cent takeout, include:

- Early Pick-4 starting in race 7: $10,000
- Pick-5 starting in race 11: $7,500

- Late Pick-4 starting in race 13: $15,000

For those that cannot make it to the track, half of Saturday's race card will be broadcast on FOX Sports 2 from 7:30-11 p.m. Gabe Prewitt and Jessica Otten will be hosting live from Scioto Downs.

The schedule for Saturday's eight Scarlet championships, Ewart, and Hill, along with notations about which are scheduled to be shown on FOX is as follows:

Rosecroft readies for Fall Meeting

The Maryland harness racing circuit returns to the Capital Region on Monday (Sept. 14) when Rosecroft Raceway kicks off its 2026 Fall Meeting.

The 27-night stand will feature live racing on Monday and Thursday evenings through Dec. 17, with nightly first post at 7:15 p.m. (ET). The exceptions to the standard schedule include both of the Fall Meeting's marquee events: the Maryland Showcase of Champions program, on Sunday (Oct. 11); and the Potomac Pace, on Nov. 8. Both Sunday programs will begin at 6 p.m. and will replace the immediately following Monday programs. Rosecroft will additionally be dark on Thanksgiving (Thursday, Nov. 26).

The $800,000 Maryland Showcase of Champions program will feature all eight fall Maryland Sire Stakes series finals for 2- and 3-year-olds on the same program, reviving the format for the first time in well over a decade. Four weeks later, North America's top open pacers will converge on the Capital Region for the 11th edition of the $125,000 Grade 3 Potomac Pace, Maryland's only graded standardbred race.

Players will be treated to a steady dose of full, competitive fields and value opportunities, including two 50-cent Pick-4s on each card with a reduced 15 per cent takeout, as well as a 50-cent Jackpot Hi-5 on the final race of each program. Free program pages, the Players' Guide tip sheet, and live and archived video will be available on the track's new website, www.rosecroftraceway.com.

For more information, visit www.rosecroftraceway.com, and follow Rosecroft's Facebook (facebook.com/RosecroftRaceway) and X (x.com/Rosecroft) accounts for up-to-date news and notes all season long.

MacPherson wins Paul MacDonald Memorial Driving Challenge

Driver Corey MacPherson used consistency to capture the Paul MacDonald Memorial Driving Challenge during Horseperson's Day, presented by the Prince Edward Island Standardbred Horse Owners Association, Tuesday evening (Sept. 8) at Red Shores Racetrack and Casino at the Charlottetown Driving Park.

MacPherson recorded three second-place finishes and a fourth from his four driving challenge assignments to secure the title.

Paul Langille and David Dowling each won two legs of the four-race challenge but fell short in the point totals as MacPherson won with 26 points over Dowling (25) and Langille (21).

Langille opened the competition with Freight Air ($23.10), who rallied to win in 1:59.3 for trainer Neil Bambrick and owner Alex MacPhee of Clyde River. Mr Rielly (driven by MacPherson) was second with Proudofyatoday (Gilles Barrieau) third.

Dowling controlled the race with Geishas Treasure ($6.20) in the second leg, stopping the clock in 1:57.3 for trainer Brendan Mullen and owner Blaize Rogerson of Tracadie Cross over Mach Art In Motion (MacPherson) and Neptune Seelster (Harold Shepherd).

Dowling returned to the winner's circle with Shadows Terror ($8.10) in leg 3 in 1:57.2 from the Lenny Myers stable with Big Pond Cash (Barrieau) second and Here Comes Emmett (Adam Merner) third while MacPherson was fourth with Cheekie Play.

Langille closed the challenge with a front-end victory aboard his own trainee Good Omen ($4.20) in 1:57.2. Evil Vintage (MacPherson) snagged second as Blue Moose (Dowling) was third.

In other action, Brookdale Johnny ($11.90) prevailed in the $17,000 P.E.I. Colt Stakes Graduate Series Gold final for horse and gelding pacers with Ken Murphy driving for trainer Phil Sizer and owner/breeders Doug Polley, Sr., and Doug Polley, Jr., of Amherst, NS. The 6-year-old son of Rockin In Heaven advanced first-over and took command approaching the stretch before holding off favorite Malevolent (Langille) by a half-length in 1:54.2. Merigo Magic (Adam Merner) finished third.

Murphy also teamed with trainer Clifford Murphy to win the $6,250 preferred pace with Arbitrage Hanover ($2.60). The 5-year-old son of Bettor's Wish moved first-over and powered past pacesetter JMR Speak Away (Gilles Barrieau) to win by 1¾ lengths in 1:53.4. Fast Louie (Dowling) completed the triactor. Arbitrage Hanover is owned by Ken, Glenn, and Justin Hardie of Nova Scotia.

Barrieau topped all drivers on the 15-dash program with four victories. His winners were Bettim Relentless ($7.20) in 2:01.1 for trainer Stephen Quinn and Cattle Call ($4.20) in 1:56.4, TH Boomtown ($3.40) in 1:56.1, and Air Force Hanover ($7.40) in a 1:53.4 victory, all for trainer Ron Matheson.

Jason Hughes also recorded a driving triple. Tobins Nibbler ($4.90) won the opener in 1:59.3 and Goose Commander ($3.40) took race 12 in 1:59.1, with both winners trained by Ashley Gamester for owner Donald MacRae of Vernon Bridge. Hughes also guided Whiskey In The Jar ($7.50) to a five-length score in 1:58.4 for trainer Luke Burke.

Rood & Riddle Equine Hospital and Equine Care Group announce strategic partnership

Rood & Riddle Equine Hospital and Equine Care Group (ECG) today (Sept. 9) announced a long-term strategic partnership bringing together two internationally recognized leaders in equine healthcare. The partnership will create new opportunities for clinical collaboration, veterinary education, research and innovation while preserving Rood & Riddle's identity, leadership, culture, and clinical autonomy.

Rood & Riddle is internationally recognized for advanced equine care through its hospitals in Kentucky, Florida, and New York. ECG is an international veterinarian-led network connecting equine hospitals, ambulatory practices, and equine health specialists across Europe, the United States, and beyond.

Central to the partnership is a shared belief that the advancement of equine medicine should remain veterinarian-led. ECG was founded by veterinarians and operates through a partnership model that allows hospitals and practices to maintain their identity, culture, and local veterinary leadership while gaining access to a broader international network.

By connecting clinical teams across North America and Europe, the partnership will create additional opportunities for veterinarians to exchange knowledge, collaborate on complex cases, advance research, and expand educational initiatives. ECG's network also includes expertise in fertility, diagnostics, equine nutrition, research, and education, providing opportunities for collaboration across the continuum of equine health.

For Rood & Riddle's patients, clients, and referring veterinarians, the partnership expands access to international expertise without changing the foundation of care they know and trust. Rood & Riddle will continue to operate under its established leadership with its current veterinarians and clinical teams. Its name, culture, clinical standards, and local relationships will remain central to the organization.

The partnership is expected to support:

- Clinical collaboration and knowledge sharing across specialties and geographic regions
- Expanded veterinary education, mentorship, and professional development
- Research and scientific innovation focused on improving equine health and outcomes
- International consultation and collaboration on complex cases
- Greater collaboration across medicine, fertility, diagnostics, nutrition, prevention, and rehabilitation

"This partnership allows Rood & Riddle to expand our global collaboration while preserving what has defined us for decades," said Dr. Deborah Spike-Pierce, president and CEO of Rood & Riddle Equine Hospital. "Our leadership, culture and approach to medicine remain unchanged, while our veterinarians gain new opportunities to collaborate with colleagues and access expertise around the world."

Dr. Tom Mariën, founder of Equitom and Equine Care Group said, "My connection to Rood & Riddle began nearly 30 years ago when I observed there as a young surgeon. Bringing our organizations together connects decades of complementary clinical experience and creates new opportunities to advance equine medicine through shared knowledge, research and innovation."

As the partnership develops, Rood & Riddle and ECG will continue identifying opportunities to collaborate in clinical care, research, education, innovation, and professional development.

For additional information about the partnership, including answers to frequently asked questions about what it means for Rood & Riddle's patients, clients, and equine community, visit roodandriddle.com/ecg.

The partnership remains subject to customary regulatory approvals, definitive legal documentation and standard closing conditions.
