NO SUNDAY ISSUE OF HRU

After daily issues this week covering the Standardbred Horse Sales Company auction in Harrisburg, PA, HRU is taking a brief hiatus. There will be no Sunday issue this week. That means the next issue of HRU will be Friday, Nov. 13.

Also, as we have done in recent years after the Harrisburg sale, we are returning to publishing two days a week through the winter and spring. So, there will be no Wednesday issues until the summer of 2026.

Beau Jangles brings largest sales tag in standardbred history

The stallion prospect and reigning U.S. and Canadian Horse of the Year fetched $3.7 million in Harrisburg.

2026 SHSC YEARLING SALE AT HARRISBURG
STANDARDBRED HORSE SALE COMPANY

Each click ticked the clock closer to three o'clock under the setting sun. At this time, an entourage out of the Northwood Bloodstock consignment led 3-year-old pacing colt Beau Jangles from the North Hall towards the back ring of the sales arena, where the son of Cattlewash out of Mrs Major Hill circled in anticipation for something that has never happened in harness racing history. Even though he was the sole occupant inside the mock fences of the West Hall, he filled the entire space.

As mentioned in Friday's HRU, a reigning standardbred Horse of the Year has never gone through public auction. The gravity of such a circumstance weighed through the entirety of the week for the 2026 Standardbred Horse Sales Company (SHSC) auction in Harrisburg, PA. It served as a centerpiece conversation each day between friends, strangers, and colleagues. The day before, Beau Jangles' main driver during most of his career, Bob McClure, trekked over six hours across the border to come to Harrisburg and see the big guy one last time, bringing with him a handful of black licorice as a "thank you" for all the horse did on the track.

"I feel very blessed to be the one to sit behind him for that magical season at 2," McClure told HRU. "It was the ride I will never forget, and the industry grabbed ahold of him which made it even more special. I'm glad I got to Harrisburg to say thank you and goodbye. I believe he'll be a great sire and I look forward to driving his babies."

Hip #1602 Beau Jangles sold for $3.7 million on Friday at the Standardbred Horse Sales Company auction in Harrisburg, PA. He was purchased by John Curtin of New Zealand out of the Northwood Bloodstock consignment.

Beau Jangles entered the ring on Friday (Nov. 6) as Hip #1602, placed at a headline time of the session with only a handful of horses left to sell on the day. From all parts of the Complex, people condensed into the sales arena; every chair filled, every hallway packed. Bidding began with aggression, leaping immediately to $500,000 and then $1 million and ping ponging soon after to $2 million and then to $3 million. From there, the bids came with increasing reluctance. The camp of Steve Jones, among the underbidders, gave cautious nods tucked in the wings towards the North Hall and stayed in the hunt until $3.5 million, with Jones bowing out at a simple shake of his head to the auctioneer.

At that point, the bids upped to $3.7 million and the air became still. The auctioneer asked for the room to hold applause, but > "[Beau Jangles will] definitely be a shuttle stallion. There are no arrangements, as of this moment, but I've had 100 calls so maybe every stud has rang us. I haven't taken the calls and I've got to ring them all back. I don't know what they are all ringing for."

once he banged the gavel applause nonetheless ensued, causing Beau Jangles to circle through the ring and bringing the room to silence while they waited for Beau Jangles to exit. The crowd then celebrated the occasion with more applause.

"He was sharp and looked around, like most good horses," said Bob Boni, operating as consignor through his Northwood Bloodstock. "He just took it all in and was part of the excitement. To look at a horse like Beau Jangles, who is as good an individual as you're ever going to see, and to watch him stay through the days and be good and sharp and attentive. I've said this 100 times already, but I thank the owners who gave me the opportunity and a special tribute to Dr. [Ian] Moore because, this horse, his condition was superlative for this time of year and racing, training, traveling… to look as good as he looked in the flesh."

The winning bid on Beau Jangles came over the phone from several continents away. John Curtin of Auckland, NZ put through the winning offer.

"The phone has not stopped ringing, I've had 100 messages here and I can't answer them," said Curtin over the phone, adding with a laugh, "Can I ask your clients if they can all lend me $100 bucks towards the horse? That'd be great to help me pay for it."

Curtin, answering at 10:30 a.m. local time, could only confirm at the time that the plan for Beau Jangles is to send him to stud and to manage him as a shuttle stallion between the North America and Australasia.

> "The only other thing to see would be if I could sell five million-dollar horses in one year, you know? It's just incredible. We've just seen history made here today [with Beau Jangles selling for $3.7 million] and it's something I don't think we'll ever see again. With that many people in there, the place was packed [here at Harrisburg] and the buzz – cameras were flashing and phones were flashing and it was pretty cool. I still think this kind of auction for mixed [sales] is where you need to be."
> — Dale Welk

He told the USTA's Ken Weingartner that Beau Jangles will mostly likely race this month in the Matron Stakes and Progress Pace, both at Bally's Dover Downs, before being retired to begin his stallion career.

"He'll definitely be a shuttle stallion," Curtin said, adding with another laugh, "There are no arrangements, as of this moment, but I've had 100 calls so maybe every stud has rang us. I haven't taken the calls and I've got to ring them all back. I don't know what they are all ringing for."

The $3.7 million figure paid for Beau Jangles breaks the previous record for a standardbred at public auction of $1.85 million when Amazing Catch went through the ring during the 2024 SHSC Mixed Sale. Coincidentally, Amazing Catch sold a few horses after Beau Jangles on Friday, bringing $50,000 from John Collings of Prince Edward Island, signing as agent.

Preferred Equine led all consignors with gross sales of $14.88 million over the five-day auction.

FRIDAY'S OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

Sophomore trotting filly Victorianas Secret, a supplement to the Mixed Sale as Hip #1604, brought the second highest price of the Friday session, selling for $875,000 to agent Robert Lindstrom of Sweden. Lindstrom confirmed to HRU that the new Swedish ownership decided to keep Victorianas Secret in North America for her 4-year-old season and will move her into Ake Svanstedt's stable.

"We are planning for a European tour for her," Lindstrom said, "but as a 4-year-old — it's too much money [to miss] and for the group members, it will be a better choice."

Another supplement, Hip #1601 Yankee Boss, brought big numbers when selling as the third most expensive horse of the day at $430,000. Johnathan Roberts' Kiwi Stables, part of the original ownership of the 2-year-old son of Captain Corey, signed the ticket in the buyback. The last supplement of the session, Hip #1603 Spencer Hanover, brought $335,000 but did not sell.

Broodmare prospects composed the bulk of the session's top purchases. Among the top 10, Dana Parham's Odds On Racing acquired Hip #1410 Champagne Room, a 4-year-old daughter of Papi Rob Hanover out of champion mare See You At Peelers, for $340,000. Armitage Farm, leading all buyers on the week aside from the Beau Jangles auction, snatched Hip #1412 Winnpanzee, a 4-year-old daughter of Gimpanzee out of Breeders Crown winner Winndevie, for $300,000 as well as Hip #1401 Sharp Seven, a 4-year-old Chapter Seven mare, for $275,000. Hip #1377 Seaside Shuffle, selling as the seventh most expensive horse of the session at $280,000, is the lone mare of the aforementioned to stay in training according to conditioner Doug Dilloian, Jr., who signed as agent for the purchase.

Michelle Panebianco and Crawford Farms continued its restock on Friday and made several prominent purchases to emerge as the fourth top buyer of the whole sale. Among their Friday purchases were Hip #1373 I'm A Lou Lou, a stakes-winning daughter of Sweet Lou, for $225,000 and Hip #1381 Aperfect Annie, another daughter of Googoo Gaagaa to join Call Me Goo in the broodmare band, for $200,000.

Hip #1400 Rani Hanover, the first foal of 2020 Hambletonian winner Ramona Hill, also placed among the top sellers of the day when selling for $210,000 to Bryan Montgomery, who signed as agent for Herb Liverman. Hip #1397 Maya Patel Hanover, a daughter of Captain Corey, also brought $210,000 on the day when leaving the ring for purchaser Hanover Shoe Farms.

SALES' END

The 2026 SHSC wrapped with a gross of $67,602,000 from 1,381 sales across the five days, 10 per cent shy of the all-time record of $70,474,000 set at the 2025 SHSC that saw 200 more horses go through the ring. The average increased 2.6 per cent year-over-year with the median also increasing from $22,000 in 2025 to $25,000 in 2026. Friday alone grossed $15,570,000 from 192 horses sold while the two days of the Mixed Sale grossed $27,562,000 from 495 sales.

"I think the market's consistent year over year," said David Reid of Preferred Equine, which led all consigners for the week with more than $14.8 million in sales. "I wouldn't say it was better and I wouldn't say it was worse, which is important. Fabulous Fillies, there was a lot of interest in them. I'm not surprised on the outcome of those. It's always a great week here, you have a little bit of everything and you get a good pulse on the industry. You see a lot of people. It resets the market a little bit and it was a very successful week overall."

Dale Welk, president/director of operations for the SHSC said, "I think with fewer horses, some horses got a lot more attention. Not a lot, but more attention than they would've gotten. Some horses, they might have been $160,000 or $170,000 horses and they ended up bringing $210,000, $220,000, $230,000 because they didn't have a lot to choose from."

Beau Jangles' fireworks to wrap the week also provided another career highlight for Dale Welk, in just his fifth year as president of SHSC. In his tenure, he has seen the sale beat its all-time record for gross sales in the 2022 yearling sale, has overseen the sale's first million-dollar yearling, and has twice broken the record for the most expensive standardbred sold, to name a few feats.

"The only other thing to see would be if I could sell five million-dollar horses in one year, you know?" Welk said with a smile. "It's just incredible. We've just seen history made here today and it's something I don't think we'll ever see again. With that many people in there, the place was packed and the buzz – cameras were flashing and phones were flashing and it was pretty cool. I still think this kind of auction for mixed [sales] is where you need to be."

BETWEEN THE LINES

with BRETT STURMAN

In championship races, how much should handle matter?

by Brett Sturman

In the period of two weekends, both thoroughbred and harness racing year-end championships were conducted. The Breeders' Cup World Championships took place last weekend at Keeneland Race Course in Lexington, KY, while the Breeders Crown was contested the weekend prior at Scioto Downs in Columbus, OH.

Though for entirely different reasons, one commonality between the two events was a precipitous drop in handle from prior years. It does raise the question; how much should handle count when deciding where a championship goes, and how much these days does it ever matter?

Beginning briefly with the thoroughbreds, handle for the two Breeders' Cup days at Keeneland was $167.9 million, down 6.7 per cent from last year's event at Del Mar. This year's handle was the lowest handle since the COVID-impacted event in 2020.

The lower handle can't be attributed to Keeneland directly as a hosting facility however, because in 2022, the highest handle ever for the Breeders' Cup came when it was hosted at Keeneland. This year's lower handle has widely been attributed to underwhelming undercards combined with some shorter fields. Wagering on the actual Breeders' Cup races themselves were just about on par with last year's. As such, the wagering aspect of things wasn't a verdict on Keeneland.

Things take a much different shape when reviewing the Breeders Crown numbers.

Before I even get into it, none of the coming commentary is a knock on the job that all those did in putting together this year's event. From everything I have seen, the event, particularly on the Saturday card, was well attended with highly competitive racing and overall ran a well-regarded two-day event. The weekend did Ohio proud.

That said, to compare change in handle as the Breeders Crown moves between venues is a completely reasonable discussion, and one that shouldn't be shied away from.

Sadly, no official handle numbers were cited for this year in any published releases, but here are my unofficial numbers taken from charts in the days after the races. Friday's card with four Breeders Crown races handled under $1 million, and Saturday's card with eight Breeders Crown races handled $1.85 million.

The Breeders Crown at Scioto showed that a track can make an event matter to people locally, even if the betting public is slow to adapt. Weighing those two together should be a conversation the sport should have openly.

For reference, the 2025 Breeders Crown held at Woodbine Mohawk Park handled $5.69 million over their two days, and in 2024 The Meadowlands handled $7.73 million for Breeders Crown weekend. What it amounts to is approximately a 65 per cent drop in handle between the races two years ago at The Meadowlands and this year's event. No matter how you look at it, that's a significant change.

Now, your response might be, so what, or who cares about handle anymore.

If you think that, you're not entirely wrong, sadly but true. Today, the success of events isn't measured by handle.

But where handle does matter is that it's really the only proxy that we have for knowing who actually even cares about the races. What other way is there to measure interest?

The Meadowlands went head-to-head with Scioto over Breeders Crown weekend, running the same number of races, and rotating race-by-race with each other over the course of the weekend. Over that time, The Meadowlands handled $3.8 million for the weekend to Scioto's let's call it $2.7 million. Even on Saturday, with the massive Scioto card and the weight of the industry behind it, The Meadowlands, while running a card of predominantly $7,500 claimers, had a higher handle.

Here's one more instance. On the Friday event, race 7 at The Meadowlands was an all-ladies race of which most lady drivers were amateurs, and race 7 at Scioto was a 2-year-old Breeders Crown race. More money was wagered on the lady amateurs at The Meadowlands than the race with the top barns, top drivers, and 2-year-old royalty at the Breeders Crown.

Taken literally, more people cared about the amateur race at The Meadowlands than a Breeders Crown final. I don't know if that's the reality, but it is what the numbers say. How else is there to interpret it?

Again, I'll grant that handle isn't everything. These days it might hardly be anything in the overall scheme of things. And there is a valid argument to be made in taking the Breeders Crown on the road and exposing the best of what harness racing has to offer to new regions. There is real value in that.

There are other economics too. The Hambletonian Society partners with these host tracks and receives various types of financial commitments and sponsorships, but at what point does handle outweigh all the other intangibles? Even if handle doesn't matter like it used to, it still is the best way to measure interest in events, and maximizing a global interest must still be a top priority.

We know this exact scenario will play out next summer when the Hambletonian debuts at Harrah's Hoosier Park. Handle at Hoosier isn't likely to match handle from the event at The Meadowlands, but that won't solely determine the success of the event.

The Breeders Crown at Scioto showed that a track can make an event matter to people locally, even if the betting public is slow to adapt. Weighing those two together should be a conversation the sport should have openly.

MEADOWLANDS MATTERS

with DEBBIE LITTLE

Title on the line in round 5 between On To Norway and Super Chapter

by Debbie Little

They say, "It all comes down to the Breeders Crown," but in reality, at least in some cases, "The FanDuel furnishes the fuel to rule."

Depending on the outcome, the FanDuel should end the debate for Dan Patch divisional honors between On To Norway and Super Chapter, by tipping the scales one way or the other.

Although the draw for the four FanDuel Championships doesn't take place until Tuesday (Nov. 10), connections of the two top older trotting titans have said they are Jersey bound.

Prior to the action-packed card on Nov. 14 at The Meadowlands that features the FanDuel Championships along with the Fall Final Four — the Goldsmith Maid, Governor's Cup, Three Diamonds, and Valley Victory — both competitors will be in action tonight with Super Chapter in a qualifier at The Big M and On To Norway in an open at Hoosier Park.

Unlike the majority of the recently-held midterm elections, the race for Dan Patch Older Male Trotter of the Year, just like this year's Hambletonian, is too close to call.

In this week's Hambletonian Society/Breeders Crown Top 10 Poll, On To Norway (No. 2) and Super Chapter (No. 3) are separated by a mere 17 points with the former receiving two first-place votes, four fewer than the latter.

According to the conditions, the FanDuel is a stand-alone championship event for the top point-earning horses from seven designated stakes races.

By virtue of winning the Grade 1 Cashman and Maple Leaf and Grade 2 Dayton Derby, Super Chapter is the points leader for the open trotting division and gets post protection, drawing from 1 through 6.

On To Norway was not made eligible for the FanDuel, but in the race conditions, The Meadowlands reserves the right to invite the winner(s) of specific races to reach the maximum number of starters.

Super Chapter (Dexter Dunn) winning the $1 million Yonkers International Trot on Sept. 12.

By virtue of his victory in the Breeders Crown open trot last month, On To Norway received an invitation to the FanDuel, provided he pay the declaration fee to enter the race, which was accepted.

When determining Dan Patch divisional honors, voters generally apply metrics that include, head-to-head competition and strength of schedule.

For the four times the pair has already met, the head-to-head numbers lean heavily in the direction of On To Norway, who has three wins over Super Chapter: the Grade 1 Breeders Crown and Hambletonian Maturity and Grade 2 Graduate final.

Super Chapter's lone victory over On To Norway came in the Grade 2 Dayton Derby.

It should be noted that in both the Hambletonian Maturity and Graduate final, the margin of victory was a neck. Whereas in the Crown final, Super Chapter finished seventh just as On To Norway did in the Dayton Derby.

Strength of schedule is where it gets interesting.

On To Norway currently has five more starts this season than Super Chapter — a number that will increase by one after tonight's (Nov. 7) race at Hoosier — with On To Norway at 12-2-0 in 15 starts with $1,587,131 and Super Chapter at 7-2-0 in 10 starts with $1,197,707.

Since more than a third (five out of 12) of On To Norway's victories came in opens at Hoosier Park, and Super Chapter only competed against Grand Circuit competition, in an attempt to come closer to comparing apples to apples, if you remove On To Norway's five opens at Hoosier Park, you are looking at the exact same record of 7-2-0 in 10 starts.

Super Chapter's aforementioned three losses all came at the hands, or hooves, of On To Norway, while in addition to his loss to Super Chapter, On To Norway was beaten by a half-length by Mr Mouton in a leg of the Graduate and lost the Grade 2 Charlie Hill Memorial by six lengths to Emoticon Legacy.

In addition to the Crown, Maturity, and Graduate final, On To Norway won the Grade 2 Caesars Trotting Classic, a leg and final of the Indiana Sire Stakes, and a leg of the Graduate, while Super Chapter won the Grade 1 Yonkers International Trot, elim and final of the Grade 1 Maple Leaf Trot, Grade 1 John Cashman Memorial, and two legs of the Graduate.

While head-to-head goes to On To Norway, strength of schedule belongs to Super Chapter.

Head-to-head matchups like these are what drives our sport and whatever the outcome of the FanDuel Championship it's been quite a ride with both of these champions.

TALES FROM THE CURMUDGEON

with MURRAY BROWN

Thoughts and observations pre and during first day Harrisburg

by Murray Brown

I've been and continue to be a fan of Anthony MacDonald's TheStable's daily posts on YouTube. I agree with most, but not all of his thoughts.

One opinion that he expressed on his way to Harrisburg resonated greatly and is one with which I am in total agreement.

These are not his exact words, but he said something to the effect of "If you think training and racing horses can be tough, its nothing compared to breeding and raising them."

A case in point was Hip #110 on Day 1 at Harrisburg.

On paper this colt had it all. He could very well have been the sale topper. He is no less a sibling to Beau Jangles who became the highest priced standardbred ever sold at public auction on Friday (Nov. 6) thanks to a winning bid of $3.7 million.

He is the second foal from a young Art Major mare who is an immediate descendent of Horse of the Year Bunny Lake and traces to the greatest pacing family in the history of our sport. He is by the venerable Bettors Delight and is likely one of the last yearlings to be marketed from the stallion who is the leading money producing stallion of all breeds by a margin of tens of millions of dollars. He is the type of colt that breeders can only dream of having in their consignment. So, what happens? The colt suffered a catastrophic injury which necessitated his not being sold and, in all probability, curtails any possibility of his becoming a racehorse.

You might argue that Bettors Delight is beyond the point where his yearlings are in demand. The buyers the first day at Harrisburg obviously didn't think so. His four yearlings brought in Hip # order: $40,000, $95,000, $150,000, and $120,000. Four yearlings by a 28-year-old stallion selling for $405,000 and averaging over $100,000 almost certainly has never before been attained.

Speaking of geriatrics, I counted 30 mares who were represented by their seventh or higher foal on Day 1. These 30 yearlings sold for $3,298,000, averaging $109,933.

On the other extreme, there were 46 first foals from their dams on Day 1. They brought $3,874,000, an average of $84,217.

Triscari Video Web Marketing

The Pennsylvania State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, home of the annual Standardbred Horse Sales Company auction.

I believe that this year's Harrisburg yearling sale was the best it has been in several years.

What does this prove? Nothing, except that you can probably sell a yearlings reasonably well regardless of how many foals a mare has had.

The Canadians were a factor — with a vengeance. Apparently, they hadn't heard about any trade wars with the United States or far more likely didn't care. They effected Day 1 greatly and continued to do so in virtually every category as the sale progressed, as breeders, consignors, through their sires and perhaps most importantly as buyers accounting for many millions of dollars of sale revenue.

The relatively small (for Harrisburg), breeding operation of Dean and Ashley Wilson led all consignors in average with their six yearlings bringing $527,000, an average of $87,833.

In terms of purchases, as best as I've been able to ascertain, on Day 1, Canadians bought 41 of the 176 yearlings sold for a total of $4,443,000 an average of well over $100,000. That is not counting those purchased by Canadians such as Andrew Harris and Fred Grant who now make the United States their home. That also does not include those bought by American trainers on behalf of Canadian owners.

It was nice to see dear friend, 85-year-old Myron Bell, now weighing in at a fighting weight of 178 pounds return to Harrisburg after an absence of several years. Like all of us, Bell has his good and perhaps maybe, not the best points.

One thing that is absolutely certain is that Bell's presence is an asset to any horse sale, not only by what he buys and bids on (he rarely is not the buyer on what he bids on), but as an influencer.

Bell is a font of knowledge when it comes to standardbred's and their pedigrees. There is likely no one else in this business of ours who is in possession of so much information and knowledge regarding our horses and the sport. Welcome back Bell. I only wish this fellow geriatric was there to join you.

I'll close in saying how much I've missed not being there.

I believe that this year's Harrisburg yearling sale was the best it has been in several years.

Harrisburg has been a big part of my life for over 65 years. Counting the time I've spent there, both before and during the sales, I'm guessing that added up to about four, maybe five entire years of my life.

It is doubtful whether I'll ever return, however due to the marvels of modern technology, I've been able to live vicariously through the sale on my handy laptop.

I'll continue doing so through the mixed sale.

MIDWEST CHRONICLES

with JAMES PLATZ

All In: Anthony Miller pursues the catch-driving career he never planned

by James Platz

Catch driving horses in pari-mutuel competition was never an aspiration for Anthony Miller. Raised in northern Indiana, he raced for years on the trottingbred pony circuit, and when that chapter closed, he turned the page. Today, Miller is ranked 10th in the Harrah's Hoosier Park driver standings in his first pari-mutuel season, and he feels incredibly blessed for the opportunity.

Dean Gillette
Anthony Miller.

"This whole thing has been God-driven," he said. "I was 258 pounds March 16, 2025. I had no thoughts of being a driver, no plans of being a driver. In two years, we're here. I don't know how it got here. I know it comes from all the people supporting me and from God."

Miller steered his first pony in competition at the age of 10, winning with Think Fast at the Goshen Fairgrounds. He spent 11 seasons racing on the circuit as a pursuit that involved the entire family.

"I started racing with my dad, brothers, sisters, all of them; we all raced," he said. "I drove against Kevin Lambright and Kiwon Waldron, who are both at Hoosier Park now. LeWayne Miller was a little bit before my time, but I drove against his brother, Dale, a lot."

Once retiring from the pony circuit, Anthony went to work for his father, Devon, a blacksmith. He also trained and owned standardbreds. The most notable is the trotter Jusmakinyalook, a 20-time winner in her career, with a 1:51.2 mark taken at age 4. The Pinetucky mare, trained by Robert Taylor and owned by Anthony and Devon, banked $474,372 over five seasons of racing.

It was through Jusmakinyalook that Anthony made a connection with driver Jordan Ross, who would be the catalyst to his return to the sulky.

"He drove her throughout her career," Anthony said. "That's how I met him. We started talking more and then we started playing basketball. We have a lot of the same interests. And it led to this all happening, really."

It was during a trip to the gym to play basketball that Ross floated the idea Anthony should obtain his fair license and drive on Indiana's circuit. His reason: someday the two could tell their children they battled wheel-to-wheel racing at Indiana's fairs. That was March 2025, and Anthony had work to do in order to be ready when the fair circuit kicked off the first week of June.

"I was a big boy; I went on a very strict diet," Anthony said of his 2025 transformation. "I dropped like 40-some pounds before Converse the first week to make sure that I could get in the race bike. Then I lost the rest by the end of last year. This year, I've lost even more."

He didn't reach the winner's circle in that first week of fair racing, but he broke his maiden the following week with a three-length win behind sophomore trotter Fake Fifty, trained by Robert Wyman for Karl Dean Miller's Twoforone Stable.

> "This whole thing has been God-driven. I was 258 pounds March 16, 2025. I had no thoughts of being a driver, no plans of being a driver. In two years, we're here. I don't know how it got here. I know it comes from all the people supporting me and from God."
> — Anthony Miller

"I got on some horses for Karl Miller and Robert Wyman and we started doing pretty good," Anthony said. "I started driving a lot more."

Throughout the summer and fall, he added nine more wins at the fairs, good for 10th in the 2025 standings.

If Anthony's colors look familiar, it's because they are modeled after those of Hall of Famer David Miller. His fandom goes back to the pony racing days, where he also donned purple colors.

"I grew up a big David Miller fan," Anthony said. "I still am a diehard David Miller fan. The Purple Jesus. I was one of the first ones to wear purple on the pony tracks, if not one of the first to make it my main color. You can't have colors that are the same, so I added some diamonds in there."

Anthony earned his pari-mutuel license in February 2026, making his debut that month with Gold Paige, a trotter owned by the family. Listed as driver and trainer, he piloted Gold Paige to a fifth-place finish. April was a big month for the aspiring driver, as he collected his first pari-mutuel win aboard the Wyman-trained Cs Flying Co-Pilot on April 10. Five days later he picked up his second win, this time with Zach Miller's Sun Rae's Triumph. He finished the month with six winners, twice scoring with Cs Flying Co-Pilot and three times with Sun Rae's Triumph.

"Zach started it off this year for me," Anthony said. "He put me on some really good horses to start off. He kind of got my name out there and he stuck with me this entire time."

Anthony has driven the open-class mare Blessed Beginning, a Zach Miller trainee, as well as victorious freshman pacing colts Prime Image and Freaky Lover. He also drove four-time runner-up Nu Chex To Cash, another 2-year-old colt from the stable. Anthony and Zach Miller connected for a $50,000 Indiana Sires Stakes consolation victory with Prime Image.

Despite less than a year of pari-mutuel seniority to his credit, Anthony is listed in the Hoosier Park record books. His success with Zach Miller-trained horses led to an opportunity to guide entries from the Aaron Stutzman barn. One of those was the young pacing filly Fitterjake, a freshman he piloted four times in Indiana Sires Stakes, collecting three wins and equaling the track record with a 1:49.2 clocking to match My Girl EJ's 2023 mark. She later won the $250,000 Super Final with Scott Zeron in the bike.

Through Hoosier Park's Thursday (Nov. 5) program, Anthony has 27 wins to his credit in 348 starts. The 25-year-old driver ranks 10th in the track's seasonal standings, and has $527,484 in purses earned.

"I have all 27 wins recorded in my phone," he said. "I usually watch them at least once a week."

Anthony is doing everything within his power to make the most of each chance to sit behind a horse. Driving back and forth from his home two hours north of the track, the up-and-coming reinsman has put 67,000 miles on his truck since February. Two months ago, he started working for trainer Jeff Cullipher, and he moved closer to Anderson with his wife and young daughter, renting a home for the time being.

"I lived 45 minutes from dad," Anthony said. "We had eight to 10 horses of our own going earlier this year. I was driving 45 minutes over there in the morning. Working our horses, jogging, training, doing all that stuff. Then going to Hoosier and racing at night, just driving back and forth every night. If qualifiers were in the morning, then I'd just spend the night. Tuesday nights, going into Wednesdays, I'd just spend the night. Then go home Wednesday night after my last one. That would be four hours on the road, five nights a week. Back and forth.

"My little girl turned 1 in October. I didn't see her except on Sundays. I'd come home and she'd be sleeping. I'd get home at 3 o'clock in the morning and be back on the road by 6 o'clock in the morning.

"So, we decided to move down. We're investing everything into it and hoping we can make it work out for us. Hopefully God wants us on this path for a reason."

Anthony has dropped 100 pounds, give or take a pound or two, and believes he can still shave off more weight. He is thrilled to suit up and drive against defending leading driver Trace Tetrick, John De Long, Marcus Miller, Ross, Kyle Wilfong, and the rest of the colony. Anthony has set his sights on honing his skills as a full-time catch driver in the Hoosier State and building upon the success he has already achieved.

"I've got a taste for it now. I love it," Anthony said. "There's no better feeling than being in that race bike. For me, it's something I've dreamed about. Hopefully, I can keep showing up and giving 100 per cent. God willing, He can help me do this."

MANE ATTRACTION

with JOHN BERRY

Remembering L. E. Brown in this yearling sales season

by John Berry

My previous columns on modernizing harness racing have brought on several — make that many — ideas from folk all over the U.S. even a couple from up North of the Border.

Sifting through it all takes a bit more time than realized, so, while the yearling sales have gained most of the headlines these days, here's a remembrance of L. E. Brown from the Maple Lawn Farm and his yearling sales from a century ago with more on modernizing in upcoming HRU columns.

Most of you haven't heard of Brown as he was the proprietor of his yearling sale well over 100 years ago.

That era, of course, was still considered, kind of, the infancy of our standardbred sport, when the horse had to gain registration status by having to prove that he or she could negotiate a mile in a certain time — that standard time being 2:30 or faster.

Of course, our grand pacers and trotters can travel a mile some 65 to 75 lengths faster than that these days and our Mane Attraction columns are attempting to modernize the breed in our own, insignificant, manner.

That's the argument that the standardbred is anything but "standard" and deserves to be renamed and recognized with a headline that is equal to — or even greater than — the thoroughbred.

But, back to Brown and his standardbred yearling sales.

Brown was "foaled" on March 30, 1862 and he made a name for himself with two important stallions that were featured at his farm, The Exponent and Trampfast, the latter a world record holder for 2-year-old trotters.

When sale time arrived, there were no sales rings or pedigree readers or auctioneers or huge crowds jamming a fancy pavilion.

Oh, Brown held auctions, all right, mail order auctions.

When the gavel went down on any horse and the funds cleared, many were sent to the new owner via railroad.

And, seemingly more often than not, the new buyer had not even seen the yearling on which he had bid.

From around 1910 or '11 until the early 1930's, Brown sold close to 1,000 horses by his mail-order auction.

All the major periodicals ran his advertisements with all the stipulations regarding the sale.

A buyer could bid on one, or an entire lot — this particular sale an example of his sale from 1925 had 20 offered.

Brown's trainer, Alex Wishart, frequently kept records on the yearlings offered and those marks were included in the description of a particular yearling.

Besides color, estimated height at maturity, and bloodlines, Brown also included flaws, along with trainer comments.

Brown invited interested parties to his farm for inspection, but as mentioned, he also sold many sight unseen.

It wasn't just the yearlings that caught this HRU columnist's eye, Brown had shipped over 2,000 horses — some over 1,000 miles — "without a single loss," he claimed.

Early bids were accepted by mail but, once the bidding had been established, only wired bids were accepted.

All horses were examined and passed by a veterinarian and, if needed, boarding was available at $15 per month at his Maple Lawn Farm or $50 at Springfield.

One particular yearling offered was the trotting filly, Shinefast, who was advertised as a "registered standard" with a yearling mark of 2:29 1/2 in a time trial featuring a quarter in :34.

Her estimated height at maturity was 15.1½ to 15.2 hands and she was described as a "trim, sleek, smooth, stylish, muscular, correctly proportioned, superbly made, grand limbed filly."

She was also described as a "quality lady" all over with "quality manners, quality gait, and can also step as becomes a lady of quality."

Shinefast learned her lesson quickly as she had a bit in her mouth on Aug. 3.

Brown explained that it had rained in Springfield all during the fall season and the track wasn't fit to work over until late November, training up-and-down his cinder path.

Brown further explained that her first mile was in 2:29 1/2 which prompted him to brag, "Match that, if you can!" Or, "Can you produce another yearling trotter her equal in class?"

Trainer/driver Wishart chimed in saying, that Shinefast "Is a nice, kind, cheerful, good mannered, splendidly gaited, four cornered trotter."

He also said, "She'll leave a blanket on all night, likes company, is very tough, and can go distances awful good.

"Recommend her in every way,"

Her ad also enticed potential buyers with her stakes engagements to the Horseman, Horse Review, American Horse Breeders, Kentucky Futurity, Western Breeders, and Hambletonian.

Other ads followed showing current bids with more auctioneer's jargon to solicit more bidding by the mails.

One of his ads blustered, "It's not my fault that I'm again advertising the 14 horses I have for sale under the You-Set-The-Price plan.

"It's your fault. You have not bid."

And he concluded with the somewhat famous proverb, "None are so blind as he who will not see."

And Brown then put salt on the proverb saying, "You're proven it."

His challenges matched any pedigree readers jargon of today, "Will you hang back now and let these horses I'm offering sell for a pitiful fraction of their value?

"A few weeks hence grass will be here, feed cost will be cheapened, farmers will be too busy putting in crops to ship grain, the sun of prosperity will be shining and all those timid chaps, who wouldn't by a trotter now when it's selling for 'nothing' will be treading all over each other's toes in their eagerness to pay three or four times these prices of mine are hanging at now."

Of course, these mail order specials produced some questions as to once a horse was knocked down, would it be knocked around in transit because I.C.C. rules forbade attendants on the railways.

That didn't stop Brown.

He frequently published letters from satisfied clients with one Joseph Huber of Pottsville, PA, stating in a communique that "Trampgalore arrived at 7 a.m. in first class condition. "He looks even better than you represented to me and not a finer colt has come to this part of the country."

The sales methods over the past hundred years for our pacing-bred and trotting-bred horses have also made huge advances over the past century, as well, at least as the aforementioned 65-75 lengths suggests.

OnGait is celebrating 25 years using modern technology in the selling of racehorses, yearlings, broodmares, stallions, and breeding stock.

Preferred Equine Marketing has online auctions, along with their standardbred agencies handling a complete roster of standardbred horses.

Blooded Horse Sales, the long-established company based in the Midwest, also hosts public auctions and online bidding.

Selected Sales has auctions reaching across the ocean featuring European horses.

With the use of videos, race records, extensive breeding information and up-to-date modernization techniques, the challenge is to make the "pacing-bred and trotting-bred" sport as modern as tomorrow attracting new spectators and investors into harness racing.

Money management makes the pari-mutuel world go 'round, Part 5

by Frank Cotolo

Part 1 is here.

Part 2 is here.

Part 3 is here.

Part 4 is here.

Claude was in a crisis. It was the 1980s and the only two ways to make a bet on the Daily Double at Hollywood Park was to know a bookie or put his '79 Chevy into overdrive down LaBrea Boulevard and get to the track proper, pay for parking and admission, and push his heart-rate to the limit on foot getting to a teller inside the Grandstand area.

Claude did not know a bookie so he hit the gas on Santa Monica Boulevard and turned right on LaBrea to defy the speed limit to the landmark racetrack. He needed much luck to overcome the possible trials of the trip. There was always a lot of traffic going north and south on LaBrea, no less around noon on a weekday, and there was always a chance the route was congested due to an accident or a police-car chase or a stop-and-go delay because a section was being used for a movie shoot.

He cursed himself for not leaving earlier though there was no guarantee that could have made much difference. Determination was on his side because he was convinced that he could hit the Daily Double that day. But at the moment Claude was firing on all five cylinders and the goal was to make the bet. The physical act of making the bet ruled the venture. To be shut out of the Daily Double meant failure to the Nth degree.

Claude was already emersed in a euphoria. He was in a battle with only one true conclusion: get the action. What could happen during or after the wager almost meant nothing compared to getting his bet in on time, that is, feeding his need for, the action. Claude would breathe deep with relief once the bet was made. Then he relaxed and soaked in the winning possibilities that he ignited. Last on his mind was the amount of money he wagered on the Daily Double.

Claude got the action that satisfied his goal. Making the bet was getting the action and getting the action ignited the thrill of betting with no regard for the two possible outcomes. For winning or losing was not so sweet when both conclusions would put Claude right back into the irresistible need for more action.

This is no fable. This was and still is the virus that slowly breaks down whatever sized bankroll used by a pari-mutuel gambler. Chasing the action for the sake of the thrill is a death sentence to a betting bankroll since the era of making bets with the poke of a finger began. Not just to make a pari-mutuel bet. In the 2020s the technical ease of betting on just about anything has fed the potency of thrill-based bets. These days financial ruin to reach the thrill at any price — literally — is the safest bet anywhere.

This topic falls into the category of money management because chasing the thrill of the bet distorts the value of any size bankroll and can devastate any and all chances of turning a profit.

Through the decades of writing about gambling on pari-mutuel horse racing I encouraged readers to watch a movie that defines the scourge of thrill-based bets. The Gambler was made twice. I encourage the original 1974 version. It stars James Caan as Axel Freed, a popular and successful professor of literature who seeks thrill-based bets to the crucial depths in his life.

Critic Roger Ebert wrote: "Axel's problems and dangers seem like our own." Critic Vincent Canby wrote: "Axel's downward path keeps you thinking there must be some illuminating purpose, but there isn't."

I offer no spoilers. You must see the 1974 original. It is chilling without being preachy while following themes of risk and obsession which in one way or another "seem like our own."

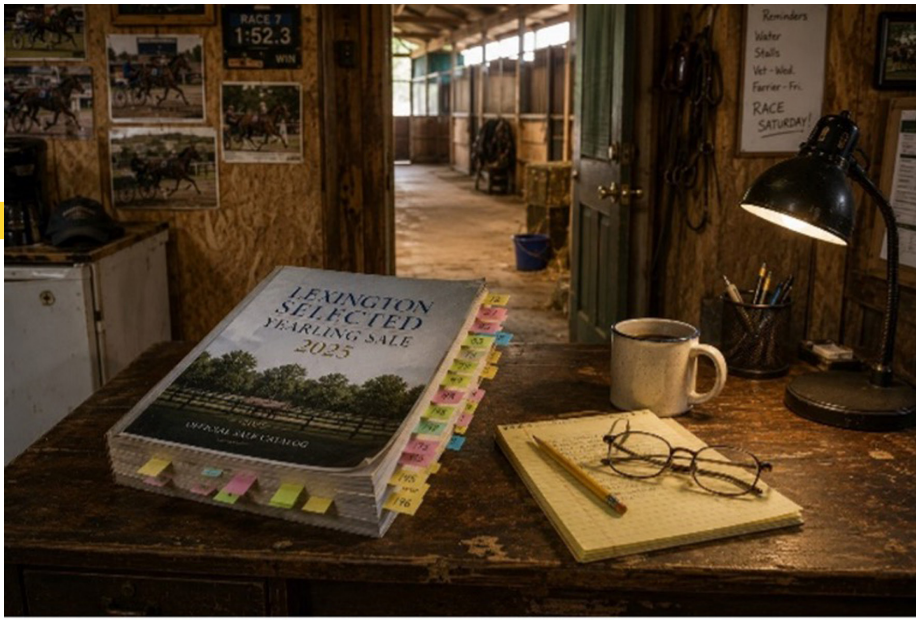

I knew Claude. I also knew Edmund. His thrill-bet craving was a Pick-6 treasure. Edmund's journey was backed by an astounding dedicated bankroll due to his professional status. "I just need to hit one big Pick-6," he told me. I was not privy to the expenses involved in hitting one (not that Edmund kept accurate records) but long after I left him avoiding crowds at Santa Anita, I heard from a friend that Edmund hit a huge Pick-6 carry-over pool.

Edmund found me many years later on the Internet. He said he was fine even after losing all of the six figures he made on the multi-race exotic. I offered my condolences but I was not surprised because Edmund was smart and careful and intelligent and worldly. I thought, "there must be some illuminating purpose, but there isn't."

The Gamble

Just after 10 a.m., Hooley entered barn 6. He found Peter Pettigrew sitting on a bale of straw a few feet inside the open door. A blue plastic bucket sat next to his feet; the trainer methodically cleaned a black leather harness with a sponge and a rag. Every buckle received his full attention.

The new familiar smell of saddle soap mixed with leather, liniment, and fresh-cut hay filled the air as Hooley walked toward the trainer.

Peter looked up from his work, smiled, and asked, "How's retirement?"

"Forty-eight hours, no complaints. So, are we going to talk about restraining orders or about me getting involved in this sport?"

"Let's get the restraining order off the table."

"Okay."

"Three days ago, you said your cousin wasn't dangerous."

"That was a close call, and I may have been wrong. Alex is like one of those cats where the owner always tells visitors, 'Don't worry, Fluffy is fine.' The owner thinks he's fine. Hopes he's fine. Then somebody rubs Fluffy the wrong way or backs him into a corner, and the damn thing shreds their face."

"What corner is he in?"

"When you were here last week, a few things were bubbling beneath the surface. On Saturday, the volcano popped."

"Relax and go slow, I'm not the police anymore."

Pettigrew took a deep breath and continued cleaning equipment as he talked.

"Well, as you know, we have four equal partners on Assets Accepted. She raced well enough in the four preliminary legs to qualify for a place in the Sire Stakes finals. Her last race as a 2-year-old was the season final on Saturday night. The filly was racing for a $350.000 purse."

"Some of that is confusing, but go on."

"Ten days earlier, before she would race in the finals, I got a phone call with an offer to buy the filly for $160,000. The deal had to close before the big race."

Hooley said, "So, if my math is correct, each partner walks away with forty grand. No risk."

"Yes, but we lose the horse."

"On the other hand, if the horse wins, you get the money and keep the horse."

"Yep, that about sums things up. In a stakes race, only the top five finishers get paid. Finish sixth or worse, and you earn nothing. Worse yet, you've already paid an entry fee."

"Okay, I get it. Big-money people can make an offer that is hard to refuse for those with less money. Difficult decision.

What happened?"

"We set up one of those FaceTime phone conversations with the four owners to discuss the pending offer. The question boiled down to: do we take the offer or roll the dice and keep the horse? Each partner had a vote and could make a case to the others."

Hooley asked, "What if you tied?"

Peter shrugged. "That didn't happen. "Alex went first. Sell immediately. Take the money. No discussion. He is not a long-term guy, plus I know that he has money problems with unpaid rent, bookies, and God knows what else."

Hooley asked, "You? Your vote?"

"I didn't want to sell, not for a moment, and I told them why."

"Let's hear it."

"Hooley, I've spent most of my life buying horses nobody else wanted. Now somebody was offering $160,000 for one of mine. That's the kind of telephone call you dream about."

"So why not sell?"

"Assets Accepted is a nice filly, a very nice filly. She earned $54,000 in seven races during her 2-year-old season, and she had a chance to push that total up if she races well in the final. But the real money for a stakes-caliber horse comes during the 3-year-old season. They are stronger, more mature, and will race maybe 20 times. Bottom line, I think she is worth more."

"So, the best is yet to come with the filly."

"Hopefully, but it's always a risk. Every horse is racing on eggshells; one bad step and you have a pet instead of an ATM with four legs."

"You got me on eggshells. What was the vote, sell or keep?"

"Keep. The Kansas City ladies are having a blast, and they don't give a hoot about the money. Alex was ticked. He threw a bit of a hissy fit because he knew the horse could win the final. In that case, we would all have the purse money and still own the horse."

"You rolled the dice?"

"Yes."

"How did the horse do in the big race?"

"Not good. She broke."

"Broke what?"

"Stride. She made a mistake halfway through the race. It happens in this game."

"Damn," said Hooley.

"Assets Accepted did not earn a dime. Three of the owners were disappointed and shrugged off the loss. Alex is not a good sport. He blamed us all.

"You?"

"Of course. And the ladies, and the racing industry, and I think he blames FaceTime for hosting the vote."

Hooley leaned back, interlaced his fingers on his head, and said, "That's a heck of a story, but what's with the restraining order?"

"That's part of the horror story."

Just then, Spit Kendrick walked into the barn. He looked at Peter cleaning and asked, "Yo, Pete, anything for me?"

"Nah, just have two in the barn. I'll be a one-man band until the sale. Check back then. We will see where we are."

Spit turned to Hooley, smiled that strange smile, and said, "Mister policeman, you on duty? Any cases need cracking?"

Hooley snorted a laugh. "No, no, I retired. I'm thinking of buying a yearling."

"Another one gets the fever. Pete here will ease you into the quicksand. Spit will be around and looks forward to seeing you gentlemen." He gave a tidy salute and walked outside.

Peter clicked his fingers. "That reminds me."

He stood and walked into his office, which was the first stall of the 10-horse barn that had been remodeled using sheets of plywood to wall off the top of the neighboring stall and half of the wall facing the aisle.

A rusty screen door with a smudged glass pane in the top allowed Hooley to see a battered desk, a mini refrigerator, an electric space heater, and old winning photos stapled to wood. Folded against the wall were the three other, now familiar, lawn chairs. Peter grabbed a large book off the desk and handed it to Hooley.

"That's a sales catalog. You can find the same thing online. Inside are 20 Post-it notes with a number sticking out. Those are the yearlings I have marked as possible purchases. Now, I know this is gibberish to you."

Hooley fanned the pages. "There are hundreds."

"Yeah. When you get home, ask Google or AI to teach you how to read a harness horse sales catalog. Find a YouTube tutorial. Write down anything that confuses you. Before the sale, we will get together, and I'll try to fill in the blanks."

"Okay, I'll give it a try. How about you fill in the blanks of the horror story with your cousin?"

"Let's go to the track kitchen. I'll explain the mess over breakfast."

Hall of Famer Clint Galbraith, 89, dies

Dave Landry

Hall of Fame horseman and former U.S. Trotting Association director Clint Galbraith of Scottsville, NY died on Oct. 31, 2026 at the age of 89.

As a driver, Galbraith had 3,062 wins and $19,875,929 in earnings. He also had 595 victories as a trainer.

A native of Tara, ON, Galbraith was inducted into the U.S. Harness Racing Hall of Fame in 1990 and the Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame in 1998. He represented District 8 on the USTA board of directors for three years starting in 1992.

Following is Galbraith's bio from the U.S. Harness Racing Hall of Fame.

Galbraith began his career driving horses owned by his father. A native of Tara, ON, Galbraith left Canada in 1957 to work on the Buffalo-Batavia harness racing circuit.

The winner's circles of the New York Sire Stakes have been frequently occupied by Galbraith, but he is best known for training and driving Niatross, named Harness Horse of the Decade (1980s) and 1997 inductee into the Harness Racing Living Horse Hall of Fame.

Galbraith was the first driver to boast two sub-1:50 miles: the initial Time Trial 1:49.1 with Niatross and the 1:49.3 race mile behind Call For Rain, who was voted Older Pacing Horse of 1988.

A director of the USTA from 1992-95, Galbraith was also a director of the Harness Horse Breeders of New York State. Galbraith was named Horseman of the Year in 1980 and in 1988 received USHWA's President's Award. He was inducted into the Harness Racing Hall of Fame in 1990.

Liberty Bell stakes feature freshman fillies

The second of the annual two weeks of Liberty Bell stakes series racing at Harrah's Philadelphia began on Thursday (Nov. 5) with freshmen as the focus: pacing fillies went for $34,500 in each of two sections, while trotters were gathered for one $45,600 contest.

Both of the pacing stakes were won by daughters of Captaintreacherous; the faster was the only favorite to win a Philly feature all day, Loyal To The End (dam Lifetime Trust), who won in 1:53. Driver Andrew McCarthy waited patiently with the winner until late in the backstretch, then got her in high gear, and Loyal To The End stayed true to the end with a :55.3 back half to defeat 50-1 shot Kinda Girl U Like. The Noel Daley trainee, owned by Let It Ride Stables Inc, Jesmeral Stable, and Hutchison Harness LLC, has recorded four wins in seven starts, and each win has come in a different type of Keystone stake: a Stallion Series Stake, a PA All-Stars event, a Sire Stake, and now a win in the Liberty Bell series.

Lindy Believer (dam Believe Its Lindy) got to sit in the 2-hole for much of the other pacing stake, coming home in :55.1 - :27.2 to successfully rally from the pocket to beat out first-over JK Alwaysbpositive by three-quarters-of-a-length in 1:53.3. Jason Bartlett drove the winner, now perfect in her last five starts after sweeping through the Massachusetts stakes series, for trainer Petter Engblom and the combine of Engblom Farm, R A W Equine Inc, Evans Nation, and Hickory Hollow Stables.

Another Captain — the hot stallion Captain Corey — was the father of the trotting winner in the Liberty Bell stakes action. Andersson Hanover (dam Angel Eyes Hanover) came out of the 2-hole late on the far turn, then outfooted leader Sevenoops Hanover home by a neck in 1:56.1. The winner took her fourth victory in succession for driver Patrick Ryder, trainer/father Chris, and owner John Mc Keon, Jr.

The featured overnight trot on the card was a $14,000 contest for horses looking to step up the class ladder, and it was won in wire-to-wire fashion by Herecomesdajudge, a son of Muscle Hill who pleased Pigmeat Markham fans with a 1:53.2 win. The winner was aided by some confusion and interference nearing the head of the stretch, but he was in control almost all the way for driver Tyler Miller, trainer/mother Julie, and the partnership of Andy Miller Stable Inc, T L P Stable, Rick Huffman, and Dumain Haven Farm LLC.

Trainer/driver Åke Svanstedt, who last year set the all-time Philly seasonal record for UTR at .523, had a couple of impressive overnight winners. Hustle Rain S, a son of Raja Mirchi, went in 1:52.3 in recording his first North American victory for TLH Racing Inc, with identical :27.2 back splits marking him as a national-caliber prospect, while the Chapter Seven—Fatima Blush freshman gelding Book It Armitage broke his maiden in style, stopping the timer in 1:53.4 (only three ticks off the track mark) with :56.1 - :28 back speed for Svanstedt, Little E LLC, Wolfgang A Stable, and Kiwi Stables LLC.

Svanstedt led both sides of the day's horsepersons' stats with three wins; doubling drivers included Patrick Ryder and Tim Tetrick, the latter ending his Philly day tied for the top with Simon Allard at 119 wins. The trainers' race is just as contested, with both Scott DiDomenico and Dean Eckley harnessing a Thursday winner to stay deadlocked at 44 for the campaign.

Woodbine, Rosecroft team for Ultimate Harness Pick-4

Woodbine Mohawk Park is set to team with Rosecroft Raceway this Sunday evening (Nov. 8) for the Ultimate Harness Pick-4.

The Grade 3 $125,000 Potomac Pace, Rosecroft's signature race, will be the final leg of the Ultimate Harness Pick-4, a 50-cent wager hosted by Rosecroft that consists of two races from the Maryland track and two races from Woodbine Mohawk Park.

The lineup for the Ultimate Harness Pick-4 is listed below:

Leg A — Rosecroft — race 7 (Pete Medhurst Legacy Pace — 8 p.m.

Leg B — Woodbine Mohawk Park — race 6 — 8:41 p.m.

Leg C — Woodbine Mohawk Park — race 7 — 9:02 p.m.

Leg D — Rosecroft — race 11 (Potomac Pace) — 9:20 p.m.

The Grade 3 Potomac Pace features a stellar lineup of eight of harness racing's top open pacers, including Breeders Crown winner Dandy Ideal and Ontario-trained star Prince Hal Hanover.

First post for the 14-race Potomac Pace card from Rosecroft is 6 p.m.

Woodbine Mohawk Park's Sunday evening card will feature 11-races. The feature contest is the $44,000 open trot (race 10), led by multiple O'Brien Award winner Logan Park.

The two Woodbine Mohawk Park races part of the Ultimate Pick-4 feature full fields of 10, including a talented group of filly and mare trotters in race 7 for a $30,000 event.

The $75,000 Early Pick-5 will launch the 11-race card. Post time is 6:30 p.m.

Canadian federal budget misses opportunity to protect Ontario's horse racing industry and restore tax fairness

Ontario Racing is expressing disappointment that the federal government's 2026 Budget fails to repeal Section 31 of the Income Tax Act, missing an important opportunity to strengthen Canada's horse racing industry, protect jobs and investment, and restore tax fairness for businesses operating across the equine and agricultural sectors.

Titled Masters of Our Destiny, Budget 2026 emphasizes the importance of economic sovereignty, competitiveness, and securing Canada's economic future. Yet, by leaving Section 31 untouched, the government has maintained an outdated tax provision that discourages investment in Canadian horse racing and places domestic owners, breeders, and racing operations at a growing competitive disadvantage.

"At a time when Canada is focused on strengthening our economy and keeping investment at home, we should be removing barriers that make it harder for Canadian industries to compete," said John Hayes, independent chair of Ontario Racing. "Unfortunately, this budget misses an opportunity to do exactly that. We cannot be masters of our own economic destiny while maintaining tax policies that encourage investment in Canadian horse racing to move south of the border."

Section 31 of the Income Tax Act restricts the ability of legitimate farming businesses to deduct business losses against other sources of income, capping eligible annual deductions at $17,500. Originally introduced in the 1950s to prevent the misuse of hobby-farm tax deductions, the provision no longer reflects the realities of modern horse racing and breeding operations, which require significant upfront investment and often rely on diversified income streams to remain viable.

The consequences are felt throughout Ontario's horse racing industry. From horse owners and breeders to trainers, stable operators, veterinarians, feed suppliers, and transportation providers, thousands of individuals and businesses depend on a healthy and competitive racing sector. By discouraging investment and limiting the ability of legitimate businesses to manage losses, Section 31 places additional pressure on an industry that supports employment and economic activity in communities across the province.

The need for reform has become increasingly urgent as recent U.S. tax changes have made investment in American horse racing and breeding operations significantly more attractive. New provisions allowing immediate deductions of 100 per cent of the cost of qualifying racehorses have widened the competitive gap, creating an additional incentive for owners and investors to direct their capital south of the border.

"Ontario's horse racing industry competes directly with jurisdictions in the United States for horses, owners, investment, and talent," said Gordon Thain, executive director of Ontario Racing. "Every dollar invested outside Canada represents a missed opportunity to support Canadian breeders, racing operations, and the thousands of people whose livelihoods depend on this industry. Repealing Section 31 would help level the playing field without requiring a new government spending program or subsidy."

While Budget 2026 did not address Section 31, Ontario Racing and its board, which represents all facets of the industry in the province, welcomes the government's commitment in Section 6.1 to modernizing Canada's tax system, including reviewing outdated provisions that no longer serve their intended purpose. With additional tax reforms planned for the Spring Economic Update 2027, the organization sees an important opportunity to address the competitive disadvantages facing Canada's horse racing industry.

"Building a stronger, more self-reliant Canadian economy means giving our domestic industries the tools they need to succeed," said Hayes. "We welcome the government's recognition that outdated tax rules need to be addressed, and we are committed to working with federal officials to ensure that Section 31 is part of the next phase of tax reform. Ontario's horse racing industry deserves a level playing field and a fair opportunity to compete."

Ontario Racing supports the longstanding call to repeal Section 31 and restore tax fairness for Canada's equine and broader agricultural sectors. The organization will continue working with the federal government and parliamentarians to advance this reform and ensure that Canadian horse racing can continue to attract investment, support employment, and contribute to rural economic growth.
