Apex and caretaker Amalie Odegard after winning the Hambletonian.

Will epic Hambletonian win be enough to carry Apex to top of divisional honors?

by Brett Sturman

BETWEEN THE LINES

with BRETT STURMAN

Immediately after he delivered one of the all-time great harness racing wins in this year's Hambletonian, Apex reigned supreme in the 3-year-old male trotting division and, for that matter, tops in the entire sport. Last year's Dan Patch winner at 2, Apex seemed easily destined for at least a repeat of that award at 3 following that 1:49.2 Hambletonian stakes-record win over Big Ranger in early August.

History suggests a strong correlation between Hambletonian winners and eventual divisional winners, though there have been some exceptions including a recent one which mirrors this year's divisional race.

Fall, however, has told a different story. Apex has won just once in six starts following that Hambletonian sparkler and in that time other horses in the division have staked later season claims of their own. What voters must first ponder is how much weight the Hambletonian is worth in a season that still goes for three months after.

History suggests a strong correlation between Hambletonian winners and eventual divisional winners, though there have been some exceptions including a recent one which mirrors this year's divisional race.

Beginning arbitrarily in 2004, Windsong's Legacy kicked off a streak where for six years in a row the Hambletonian winner was the divisional winner. All told going back 21 years between that year and this one, the same holds true for 14 out of the last 21 Hambletonian winners. Within those 14 winners includes Atlanta and Ramona Hill who won the stake as fillies and are included since they won divisional honors as trotting fillies.

The only horses during that span who won the Hambletonian and didn't win their division that same year were Nordic Catcher S (2025), Karl (2024), Captain Corey (2021), Forbidden Trade (2019), Perfect Spirit (2017), Trixton (2014), and Muscle Massive (2010).

When including caveats, that list gets even smaller. Nordic Catcher S and Captain Corey had their seasons (and in the case of Captain Corey, career) end prematurely due to injury following their Hambletonian wins. Perfect Spirit was elevated to his Hambletonian win when first-past-the-post What The Hill was disqualified, and What The Hill did in fact go on to win the divisional awards that year.

The case for Apex rests not just on the Hambletonian win but also with the summer he put together leading up to it. Key wins during that time included the NJSS Platinum final (over Diabolic Hill) and the Stanley Dancer (over American Power and Inexpressable). In his second start following the Hambletonian coming a month later on Sept. 11, Apex won the NJ Classic final (over Nix Nacken). With a record this year of 11 5-3-0, Apex ends the year with $971,803, the division's top earner.

If not Apex, it seems like it's his less-heralded stablemate Nix Nacken who has the strongest resume. Beginning in the summer months, Nix Nacken notched smaller but notable wins in the New Jersey Sires Stakes Silver final, as well as the $200,000 Earl Beal consolation, and a NJ Classic elimination (over Magic Punk and Diabolic Hill). He was a first-over runner-up to Apex in the following week's NJ Classic final. But it's in the fall where Nix Nacken really made his case.

On Sept. 26 in the Grade 1 Canadian Trotting Classic, Nix Nacken went a big first-over mile and this time did get the better of Apex, when he upset the heavy favorite at odds of 12-1. Then, just one week later in Lexington, Nix Nacken, being overlooked once again, won the Kentucky Futurity, this time at odds of 17-1. Perhaps there being a sense that he wasn't at his best, Apex drifted in odds well off his morning line, and on cue broke stride at the start of that race.

Following his Futurity win, Nix Nacken would close out the year to be second in both his Breeders Crown elimination and in the final. In his final seven starts of the year, he won four of those and was no worse than second. Through that winning span, he somehow had five different drivers. He finishes the year the same as Apex with five wins, and similar earnings, coming in at $910,266.

The way this year has played out closely parallels 2024, where Karl was dominant after winning the Hambletonian, but Sig Sauer ultimately took the division.

Sig Sauer beat Karl twice that year and, similar to Nix Nacken and Apex, did so both times in upset fashion. The first was a 65-1 upset in the Stanley Dancer, and the second time came in the Kentucky Futurity when he won at odds of 9-1. Interestingly, in recent years when the Dan Patch winner wasn't the Hambletonian winner, it's often the Kentucky Futurity that became the next most important race. In the case of Sig Sauer, he was able to parlay his Kentucky Futurity win into a Breeders Crown win.

Who should win the award and who will win the award are two different questions. Does the fall resume of Nix Nacken outweigh the summer one of Apex? It really is close. But one thing for certain is the perception, and maybe even fact, that regardless of resumes, Apex is the better horse. Marcus Melander trains both horses, and following Nix Nacken's win in the Canadian Trotting Classic, was quoted as saying "He's [Apex] obviously been the better horse, and is probably the better horse. But he got beat fair and square today."

I believe that notion will persist in voter's minds.

> There's no question that Apex delivered the best race of the year. We'll find out soon if he was deemed also to have delivered the best season.

Not having won a race all year in a snake-bitten season until Oct. 8, I don't think Diabolic Hill can win the year-long award in a span of less than one month, but he did finish hot. Following an overnight win at Harrah's Philadelphia in early October, he broke through in his Breeders Crown elimination (over Apex) and then won the final (over Nix Nacken), before finishing up with a win in the Matron at Dover. An honorable mention can be given as well to Inexpressable, a winner of the Yonkers Trot as well as the $300,000 Earl Beal final (over Diabolic Hill).

There's no question that Apex delivered the best race of the year. We'll find out soon if he was deemed also to have delivered the best season.

USHWA makes Marcus Melander unanimous choice for Trainer of the Year

by U.S. Harness Writers Association

There was no debate, no split decision, and no question about who deserved the honor. Marcus Melander was unanimously voted the 2026 Dan Patch Trainer of the Year by the U.S. Harness Writers Association (USHWA), capping an extraordinary season in which his stable reached the pinnacle of harness racing and delivered one of the most remarkable campaigns of his career.

For the annual Dan Patch Awards given to humans, the chapters of USHWA send in their various nominees, and balloting is conducted among eligible voters of its 180 members, plus a select group of racing secretaries. This year, every chapter sending in a Trainer nomination selected Melander, and so no further balloting was needed.

Melander, 34, put together an exceptional 2026 campaign, surpassing $12 million in stable earnings, ranking second among all North American trainers. His stable averaged an impressive $17,737 in earnings per start, reflecting the remarkable consistency and success of his horses throughout the season.

Melander's accomplishments this season were highlighted by victories in two million-dollar events, the Hambletonian and International Trot. He also made history by becoming just the fourth trainer to sweep the Hambletonian and Hambletonian Oaks in the same year, joining an exclusive group to accomplish one of the sport's most difficult feats.

His success continued across North America's premier trotting events, capturing three Breeders Crown championships, the Kentucky Futurity, Maple Leaf Trot, and Canadian Trotting Classic.

This past year, his roughly 85-head stable included world champion and potential Horse of the Year Super Chapter, Hambletonian victor Apex (his first Hambletonian champ), Kentucky Futurity winner Nix Nacken, Breeders Crown and Hambletonian Oaks victress Nezuko Kamado S, and Valley Victory winner Command Center. Five of the top 10 richest trotters this season reside in Melander's shed row.

A native of Sweden, Melander has established himself among North America's leading trainers since launching his career in the United States. He was recognized with the USHWA Rising Star Award in 2018 before earning his first USHWA Trainer of the Year Award in 2019.

Claus Andersen

Marcus Melander is the unanimous choice for 2026 Dan Patch Trainer of the Year.

Melander will be formally recognized at the 2027 Dan Patch Awards banquet, presented by Caesars Entertainment, which honors the best of harness racing, both human and equine. The banquet will be held on February 21, 2027, at the Rosen Shingle Creek Resort in Orlando, FL.

USHWA is the leading organization of communicators covering the standardbred horse. USHWA conducts the official annual balloting for the sport's most prestigious honors, including selection for the Hall of Fame and Communicators Hall of Fame, as well as the selection of Horse of the Year, Trotter and Pacer of the Year and divisional champions, along with the outstanding human participants. Each year, USHWA hosts the Dan Patch Awards banquet, the Association's principal fundraising event, honoring the best and brightest performers in North American harness racing.

Loucasso (Seaton Grima) winning the $1.5 million TAB Eureka at Menangle on Saturday.

THE DOWN UNDER DIARY

with ADAM HAMILTON

Loucasso paints stunner in $1.5 million B Eureka

by Adam Hamilton

Simply, it was one of the most stunning performances Down Under has ever seen.

Loucasso's unbelievable win in the world's richest pacing race, the $1.5 million TAB Eureka on Saturday (Nov. 21) at Menangle, smashed the record books and the clocks.

After taking charge of his young trainer/driver Seaton Grima through the middle stages of the 2,300-meter race, Loucasso somehow just kept going and demolished an outstanding field.

His 1:49.6 obliterated the world record for any older pacer in a race between 2,000-2,400 meters. It took 0.7 seconds off the record Captains Mistress set in the Group 1 Rising Sun over 2,138 meters on July 4, this year.

More significantly, it took 0.9 seconds off the world mark 4-year-old Don Hugo set in winning the 2024 Inter Dominion final at Menangle.

And Loucasso is just 3.

The son of Sweet Lou became the first 3-year-old to beat the 4-year-olds and win the TAB Eureka.

And 23-year-old Grima became the youngest trainer or driver to win the race in its stunning four-year history.

Onlookers, old and young, were gobsmacked that Loucasso was able to keep going after bursting away with at least a 20-meter lead through the middle stages.

Grima admitted he was, too.

"I was scared, very scared because he just took charge of me," Grima said. "I had to go with him, not fight him.

"Of course, you keep thinking they've got to get tired, but every time I asked him, he'd just find more.

"The big test was when Soho Charmer came at him in the home straight and he still gave me another gear then.

"I've been saying for months this horse is a freak and it was there for everyone to see tonight."

Loucasso's splits of the last mile were nuts at :27.2, :26.5, :27.4 and :28.1.

That's an unthinkable :53.7 split from the 1,600 to 800 meters.

At 3, he captured the $455,100 Canadian Trotting Derby, the $125,000 Stanley Dancer Memorial in his record 1:51 and several New York Sire Stakes legs, while finishing third in the $200,000 New York Sire Stakes Final. He retired to stud with a career bankroll of more than $738,000.

By the great Chapter Seven, his dam is multiple stakes winner Swinging Royalty 3,1:54.1 ($255,880), dam of four $200,000+ winners. Pacepix/Club Menangle Loucasso's TAB Eureka triumph set off fireworks at Menangle.

"I said to some friends going into the race he could be the next Leap To Fame, this horse," Grima said. "He can do anything."

Grima, who ditched a cabinet making apprenticeship a few years back to pursue his dream of training and driving, walked to a private part of the track in the moments after the win and burst into tears.

"You've got no idea how much this means," he said. "The owners backed a young guy like me who had never won a Group 1 race with such a special horse for a huge race like this. I can't thank them enough.

"It's not just how big the race was, but the value it makes him as a future stallion, too.

"I was blown away at how good he was from the first time I worked him and he's just kept getting better and better."

Many queried Grima's decision to race Loucasso so often and hard in the lead-up with six wins from as many starts and all in scorching times.

"He's an amazing athlete and he needed to be ready for a really tough 2,300 meters like this," he said.

"I just trained him to how he was coping with it all. He's such a great doer.

"It was always going to be his biggest test and he needed to be rock hard fit for it."

Loucasso's win was his 14th from 16 starts and took his earnings to almost $1.3 million.

Rival drivers were left in awe of the winner.

"I couldn't ask any more from my guy [runner-up Soho Charmer], he went super, but we were beaten by a generational young horse who produced one of the biggest runs you'd ever seen," Mick Stanley said.

Mark Pitt, who sat behind Loucasso throughout and finished fifth on Bettor Beach, added, "I can't recall a race like that where we've literally gone flat chat the whole way. It's incredible."

Grima said Loucasso would now have a break and aim even higher.

"The Miracle Mile is the race we want next," he said.

That means stepping into the ultimate big league against Down Under champions Leap To Fame and Captains Mistress.

"He can have a few richly deserved weeks off then we'll come back and go for the Chariots Of Fire and Miracle Mile [in March]," he said.

"I'll need the break, too. It's been a heck of a build-up and you can't help but feel the pressure with a hot favorite like him."

Loucasso gave newly formed breeding and racing group Rampant Standardbreds a huge thrill too. They used their TAB Eureka slot to be the first to secure a runner almost three months ago.

And an army of Loucasso's owners joined the celebrations through syndicators Aaron Bain Racing and Summit Bloodstock.

> "I said to some friends going into the [TAB Eureka] he [Loucasso] could be the next Leap To Fame, this horse. He can do anything."

NYACK WINS GROUP 1 LEN SMITH MILE

Brilliant pacer Nyack revived memories of the great Beautide when he broke through for a richly deserved biggest win of his career in last night's $150,000 Group 1 Len Smith Mile at Menangle.

Beautide gave Tasmania's iconic Rattray clan their greatest moments in the game with his successive Sydney Inter Dominion final wins at Menangle in 2014 and '15.

For two years trainer/driver James Rattray has been saying Nyack has "Beautide-like" potential and he has really started to deliver in 2026.

It started with his fantastic third to champions Captains Mistress and Leap To Fame in the Brisbane Inter Dominion final on July 18.

Showing it was no fluke, Nyack then ran a fantastic second to Captains Mistress in last month's Group1 Victoria Cup.

His gate speed has always been his most lethal weapon and that's what won it for him last night.

Rattray blasted Nyack across the field from a wide draw [gate 7] and then took a seat behind Dangerous before getting an inside run halfway down the home straight.

Despite some scorching early splits, Nyack exploded through the gap and scored by four meters in a career-best 1:47.9 mile.

Former New Zealand and Victoria Cup winner Kingman ran a fantastic second while rising 11-year-old marvel Max Delight ran another booming run for third from an outside draw.

"He so deserved that," Rattray said. "It was not having Leap To Fame and Captains Mistress to deal with tonight, but racing them has made him better."

Now it's decision time and quickly.

Rattray has to choose between taking on Leap To Fame again the $250,000 Group 1 Blacks A Fake at Albion Park or returning to his home state of Tasmania for two feature races next month.

> — Seaton Grima

"It's a tough one," he said. "Tassie gives us two options and they'll be easier, but he won so well tonight. We'll let the dust settle and make a decision in the next couple of days."

The Tasmanian options are the $50,000 Hobart Pacing Cup on Dec. 5 and the $150,000 Group 1 Tasmanian Cup on Dec. 19.

Nyack's win was his 25th from 75 starts and he has now banked almost $600,000.

Trainer/driver Luke McCarthy confirmed Kingman would head to Brisbane for the Blacks A Fake.

CAPTAINS MISTRESS GETS EIGHTH GROUP 1 IN CHRISTIAN CULLEN

Wonder mare Captains Mistress capped a phenomenal 2026 with another Group 1 win at Addington last Friday.

The $100,000 Christian Cullen gave her a remarkable eighth Group 1 win for the year.

She has raced 18 times this season for 17 wins and a luckless fifth in the Miracle Mile back in March.

Captains Mistress has earned a short break before chasing a $1 million bonus at Victoria's Summer of Glory.

Last month's Group 1 Victoria Cup win gave her the first of four compulsory "qualifying" wins.

Her next target is the Bendigo Cup on Jan. 9 then the Ballarat and Cranbourne Cups on Jan. 23 and 30.

She will be a commanding favorite in all three and if she wins them, she will go into the $250,000 Group 1 Hunter Cup on Feb. 13 with the bonus on offer should she win.

LEAP TO FAME AIMED FOR BLACKS A FAKE

The great Leap To Fame has freshened up well after his New Zealand raid and will chase an unprecedented 18th Group 1 win in the Blacks A Fake.

Trainer/driver Grant Dixon said he was "90 per cent unlikely" the champion pacer would run before that in next Saturday night's $75,000 Sunshine Sprint.

This will be Leap To Fame's fourth crack at the Blacks A Fake where he boasts a win and two fantastic seconds.

He will then have a freshen-up before a probable two-race Victoria raid in late January/early February, mainly focused on the Hunter Cup.

TALES FROM THE CURMUDGEON

with MURRAY BROWN

Dr. Moira Gunn's journey in harness racing, Part 1

by Murray Brown

Three countries, chronologically, the United States of America, United Kingdom, and Canada, might lay claim to Dr. Moira Gunn.

Each of them would certainly be legitimate in doing so.

She was born in Connecticut to Scottish immigrant parents.

She grew up in a very horse friendly environment in the United Kingdom, attending University and graduating from the University of Edinburgh veterinary school.

It was in the United States where she had her first job as an equine veterinarian.

It was in Canada however, where she, in effect, earned her spurs and spent the majority of her working life.

"Both my parents were from Scotland," she said. "My father was a fighter pilot in World War II. After the war, the economy in the UK was extremely difficult. They decided to emigrate to the United States. After landing at Ellis Island, they first moved to Brooklyn and then to Connecticut, followed by Dallas."

It was in the States that their three daughters were born. Wanting their daughters to have the benefit of a university education, they moved back to Scotland where that road economically was more affordable.

"I can't remember a time in my entire life where horses and being around them was not a big part of it," Gunn said. "I was riding horses from the age of 4. I loved them and wanted to always be involved with and around them. I decided that I wanted to become an equine veterinarian.

"I attended and graduated from the University of Edinburgh's school of veterinary medicine. Horses, most specifically thoroughbreds had become the biggest part of my life. Back then, I doubt that I even knew of the existence of the standardbred."

the biggest part of my life. Back then, I doubt that I even knew of the existence of the standardbred."

Gunn then had the opportunity to go to Canada and participate in a one-year internship at the University of Guelph.

"I ended up staying three years and completing a surgical residency specializing in large animals," she said. "While at Guelph, I was offered the opportunity to come to work at Belmont Racetrack alongside Dr. Carl Juul-Neilson. At the time, I believe I was the only the second female vet working at a major racetrack. I stayed there for three years."

Gunn then met her future husband Dr. Michael Colterjohn, who died in 2012.

"Mike had moved back to Canada and was in the midst of setting up his own practice there," she said. "Ironically, his practice specialized in standardbreds. I had returned to Canada with no specific plan in mind. I had seen where the Armstrong Brothers Farm were looking for a resident veterinarian. Mike and I were at the 1987 Harrisburg sale when I first met the man who was to become my lifelong mentor, Dr. Glen Brown."

Brown was the farm manager at Armstrong Brothers and had been there virtually from the farm's inception.

"I introduced myself and told him I was interested in the open position," Gunn said. "As was always the case at the big sales, Dr. Brown was quite busy. He basically told me to fill in the application and we would go on from there. I did just that and landed the job. I needed a visa to come to work in Canada, having the Armbro job secured it for me.

"I began working at Armstrong Brothers in 1988 and stayed there as 'the last man standing' until the farm's dissolution in 2005. Ironically, here I was a thoroughbred gal going to work at Canada's top standardbred farm, while my husband Dr. Michael Colterjohn, a lifetime standardbred guy had become the manager of Gardiner Farms, which together with Windfields Farm, was one of Canada's two leading thoroughbred breeding farms."

Steve Cross, Mike McDaniel enshrined in IHRA Hall of Fame

by James Platz

Announcer Steve Cross, lobbyist Mike McDaniel, and thoroughbred trainer Joe Davis were inducted into the Indiana Horse Racing Association, Inc. (IHRA) Hall of Fame Monday (Nov. 16), during ceremonies held at Harrah's Hoosier Park in Anderson.

Cross, a Middlebury, IN native, served as the voice of Hoosier Park for 23 seasons, from 1998 through 2020. At the time, Hoosier Park was a dual-breed facility, giving Cross the opportunity to call not only standardbreds, but also thoroughbreds and quarter horses. He called the Indiana Derby, Indiana's top thoroughbred event, until 2013, when Hoosier Park switched to standardbred-only and the race moved to Horseshoe Indianapolis. During his tenure, Cross delivered memorable race calls for what are now Hoosier Park's top graded stakes including the Dan Patch Stakes and Centaur Trotting Classic. He also voiced the Breeders Crown championships in 2017 and 2020.

Prior to his time at Hoosier Park, Cross served as announcer at Raceway Park, Scioto Downs, and Pompano Park. He also called races at the Delaware County Fair during Little Brown Jug week. Today, he calls races at The Red Mile, Cumberland Run, and various fairs in the Midwest.

Away from the racetrack, Cross was heavily involved in standardbred auctions, starting as a pedigree reader. He took on the duties of sale manager with the upstart Indiana

Standardbred Select Sale before joining forces with Carl Becker at the Hoosier Classic Yearling Sale, holding the same title. Cross served as sale manager for Hoosier Classic through 2024, when it was sold and rebranded as the Midwest Standardbred Horse Sale. He continues to serve as sale manager of the Buckeye Classic Sale, an auction conducted annually in Springfield, OH, since its inception 12 years ago.

Cross was inducted Monday by his brother, trainer Jay Cross, a 2023 IHRA Hall of Fame inductee.

McDaniel may not be a household name to horsemen in the Hoosier State, but his influence in policymaking aimed at helping the industry is unmistakable. Over the course of his 53-year political career, McDaniel held various positions in local and state government, including Indiana Republican State Chair. In 2010, he joined the Indiana Standardbred Association as lobbyist, and he served the industry in that position until his retirement in May 2026.

McDaniel became a fan of standardbred racing in the late 1970s when one of his mentors, L. Keith Bulen, invited him to tag along on trips to see Bulen's superstar pacer, Abercrombie, compete. The experience of following the 1978 Horse of the Year reinforced the importance of an industry the Muncie, IN native would later fight for within the hallways of the statehouse. Through McDaniel's actions and continual collaboration with legislators, funding to the industry — standardbred, thoroughbred, and quarter horse racing — was stabilized and safeguarded.

Davis, president of the Indiana Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (INHBPA), has amassed more than 850 training wins and $12 million in purses since launching his own thoroughbred stable in 1987. Born and raised near Petersburg, IN, he has made an impact both on and off the track. For the last 14 years he has led the INHBPA, providing valuable leadership to the state's thoroughbred racing program.

Davis, currently in his fifth term, will continue to serve Indiana's thoroughbred community through the end of 2027, at which time he will retire to Florida with his wife, Fay.

Cross, McDaniel, and Davis join 30 past IHRA Hall of Fame inductees, including harness racing participants Lawrence Borst, Ralph Wilfong, Lynn Wilfong, Harold Barnes, Howard Peterson, Ernie Gaskin, Don Eash, Joe Putnam, Jay Cross, Ellen Taylor, Gary Wilcox, and Rick Moore. Portraits of each inductee are on display in the mezzanine at Horseshoe Indianapolis in Shelbyville, IN.

ADVENTURES IN ILLINOIS

Highland Holdings pursues Hawthorne OTB franchises

by Neil Milbert

> There is no process available to obtain a 2027 thoroughbred racing license but a harness racing license could be pursued with the OTB licenses moved as a result.

Although Hawthorne Race Course has ceased to exist as a racetrack it retains off-track betting franchises and they are up for grabs.

If nothing happens, they will go out of business on Jan. 1.

Bids of at least $3,215,000 are due on Monday (Nov. 23) on the real estate that is the site of an OTB location in the Chicago suburb of Crestview, leased OTB outlets, and any other assets that remain following the $90 million sale of the track for real estate development that closed the first week in September.

The $90 million falls light years short of the amount that Hawthorne owes its multitude of creditors.

If needed, an auction will be held on Tuesday (Dec. 1); Friday (Dec. 4) is the sale objection deadline; and a sale hearing is scheduled for Thursday (Dec. 10). Any transaction must be approved by the Illinois Racing Board by Thursday (Dec. 31). The board's last scheduled meeting for 2026 is on Wednesday (Dec. 16).

Highland Holdings, a Highland Mills, NY entity that oversees a portfolio of gaming and commercial real estate companies, earlier this month filed a $3 million stalking horse bid.

The bid calls for the sale of the property and assets to three entities: 13148 Rivercrest Crestwood LLC, Highland Downs, LLC, and Crestwood Downs, LLC with $2.9 million going to the real estate property and $100 million to the business assets.

Jeffery Rehberger, chief executive officer of these three entities, said he was told by the Racing Board that there is no process available to obtain a 2027 thoroughbred racing license but a harness racing license could be pursued with the OTB licenses moved as a result.

According to Rehberger, Hawthorne president Tim Carey, Hawthorne Race Course gaming CEO Kevin Kline, and members of the Carey family that owned and operated the track would neither hold equity nor receive equity if the deal is finalized.

Hawthorne Race Course was the thoroughbred license holder, its affiliate Suburban Downs conducted the harness meeting, the Carey family heirs owned the 119-acre site of the track and Post Time Catering was the affiliate with the food and beverage license.

Hawthorne was owned by the Carey family for 134 years and was the last surviving racetrack in the Chicago metropolitan area that once had seven that were flourishing. After being solely a thoroughbred track, it added the Suburban Downs meeting in 1970 and, with some interruptions, conducted harness racing through 2025.

This is the first year since 1945 — the year before pari-mutuel harness racing was legalized in Illinois at Maywood Park — that there have been no meetings in the state (except for the usual brief late summer programs at the State Fairs at Springfield and DuQuoin).

Fourteen programs scheduled for January and February were canceled because of Hawthorne's inability to pay purses. The track declared bankruptcy on Feb. 27 and the meeting scheduled for Nov. 26-Dec. 27 will not be held because of its sale to a non-racing entity.

After the Illinois legislature allowed tracks to incorporate casino gambling Hawthorne applied for and received a license from the Illinois Gaming Board in 2020 and the demolition process to convert it into a proposed $400 million racino began.

But then the process was halted and, despite yearly assurances by Carey in appearances before the Racing Board that "we're right on the cusp," the racino never became reality, leaving an eyesore in the seating area and liens by unpaid contractors.

Several other elements involving the OTB franchise bid by Highland Holdings are in the mix.

Churchill Downs, Inc. filed a limited objection on Nov. 16, stating that it supports the sale but opposes any distribution to another creditor unless its own lien for unpaid simulcast revenue is paid. As of now, Hawthorne has paid $600,000 of the $1,641,371.03 claim.

Woodbine Entertainment, the New York Racing Association, Meadowlands Racing and Entertainment, and Saratoga Harness Racing are other former simulcast partners that have claims.

The Illinois Harness Horsemen's Association (IHHA), the Illinois Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association (ITHA), contractors, and unions are also on the long list of entities owed significant amounts of money.

IHHA executive director Tony Somone is holding out hope that one of four groups that want to build a racino in south suburban Chicago and are seeking 2027 standardbred dates will be successful.

Acting on behalf of Highland Holdings, Rehberger is the latest to contact the organization in regard to its proposal. The others expressing an interest are Larry Lucas, Claude Jones, and a group headed by former ITHA president Mike Campbell and Ron Awsumb.

None of the groups said a racino would be ready by 2027 but all said they would work with the Illinois Department of Agriculture to have an extended pari-mutuel meeting at either Springfield or DuQuoin next year.

FINISH LINES: The ITHA this month finalized an award of $700,000 in financial assistance for thoroughbred owners, trainers, and backstretch workers impacted by Hawthorne's financial turmoil. The thoroughbred meeting that was to run through Nov. 1 began three weeks later than scheduled on April 19 and ended prematurely on July 19.

Of this amount $350,000 is being distributed by the Illinois Backstretch Foundation Assistance Program to help grooms, assistant trainers, hot-walkers, exercise riders, and other backstretch workers affected by Hawthorne's closure. The other $350,000 is going to owners and trainers who participated in the shortened meeting.

"While no amount of financial assistance can fully compensate for the hardships caused by Hawthorne's closure these funds will provide a measure of relief to the people who invested their time, labor, and finances in keeping Illinois thoroughbred racing alive," a post on the ITHA web-site stated.

ALL OVER ONTARIO

with MATTHEW LOMON

Harness racing is in the fabric of Louis Gregg's life

by Matthew Lomon

Whether it was the Clydesdales bred by his father or the standardbreds trained by his mother, horses have forever been a part of Louis Gregg's story.

He just needed time to cast them as central characters.

"I've always had a horse background," Gregg said. "I've always helped my mom [Vicki Gregg] in the barn, but I never really got interested until after college."

Louis, who studied carpentry at Georgian College, had obtained his equine education long before his post-secondary one.

Rather than textbooks and lectures, Louis honed his horsemanship through hands-on lessons from those closest to him.

"It's a whole family thing for us," he said. "My brother [Clark Gregg] owns a chunk of a pacing mare we have, and my dad [Barry Gregg] is always around – he's the one who taught me how to break horses.

"On my mom's side of the family are the Walkers: Larry, Paul, and Bob, they've been in the business for eons. My grandma, Jean Thibaudeau, was their sister. My grandpa on my mom's side [Pete Thibaudeau] was always around too. He passed away in the spring of 2024, but I learned a lot from him, including shoeing, too."

Equipped with generations' worth of knowledge and skill, Louis' first opportunity to apply his newfound expertise came in an ownership capacity alongside his mother, and perhaps greatest influence.

"My mom taught me everything I know, so I owe most of my, if you can call it success, to her," he said.

"We owned a trotting horse, Twofourroadie. He never really raced until he was about 5. He had some soundness issues that we had to take care of beforehand, but when he started racing at Mohawk a little bit, we had some luck and he's what really drew me into it."

While buoyed by the success of their veteran gelding, there was another horse — also bred by Louis' aunt and uncle Lori and Jeff Thompson — that he credits for fueling his passion for the sport.

> "I've always had a job outside of harness racing and I probably always will, but [my cousin] Jason knows how much I love my job with him and my job in racing, so he's really flexible with me and my racing schedule. This sport is in my blood, and now, I'm hooked."
> — Louis Gregg

"They had another horse named Mach Code," Louis said. "My uncle had shoulder surgery, so when their horse was racing at Mohawk, I got to go warm him up and paddock him. Those are the two horses that got me into it."

Feeling inspired, Louis took his involvement to the next level in 2020, obtaining his trainer's license.

He didn't have to wait long, or at all for that matter, for his ambition to be rewarded.

On July 19, 2020 at Georgian Downs, Louis sent out then 3-year-old pacer Carsons Kennedy, who, in the very first start with Louis' name down as trainer, delivered his first career win.

"It was nice to get the monkey off my back early," he said of the milestone victory with James MacDonald in the race bike, adding with a laugh, "James, he's the king, so for him to be driving for us, that was a little nerve-wracking, but pretty cool at the same time... His career really took off after that win."

It's a highlight that best lives on in his memory – and on YouTube.

"We never got a win picture because Georgian wasn't doing pictures because of COVID," Louis said. "When James came off the track he said, 'You'll probably be the first one to get your first training win in your first start, and there'll be no photo evidence...' At least the replay's still up."

With one major first out of the way, Louis endeavored for another after obtaining his driver's license two years later.

However, the learning curve was slightly steeper this time around.

> "My career year was like a slow weekend for Dexter Dunn."
> — Louis Gregg

"I drove a little bit when I first got my license, and it was quite humbling to be honest," he said. "My first drive was with Carsons Shadow. He's a nice little horse that my mom had for Dave Carson, who bred and owned Carsons Kennedy. I just didn't do any good."

While frustrating in the moment, Louis' developmental year was integral to his long-term outlook.

"The following summer of 2023, I started driving a wee bit for other people — some friends of ours gave me a shot — and I was hooked," he said. "There's no better feeling than doing well with somebody's horse. You made their day or their week, you know?

"It's rewarding when you do well for people. Owners, trainers, and grooms, they put so much time, money, and effort into every horse every week, the least I can do is put my best effort in for two minutes."

Louis' ascent, which he credited to his mom and the late Randy Rier, gained legs on May 28, 2023 at Clinton Raceway, where he recorded his first driving win.

"I remember it like it was yesterday," Louis said of the 1¼-length triumph with veteran pacing mare Charmbo Brie.

"I drove her the week before and finished second. At the time, we were stabled beside Randy Rier at Hanover, so he let me drive her. I remember when he first brought her in, she was a homebred of his, and I liked her right from the get-go.

"When I got my license, I was able to drive her when she was an aged mare. In the race I won, she was just in a class that fit her, she had a good post position, and the trip worked out well."

The pair may have been a clear winner, but Louis wasn't ready to declare victory too soon.

"I only knew we had it as soon as we crossed the wire," he said, adding with a laugh, "I'd have to get the replay out, but I don't imagine I looked too professional coming down the lane."

Louis' racing career, primarily as a driver, has produced countless memorable moments since then, particularly over the last two seasons.

The Cargill, ON-based reinsman enjoyed a banner year in 2025, achieving personal bests across the board.

Though Louis, who registered a 15-28-29 line and over $151,000 in purse earnings from 239 starts, isn't one to take a victory lap.

"I just had nice horses to drive and nice people to drive for," he said. I think that's what it all comes down to. I make mistakes, and I always will, but it worked out."

He added with a laugh, "My career year was like a slow weekend for Dexter Dunn."

Don't mistake Louis' self-deprecating demeanor for a lack of pride, as it is anything but.

His confidence heading into the 2025 campaign was at an all-time high after capturing the City of London final for trotting fillies with Kaylas Incharge — a horse whom he shares ownership with his mom and good friend Jim Dale — on May 30 at The Raceway at Western Fair.

That signature score, coupled with the steady presence of stalwart trotting mare Rocks Shadow, defined Louis' breakthrough season.

"My mom trained her, and I owned her with Jim – if it wasn't for him, we never would have gotten Rocks Shadow," Louis said. "She had a great year. Those two mares were integral parts of everything we did last year."

Louis' collection of highlights continued to grow this season after he piloted Look A Diamond to an Ontario Sires Stakes Grassroots series win for longtime family friends Peter and Melissa Hamilton on July 11 at Hanover Raceway.

"When I came back to the winner's circle, the smile on their faces was just a reminder of why I drive," he said. "The money's nice, but it's the people, and that was the highlight of this year, that's for sure."

Between a life in racing and a nine-to-five job at his cousin Jason Gregg's custom fabrication shop, JW Custom Fab, Louis acknowledged that his personal life has taken something of a backseat.

But what some may view as a burden, he sees as a privilege.

"I don't get out much just because I'm so committed, but you have to be if you want to be successful," Louis said. "I've always had a job outside of harness racing and I probably always will, but Jason knows how much I love my job with him and my job in racing, so he's really flexible with me and my racing schedule.

"This sport is in my blood, and now, I'm hooked."

Money management makes the pari-mutuel world go 'round, Part 6

by Frank Cotolo

Part 1 is here.

Part 2 is here.

Part 3 is here.

Part 4 is here.

Part 5 is here.

Truman Capote said, "Mistakes are what make people interesting."

Of course, mistakes are not always that frivolous. Mistakes often describe being self-destructive and counter-productive. In that respect there are many mistakes that make pari-mutuel bettors interesting by any definition. After all, the competition is combative; bettors in all races are out to win the money of others bettors in any betting pool.

The biggest mistake that makes most pari-mutuel bettors interesting is how and where they use their bankrolls to wager. It is ages after the thrilling exacta pool appeared and became so popular it gave birth to the triple and the superfecta and the Pick-6-and-up pools, etcetera. Big payoffs launched a lottery-mentality for a betting public which invited the rich and richer to play pari-mutuel exotic pools with a big edge of financial ammunition.

Among the interesting gamblers were the few taking advantage of being comfortable with math and the discipline of being professional pari-mutuel players. These few want to get paid for their work because that is the definition of a professional: One engaged in a profession as a means of livelihood.

That is why the professional approach to money management (MM) means concentrating a bankroll on either win, place or show bets. Any exotic wager must have its own devoted bankroll.

"Just betting to win," a professional pari-mutuel bettor told me, "you cannot expect better than a 3-per cent return on win bets in the long run. Adding complex results to any bets other than win, place or show using a single bankroll is asking for trouble."

I learned that advice the easy way; I believed him and tested it one season at a Hollywood Park thoroughbred meet. I reviewed a bad streak of losing exactas using a single bankroll and discovered that I was losing a large percentage of bets on six-furlong dirt claiming events. While doing the research (another great reason to keep records — see that series if you have not already — I discovered that I was excelling in win bets on turf sprints and routes. By a lot. Like 20 cents on every dollar wagered.

I altered my course of betting by devoting my win bankroll to making win bets on turf-races, sprints and routes. I watched and took notes on all other races I handicapped for the second half of that meeting. This is one of those situations where the proverbial men are separated from the proverbial boys.

You may not know how easy it can be to pass betting any races when you are confident about the specific races you play because the odds are on your side. I did nothing different when handicapping the turf races and I did not become over confident about my new-found fortune. I passed all the dirt races and my winning percentage soared to 70 cents on the dollar.

I was at ease for many reasons. For one, there were not near as many turf races as dirt races. That allowed me to increase my bet per race. For two, I never let losses interfere with the joy of the profits and the meaninglessness of the losses. For three, the betting campaign was finite. The meet was almost over and I was guaranteed a good deal higher than the three per cent accepted per my pro-gambler data.

I met another fella who was targeting his bankroll on talents he had for handicapping particular types of races. Let me call him Carl. He had a penchant for maiden races and his records showed that talent helped him handicap maiden races with accuracy. All classes of maiden races.

> "Just betting to win, you cannot expect better than a 3-per cent return on win bets in the long run. Adding complex results to any bets other than win, place or show using a single bankroll is asking for trouble."
> — professional pari-mutuel bettor

Among the interesting gamblers were the few taking advantage of being comfortable with math and the discipline of being professional pari-mutuel players. These few want to get paid for their work because that is the definition of a professional: One engaged in a profession as a means of livelihood.

"But I tell you," Carl said to me, "I murder first-time starter races."

"What is the focus?" I said.

"Breeding and workouts and of course the short distances," he said. "I keep my own breeding records. Not just sires. Mares, too. Cumulative if the sires are aging. I rate all the data and write my own odds line."

I saw his bets move the tote board more than a few times and watched him pass races he could have won but did not play based on what odds he demanded to play at all. His allegiance to his bankroll and emphasis on the races he handicapped best impressed me enough to assure I was not dealing with a magical gift of luck with my turf-race exclusivity.

A few other people I met along the way, at thoroughbred meets and harness-racing meets, profited while behaving with similar strengths and concentration and serious intentions as pari-mutuel gamblers. I became one of that exclusive bunch and I was encouraged and confident to bet big along with a sturdy MM chart dictating how much I should play to win only in relation to my assigned odds.

As for the essential elements of betting amounts and volumes, my next Among Ourselves column or two will address them as best I can from what I learned from those influences.

CHAPTER 15

Triangulations

At the insistence of minority partner, Alex Pettigrew, the four owners of the trotting filly, Assets Accepted, held a group video chat at three in the afternoon on Thursday. It was now two minutes after three.

The background of Peter's screen was a plywood wall of his converted stall. Adele and Doreen shared their screen box. Behind their faces was a light blue wall with a framed picture of an ancient castle. An empty blank square waited for Alex to log on; this allowed the ladies and Peter time to chat.

Peter smiled. "I always get the feeling that you two ladies enjoy this situation way too much. You probably have a glass of wine and set up snacks out of camera range."

"We do!" said Adele.

"Absolutely, today it's brownies and wine coolers for the replay of the Alex Show."

"You need to be careful. He's crazy."

"Your cousin is amazingly relentless."

"And creative."

Suddenly, Alex's scowl appeared. His background was a rumpled hotel bed and the open door to a sad bathroom. He was wearing a yellow T-shirt, a two-day beard, and his comb-over went up instead of over. His right arm was in a sling. He looked more like a guy who had wrestled an alligator than a smooth operator.

Adele asked, "What happened to your arm?"

"It's not my arm." He lifted his hand to show his ring finger taped to his little finger with a splint that looked like a popsicle stick.

"Car door," he lied.

He did not bother with small talk. "That friggin racehorse has to be liquidated immediately, or I can't be responsible for what happens next."

Doreen answered first. "Oh my, that sounds like a scene from The Godfather, you know the one with the horse head in the bed."

Then the echo from Adele, "Or Goodfellas, with Joe Pesci." She imitated the gangster, "Do I amuse you, like, am I a clown?"

"ENOUGH. I'm done screwing around. This isn't cute. This isn't a game. I need money, and I need it fast."

Peter intervened. "Alex, we started with a fair offer for your share."

"Not enough."

Adele said, "After deliberation and a tie-breaking vote by your cousin, we reluctantly increased the offer."

"You're sandbagging me. We had an offer for $160,000."

Peter spoke slowly and clearly. "That offer was when she was eligible for the big race. We turned it down."

"YOU turned it down, not me. I have a bundle invested in that filly. If she dies, I get a lot more than that - I want fifty. I need fifty."

Peter continued. "That's crazy; that makes the horse worth $200,000 - and by the way, if anything happens to the horse, you won't get a dime, and you will get jail time."

Adele was back at the wheel. "Oh, Peter, what a wonderful rhyme."

Alex lowered his tone. "How about this idea? We put the filly on an online auction site. We put her up today. We let the market determine the value. You three can buy her back?"

Doreen replied. "Peter, what do you think?"

"No. Three reasons. One, if we buy her back, or if she does not reach our minimum, we still pay a percentage to an auction company. That is wasted money. Two, I'm the only person who does this for a living, and I believe she'd bring between $40,000 and $80,000. Maybe less because bidders will wonder why she is on the block. And three, I have waited a long time for a horse like this, and I want to keep her. As much as I want to get rid of Alex, my vote is no."

Alex snapped, "I need my money. I need it now. And I want my winnings from the horse right now. I'm not paying for upkeep on a horse I don't want. How much of my money are you holding?"

"A little over $6,000."

"I don't want to pay another penny on a horse that isn't even racing."

Adele broke in, "Boys, boys, calm down. I have a suggestion."

"Does it have a number?"

"Yes, $40,000."

This silenced the chat.

This time, Peter was a dissenting voice. "No way, that values the filly way over market value."

"Doreen and I have a plan under construction."

Peter said, "Whatever plan you have, $40,000 for a quarter interest in Assets Accepted is too much."

Alex perked up and piped up, "Let the lady talk."

Adele looked at Doreen, who nodded back. "Thank you, Alex." Then, she continued like a pirate captain facing a mutinous crew.

"Here is what we do. Peter, write Alex a check for $1,000 from his purse earnings as an advance to tide him over for the weekend."

"Why?" asked Peter.

"Your cousin looks a bit stressed. We will schedule a meeting on Monday at 3 p.m., during which Doreen and I will give a presentation using data backed by solid reasoning. By 3:30 p.m. on Monday, everyone will be satisfied. Any questions?"

"Why wait until Monday?" asked Alex.

Adele smiled. "It's a girl thing."

SIRE STAKES REPORT

Aeneas completes DSBF series sweep

by Bally's Dover

David Hamm and Frank Chick's Aeneas parlayed a pocket trip into the biggest win of his young career, overpowering 4-5 favorite Hawaiian Warfare in mid-stretch en route to a career-best 1:54 score in Thursday's (Nov. 19) $110,000 Delaware Standardbred Breeders' Fund (DSBF) series final for 2-year-old male pacers at Bally's Dover.

Montrell Teague sent Aeneas to the lead from post 4, and the pair rebuffed an early challenge from Blue Jay's Watchin (driven by Tony Morgan) through a :26.3 first quarter before yielding control to Hawaiian Warfare (Michael Cole) with a lap to go. After drafting in the pocket through middle splits of :55 and 1:23.4, Aeneas was poised to take aim at Hawaiian Warfare up the open stretch, and the Highalator—Sequoia Seelster gelding accelerated away to win by a widening three-quarters-of-a-length. Blue Jay's Watchin followed Aeneas up the pegs to just nab Hawaiian Warfare for second.

Jamie Sullivan trains three-time winner Aeneas, who increased his bankroll to $104,766 and paid $6.80 to win as the 2-1 second choice.

The $20,000 DSBF consolation saw Fast Pass ($5.40) and Tony Morgan mount a middle move from third and power clear of Beachalator (Brandon Givens) for a 4¾-length, 1:54.4 win, knocking two-and-two-fifths-of-a-second off his previous mark.

Trainer Michael Kimelman co-owns the Badlands Hanover—Free Admission colt with Joseph Costable.

The evening's featured race for older horses, the $25,000 open pace, saw Barbara Boese and Wendy Crissman's Wehadababyetzaboy ($2.80, Givens) find his way back to the win column after a narrow defeat last week, lifting off live cover and overpowering pacesetter Ridin The Waves (Morgan) by 1½ lengths to win in 1:50.2. Perfect Wager (Troy Beyer) finished a one-paced third after yielding for a pocket trip.

Chuck Crissman, Jr. trains the 7-year-old Sweet Lou—Camille gelding, who posted his 15th win this season and the 39th of his career.

The open win was one of three on the 14-race card for Givens, who tied for top driving honors with Tim Tetrick.

Live harness racing returns to Bally's Dover on Monday (Nov. 23); the 15-race program features the $110,000 DSBF series championship for 2-year-old trotting fillies. First post is 4:30 p.m. (EST).

'Hustle' rains on Antognoni's parade in Big M feature

It was supposed to be easy for Antognoni S in the Friday night (Nov. 20) feature at The Meadowlands, a $30,000 open handicap for trotters. In his last start two weeks ago, which came at this track in this class, he scored over Ron Burke stablemate Lexus Kody as the 3-5 public choice, and was sent to the gate as the 1-5 favorite this time around.

Apparently, Hustle Rain S failed to read the press clippings.

An Ake Svanstedt trainee who is a 7-year-old horse by Raja Mirchi—Miss Possessed, Hustle Rain S was hustled away from the gate by driver Patrick Ryder and was three-wide around the first turn before leading at the quarter in :27.4 right before Antognoni S, who was also on the go early in the eight-horse field, took over immediately thereafter.

The leader was permitted to back the second fraction down, as chalk players remained calm when the half went in :56.2. Outside The Fire was now in motion racing first-over on the rim as 5-2 second choice French Wine picked up that tow, but a rally never materialized as Outside The Fire stalled and Antognoni S hit three-quarters in 1:24.1.

As the field turned into the stretch, it was clear that Antognoni S had a problem in the form of Hustle Rain S, who popped out of the pocket at the head of the lane and chipped away at the leader's edge before collaring that foe with a little more than a sixteenth to go on the way to a safe 1¼-length win in a lifetime-best 1:51.1. Antognoni S held second with Djimon third.

"Hustle Rain came to our stable late in the season, so we've focused on developing him through overnight races," said Sarah Svanstedt. "He has continued to improve and gain confidence with every start. Tonight's victory in 1:51[.1] against some very talented competition was an impressive performance and showed us the potential we had hoped to see from him.

"Our goal has been to prepare him for stakes racing next year, and performances like tonight's make us very excited about his future. We believe there is still plenty more to come from him and are looking forward to 2027."

As the 7-1 third choice in the betting, Hustle Rain S returned $16.20 to his backers. He now has 15 wins from 49 lifetime outings, good for earnings of $422,135 for owners Tlh Racing.

A LITTLE MORE: Brad Chisholm led the driver colony with four winners on the night… All-source wagering on the 14-race card totaled $1,861,069.

Chris Coyle is Monticello-Goshen's Good Guy

Chris Coyle will be the recipient of the U.S. Harness Writers Association (USHWA) Monticello-Goshen Chapter's John Gilmour Good Guy Award at their annual awards banquet on Dec. 6 in Campbell Hall, NY, which is presented by the New York Sire Stakes, and will be dedicated to John Manzi.

Perhaps best known for his stellar work on breeding farms and the care of and preparation of standardbreds, New Hampshire native Chris Coyle got his start with trainer Earl Beatty on the backstretch stable areas of Rockingham and Foxboro at age 15.

In 1983, Hall of Famer William S. Brown offered Coyle a job prepping yearlings at Blue Chip Farm in Wallkill, NY. Over time, Coyle was promoted to foreman at Blue Chip and helped oversee the reign of such notable sires as On The Road Again, Meadow Road, Goalie Jeff, and Precious Fella, just to name a few. Coyle spent nine years at the famed New York nursery before being offered a job as director of operations for Walnridge Farm in Cream Ridge, NJ in 1992. This relationship was the catalyst that spawned one of the most memorable expeditions in harness racing history, the Niatross Tour.

"During a two-year span, 1996-97, we visited 20 different cities and racetracks each year with the horse," Coyle said. "Ellen Harvey organized the events and chronicled the experiences. It was a fabulous promotion, which was as fulfilling for me as it was for the fans. Everyone loved Niatross, he was a great hero for the sport."

In the late '90s a family matter facilitated a move down to a piece of land in North Carolina that Coyle and his wife Georgia originally purchased a decade earlier as a retirement destination. Little did he imagine that this homestead would transform him and his talents into one of the most sought after standardbred lay-up facilities on the East Coast.

Chris' Olive Branch Farm, affectionately known as the "spa to the stars," plays host to world champions and Dan Patch divisional and Horse of the Year honorees with regularity. In fact, a walk through the stables near Monroe, NC reads like a who's who in harness racing through the last several decades. Star racehorses that spent time with Chris include: Foiled Again, Sweet Lou, Mission Brief, Market Share, Atlanta, Ken Hanover, Lou's Pearlman, Hannelore Hanover, He's Watching, Royalty For Life, Crazy Wow, JK She'salady, Mr Muscleman, Louprint, Rocklamation, My Little Dragon, Major In Art, It's Academic, Dude's The Man, and the list goes on and on. Each memorialized with their own name plate that adorns the stall that they had occupied at one time or another.

Coyle is beloved by many and will be honored with the Good Guy Award when the Monticello-Goshen USHWA Chapter holds their 67th annual awards banquet, presented by the New York Sire Stakes, on Sunday (Dec. 6, 2026).

Tickets for the gala event at The Country Club at Otterkill, Campbell Hall, NY, can be reserved by contacting Shawn Wiles at 845-798-4074, or email: swiles@rwcatskills.com.

To place a congratulatory ad, or a John Manzi remembrance ad in the souvenir journal, please contact Chris Tully at 845-807-7538, or email: tullytrot@yahoo.com.
