Farber reflects on magical ride with Cool Papa Bell

Nearly six months after winning the Hambletonian, the owner is still ecstatic about the victory that helped propel his horse to sophomore trotting colt of the year honors and his conditioner, Jim Campbell, to the Trainer of the Year award.

Owner Scott Farber raising the Hambletonian trophy after his Cool Papa Bell posted an upset in the 2022 race.

Buoyed by an historic upset in the Hambletonian, the dream season for owner Scott Farber continued when it was announced at the end of December that his Cool Papa Bell is the Dan Patch winner for 3-year-old male trotters; an award that will be formally accepted in three weeks.

Owned by Farber's Runthetable Stables, Cool Papa Bell has taken his connections on an emotional ride over this past season, and it's one that Farber is still in the midst of.

"I've been riding a high since the Hambletonian, and it's been an unbelievable experience – I still haven't come down yet," said Farber. "And, I have no desire to come down yet, it's a once in a lifetime thing."

Referencing, in part, the number of Hambletonians conducted in its history, Farber said, "There's only 97 of us and when you think of how long people have been racing harness horses even going back to racing down the streets of cities – to win a race like the Hambletonian with that prestige is just a tremendous honor."

Selected by the United States Harness Writers Association (USHWA) as the top 3-year-old male trotter, Cool Papa Bell bested his closest rival in voting, Breeders Crown elimination and final winner King Of The North, by about a 2-to-1 margin.

"I'm really happy that the writers took into consideration the entire season because I truly think that from the beginning of the year to the end of the year, he was the best 3-year-old out there," said Farber. "I do think there was some cause for concern towards the end of the year that as he was burdened continually with very bad post positions that some other horses kind of came back to him a little bit. Now, I’m not so sure that anyone would have beaten King Of The North in the Breeders Crown final no matter what post position they had, but having to go four races in a row of posts 9, 9, 8 and 9 obviously made things more difficult.”

“I’m really happy that the writers took into consideration the entire season because I truly think that from the beginning of the year to the end of the year, he was the best 3-year-old out there. I do think there was some cause for concern towards the end of the year that as he was burdened continually with very bad post positions that some other horses kind of came back to him a little bit. Now, I’m not so sure that anyone would have beaten King Of The North in the Breeders Crown final no matter what post position they had, but having to go four races in a row of posts 9, 9, 8 and 9 obviously made things more difficult.”

In a sense, Cool Papa Bell achieving divisional honors gave the champion gelding some validation that he didn’t always get throughout the racing season. Just two races removed from his Hambletonian win at odds of over 50-1, Cool Papa Bell was once again a double-digit longshot – and in a state-bred restricted event no less – in the New York Sires Stakes Final at Tioga. It was a race that once again, he won.

“I’ll take it a step further,” said Farber, “[Trainer] Jimmy [Campbell] and I had to scramble to find drivers for him in a number of these races, even after he won the Hambo. I’ll tell you; I completely understand that for drivers. This is a business. But I think on some levels he didn’t always get the respect he deserved. And I knew what he was accomplishing wasn’t a fluke.

“Even before it all fell into place in the Hambo, I really do have to give Brian Sears a lot of credit. I know he had to go with Joviality (in the Hambo final), but Brian was a huge part of this horse’s development. And I can’t emphasize that enough. He drove all the way down to Harrah’s Philadelphia to go with us in just an overnight race, which is uncommon for Brian, and I’m really thankful for the guidance of him working with Jim in the development of the horse, he was very instrumental.”

In addition to Sears and of course trainer and decades-long friend Jim Campbell, who was voted Trainer of the Year, Farber notes the total team effort expands to a much larger circle of individuals.

“The horse has to go out there and do it. There’s no doubt about it. But the humans that helped him get there, so many people had a part in it,” said Farber. “Tim Tetrick and Scott Zeron both had hands in it. And I felt bad for Scott because he’s who we were going with in the Hambletonian and then he got into that accident prior to it. I have full faith in Scott Zeron. Then that accident happens and now we're scrambling again. And when you think of how all these different pieces fell into place, next thing you know it's Todd McCarthy getting on and giving the best drive I've ever seen. I think you'd have to look far and wide to find a better drive than what Todd McCarthy gave him in the Hambletonian.

"Another person who I'm happy for is Vito Cucci, who is the breeder (Belmar Racing & Breeding). I share this with him because I'm a breeder also (Farber's Runthetable Stables was nominated in 2020 by the USHWA for Breeder of the Year), and I reached out to Vito because I know how difficult it can be for a small breeder just to get to a race like this, much less win it. We share a lot of similarities and thoughts on the business as far as breeding goes and he's another that really is part of this and that shouldn't be forgotten."

Perhaps fate had been smiling on Cool Papa Bell from the start. The horse marked the first time that Farber had ever gone to six figures for a yearling when he purchased what would become Cool Papa Bell out of the 2020 Lexington Selected Yearling Sale for $100,000.

"It really is unbelievable how it all came together, and I guess I reflect more on that than anything else," said Farber. "I just feel like it was all meant to be. I can't explain it – nothing in my wildest dreams, but I'm going to continue to enjoy it. I want to be able to stretch out the races in his career for as long as I can, I really enjoy watching him race."

by Thomas Hedlund

Just as in 2022's edition of $755,000 Prix de Cornulier for trotters under saddle, Thierry Duvaldestin-trained Flamme du Goutier proved to be the best horse in the world's greatest monté race.

Flamme du Goutier was, besides two other mares, Granvillaise Bleue and Hanna des Molles, the favorite to win Prix de Cornulier 2023 and her jockey Mathieu Mottier made no mistakes in the hunt for the second win in a row in the race.

Mottier saved power throughout the road to victory and when he made a serious attack in the end of the last turn, the three top mares were the ones that battled for the prestigious win. Granvillaise Bleue seemed to get herself in an advantage position as the stretch approached, but her first kilometer three wide left its mark and instead, Flamme du Goutier sprinted with good speed on the outside. Hanna des Molles' try on the inside wasn't good enough and the title defender claimed the big win in a mile rate of 1:55 over 1.6 miles.

Granvillaise Bleue was the runner up and Hanna des Molles third.

Flamme du Goutier will continue her winter meeting just as she did last season, with a participation in Prix d'Amérique one week later and she has all possibilities to improve her result from 2022, when she finished third behind Davidson du Pont and Galius.

For the second year in a row, Flamme du Goutier (Mathieu Mottier) won the $755,000 Prix de Cornulier, the biggest race in the world for trotters under saddle.

Program for Saturday's races at Vincennes

Program for Sunday's races at Vincennes

WHAT TO EXPECT IN SUNDAY'S BIG RACE

Anyone can win, basically, when France's biggest harness racing event is held this Sunday (Jan. 29). This year's $1,075,000 Prix d'Amérique seems to be one of the most open editions of the race in many years, especially since Calgary Games disappeared from the race and Etonnant have been sick after his last performance in Paris.

Five-year-old Idao de Tillard (Severino) has become the bettors' favorite, with just a few days left before the race is held and it may seem unfair to put such a pressure on a relatively inexperienced trotter such as Idao de Tillard. On the other hand, Thierry Duvaldestin's horse has really impressed, both as a 3- and 4-year-old, and now as an older trotter. By all means, Idao de Tillard hasn't faced 17 trotters with Prix d'Amérique-status before, but the 5-year-old has made an impression in his last starts.

Still, allow us to doubt about Idao de Tillard's probable favorite position in the Prix d'Amérique. His driver, Clément Duvaldestin, makes few mistakes behind his horse. There lays a trust between horse and driver in every start they make together. But, to be fair, Clément isn't one of Vincennes' most entrusted drivers at all and to win the Prix d'Amérique, a perfect drive throughout the race will be needed.

Duvaldestin has two horses in the race: Prix de Cornulier winner Flamme du Goutier will join stablemate Idao de Tillard when the 18 horses gather for the start and Duvaldestin knows how to prepare a horse for a perfect performance in the race. Duvaldestin trained Ready Cash when he won the Prix d'Amérique in 2011 and 2012.

"There are many differences between Ready Cash and Idao de Tillard. Ready Cash was already an established star when he came to my stable, while I've shaped Idao de Tillard since he was young. For me, it means nothing that Idao de Tillard is one of the favorites on Sunday. The most important is that I do what I can to present him in as good shape as possible. Idao de Tillard is not, unlike Ready Cash, a horse that you just go out and win Prix d'Amérique with. As I see it, my horse needs a perfect trip to win the race," said Duvaldestin in an article in Swedish harness racing media Sulkysport.se.

Idao de Tillard has 18 wins in 25 start so far in his career and is absolutely a serious factor in Sunday's race, but there are 17 challengers that will be very well prepared for the task.

Italian top trainer Alessandro Gocciadoro will travel to Paris with two Prix d'Amérique contenders. Well known and well merited Vivid Wise As (Yankee Glide) will try the big race for the fourth time and he can look back at his best performance in Prix d'Amérique last year, when he finished fourth. Question marks surrounds Vivid Wise As after his last start at Vincennes in the $125,000 Prix du Bourbonnais on Dec. 11, where he made a second-rate performance and probably was reduced by sickness.

Vernissage Grif (Varenne) is Gocciadoro's second weapon in the Prix d'Amérique this year and the charismatic, chestnut colored trotter can very well post a big upset in the race. The 9-year-old Italian bred horse has shown great strength and qualities at several occasions, but Vincennes is a little bit of a mystery for him. Vernissage Grif may lack experience in racing the big track of Vincennes, even if he has tried in two of the preparation races ahead of the big event. In the $125,000 Prix de Belgique on Jan. 15, Vernissage Grif was served an inside trip by his trainer and he might have some use of the nice trip on Sunday.

A little bit from out of nowhere, Daniel Redén decided to enter the Prix d'Amérique with two horses. His 6-year-old mare Honey Mearas (Readly Express) tried Vincennes in the $215,000 Prix Tenor de Baune on Dec. 24, but she wasn't ready for that day and Redén has prepared the mare for Prix d'Amérique in the time between. Alongside Honey Mearas, Elitloppet winner Don Fanucci Zet has acted as a training buddy during the past month and something good must have happened with the 7-year-old Hard Livin son. On Thursday (Jan. 19) Daniel Redén announced that he will go for it with both horses and it's really interesting to see how he has managed to prepare Don Fanucci Zet for a task like this. His latest performance was in the Swedish Championship at Åby on Oct. 8 last year. Normally, races against these kind of competitors are needed, but Redén leaves Sweden with confidence.

"It will be a pleasant journey more than anything else. If we go home with two zeros, so be it. The world will spin on the next day regardless the outcome in the Prix d'Amérique and I feel that my horses are ready to at least enter the race with chances to grab some money if we are lucky with the trips," said Redén.

What about the horses that qualified for Prix d'Amérique via the four B-races and the two races on Christmas Eve?

Well, Hip Hop Haufor, who claimed the $125,000 Prix de Bretagne, has been carefully driven in the races afterwards and trainer Christian Bignon will probably peak his horse's form on Sunday, but still, Hip Hop Haufor will not get the bettor's trust.

The $125,000 Prix du Bourbonnais winner Hooker Berry, trained and driven by Jean-Michel Bazire, is my favorite to win the Prix d'Amérique this year. Hooker Berry tolerates tough trips if necessary and Bazire is the most merited driver in the Prix d'Amérique field. He knows how to win at Vincennes and especially when the purses are high.

Delia du Pommereux won the $125,000 Prix du Bourgogne in track record at Vincennes on Jan. 1, but the races old lady will face a tough objective on Sunday.

The $125,000 Prix de Belgique winner Horsy Dream, trained by Pierre Belloche and driven by Eric Raffin, will probably be one of the favorites, with all rights since he has impressed both in the Prix de Belgique and in his victory in the $215,000 Prix Tenor de Baune. A strong 6-year-old trotter that will be a threat to all the rest.

HRU will be back with more information about the Prix d'Amérique in Sunday's edition, where we also will report from Vincennes' Saturday race card.

Saulsbrook victor-ious

Win-streaking preferred pacer carries on family tradition.

by Melissa Keith

When one Freelon, ON-based harness racing family believed in the strength of another, it was the beginning of Saulsbrook Victor's gradual rise to the Woodbine Mohawk Park preferred. Currently on a five-race win streak at the Campbellville track, with four in a row in the top class, the Source of Pride–Atlanta Girl gelding initially failed to live up to his maternal pedigree.

"Originally, the guy we purchased him from was the breeder, Al McNeil," said Brett MacDonald, who co-owns Saulsbrook Victor with Brent MacLennan of Charlottetown, PEI.

The 5-year-old pacer is the fastest of seven racing-age foals from Atlanta Girl (p, 2, 1:57.1f; $9,864), dam of Saulsbrook Peach (p, 10, 1:51.4f; $201,840), Saulsbrook Alana (p, 4, 1:53.4h; $169,151) and Saulsbrook Jessie (p, 6, 1:52.3f; $208,140). Trained by current owner William Allan McNeil of Currys Corner, NS during her brief racing career, Atlanta Girl (Real Artist–Only the Best) won her first two qualifiers at Truro Raceway back in 2007. In her third qualifier, she was beaten by another 2-year-old: Somebeachsomewhere.

Unraced at 2, Saulsbrook Victor (p, 4, 1:49.2s; $187,288) didn't show his dam's precocious ways.

"He was having issues," said MacDonald. "Making breaks and cross-firing and stuff like that. We'd had a couple previously from the family: We had trained Saulsbrook Jesse, who's a half-sister to Victor, for [McNeil], and we had bought Saulsbrook Raven [p, 3, 1:53.2s; $84,144] privately, which was another sister, so we kind of grew fond of the family."

Trainer Ronald MacDonald, Brett's father, soon got an offer to add another Atlanta Girl offspring to the stable.

"Al [McNeil] called dad to buy Victor," said Brett. "He was having a lot of trouble with him, so we could buy him cheap, just so we could try and figure him out. It was just a fluke, because he was related to the other two [mares]—that was why we bought him.

"We bought him late in his 3-year-old year [2021]... We had him previously, a few months before qualifying. He just went on after that."

Saulsbrook Victor finished third in his debut qualifier on Sept. 15, 2021 at Grand River Raceway. He would win the next one on Sept. 21 at Flamboro Downs, before breaking his maiden in his first pari-mutuel start on Sept. 28 at Flamboro. Brett was in the sulky each time. On Oct. 22, he won his second race at Woodbine Mohawk Park, in line to catch driver Bob McClure.

Saulsbrook Victor was a work in progress for Ronald and Brett.

As the latter told HRU, "We bought him and started tinkering with stuff and he eventually got to where he raced and then he just kept getting better and better. We kept changing things and he kept getting sounder and better gaited, to the point where he's at now."

The gelding took his 3-year-old mark (1:52.3s) at Mohawk on Dec. 18, 2021, with Brett in the bike. By then, his early issues were resolved.

"He was very hot early," said Brett. "The thing with him was he used to crossfire really bad, so with him crossfiring and being so hot, it was the kind of thing where you held him together and he just kind of did it, but he always wanted to do it. That was the biggest thing: He put steps in, but he wouldn't run. He liked to keep going forward.

“I know they said [Saulsbrook Victor] was kind of one-dimensional, but it wasn’t so much that he was one-dimensional, because he was second in 1:53 in his third lifetime start, on the front at Mohawk, last half in :56 and change. But he just got to be so hot that you kind of had to race him from off the pace, to try and keep him quiet, and I think that’s what helped him out along the way. He got to be where he was versatile, like you could leave with him or take him off [the starting gate], and do whatever you wanted.”

~ Brett MacDonald

“He had the mentality of wanting to go, like he always wanted to go fast. It was just getting him to go fast when you wanted him to.”

Last season, Saulsbrook Victor made six visits to the winner’s circle, all but one of them at Mohawk. He gained a reputation as a stalker/closer, which Brett called inaccurate.

“I know they said he was kind of one-dimensional, but it wasn’t so much that he was one-dimensional, because he was second in 1:53 in his third lifetime start, on the front at Mohawk, last half in :56 and change,” said Brett. “But he just got to be so hot that you kind of had to race him from off the pace, to try and keep him quiet, and I think that’s what helped him out along the way. He got to be where he was versatile, like you could leave with him or take him off [the starting gate], and do whatever you wanted.”

Saulsbrook Victor had an autumn 2022 vacation that laid the foundation for a powerful comeback.

“We gave him five weeks off and he came back from the five weeks unbelievable,” said Brett. “The hitch to [his gait] and stuff like that, he lost that. I think it was just him getting sounder.”

Undefeated since Dec. 17 at Canada’s top track, “Victor” was finally living up to his ambitious name and bloodline.

“I think a lot of it was mental,” said Brett. “He got to where he would relax. I remember before, he would almost want to tear the wing off the starting car... It clicked mentally, and now you can do whatever you want with him. He’s at that point where [frequent driver] Austin [Sorrie] got breathers for him at Mohawk, because he’s so versatile that he just waits for you to ask him.”

Brett said he wasn’t able to watch Saulsbrook Victor in person Saturday night (Jan. 21) at Mohawk, because of his own driving commitments at Flamboro.

“I got off the track and I missed the post parade. They were just going in front of the gate when I was finally in the drivers’ room to watch him.”

In race 9, Austin Sorrie allowed Wheels On Fire to make front before the first turn, then sent the 6-5 favorite after that early leader, clearing easily at the :27.3 opening quarter. Saulsbrook Victor was never headed for the remainder of the mile, even after earplugs were pulled on Wheels On Fire, who left the pocket to take his best shot down the stretch. As race caller Chad Rozema noted, Saulsbrook Victor won under tight lines in the 1:50.4s victory.

"He makes the hair on the back of your neck stand up, watching him," said Brett, who was in the sulky for half of Saulsbrook Victor's 2022 wins.

O'Brien Future Star Award winner (2020) Sorrie was aboard for the other three last season, and now the first three of the new year.

"When I couldn't go [to WMP], because I was at Flamboro, we put Austin down," said Brett. "Austin's great. Whatever we want to do, he's always good. He drives with confidence, tries not to [urge] him too much, so it's worked out well."

Saturday night also worked out well for Brett, who went over the $10 million (Cdn.) mark in career earnings as a driver. He is currently at the top of the standings at Flamboro Downs.

Brett said he knew the milestone was approaching, but he "wasn't really paying attention to it, because we were all in awe of 'Victor.' When I saw that, then it really made the night special."

There are no plans to test Saulsbrook Victor against Grand Circuit horses later this season.

"He'll just stay at Mohawk and we'll keep taking it week by week, see how he does," said Brett. "We're just kind of riding the high with him right now. If he raced all winter and then had a month off in the summertime, when it got really tough, and we brought him back to race in the fall again, that wouldn't bother me either."

In the meantime, Brett takes care of the reigning king of the Mohawk preferred, stabled at Baycain Training Centre in Campbellville, ON.

"We all work together in the barn, so everybody plays a part in what he does," he said. "Some days it's dad who jogs him; some days I jog him; some days it's another guy that works for us who jogs him. It all depends. Everybody plays a role."

"Taylor Fritz looked after him earlier, and I put him away every day now. I enjoy going to the barn every day... Usually he'll go outside in the morning, and then he'll come back in and jog. We put him away and that's his day."

Saulsbrook Victor's slow-building evolution became visible as it happened, even before he reached the current spotlight.

"There were a couple of trips there where he was up the rail, running over them at the wire, and I think it just got to be where he was confident," said Brett, adding praise for the gelding's off-track attitude: "He's always happy. You walk by his stall and he always has his ears up. He's looking in your pocket for either a carrot or a donut, any treat of some kind."

The MacDonalds' faith in Atlanta Girl's offspring also continues with lightly-raced Saulsbrook Ian (p, 1:57.3h; $6,304), who returned to owners Red Oak Stables of Charlottetown, PEI after competing for trainer Ronald in Mohawk's Pop-Up Series and Harvest Series last fall.

"I believe he will probably come back [to Ontario] as a 3-year-old and probably race in the sires stakes here," said Brett, who drove the Betterthancheddar gelding. "We bought the McWicked brother to him last year at the sale in London [for $34,000 Cdn.]. His name is Saulsbrook Tsunami. He's nice. He's good-gaited. The rest of the family, they were all hot originally. I don't know if it's the McWicked, but he's a little more docile than the rest, and he does everything right."

Owned by Louis Willinger of Louisville, KY and William Allan McNeil, Atlanta Girl was bred to world champion Bulldog Hanover last year, in his first season at stud.

"They all have ability and it doesn't seem to matter what they breed that mare to," said Brett. "Every one of them, they show up. Whether they show up at two, or they show up at four, they always have some type of ability to go fast and they seem to have grit to them."

Saulsbrook Victor is carrying on that family tradition, with no signs of slowing down.

"He's fun to watch, especially right now," said Brett. "We always knew that he had the ability...but to go five in a row, that's something special."

Mark On Mic is back with a bang

by Debbie Little

The Meadowlands' online video series "Mark On Mic" avoided the second-year slide, receiving rave reviews for its new season.

"If I brought this back and nobody was watching, I'd just tell Mark, 'Let's just wrap this up quick,' but it's still doing okay," Shades Demsky, series' co-creator, said. "There's no real sophomore slump. The numbers are still good, people are still interested, so that makes me happy."

"I know the drivers are watching. But we're not trying to get the drivers interested in the game, they're in the game. But they're watching."

At the start of season two, Demsky, The Meadowlands' racing and simulcast manager, wasn't sure what the future held for the popular series.

Dave Landry
Driver Mark MacDonald.

"I didn't know what to expect because I was coming back without Mark and I was expecting to come back with Mark," Demsky said.

The plan was to kick off production at the start of December following the last major night of stakes races at The Big M for the year on Nov. 26. Unfortunately for Demsky, the show's star, driver Mark MacDonald, was home in Canada visiting his family.

"What do you want me to do Mark?" Demsky said. "Do you want me to continue to make it Mark On Mic or do you want me to change the web series and call it 'Meadowlands On Mic' and I mic up anybody?"

MacDonald was comfortable having Demsky replace him with a guest host for a few weeks and judging by the metrics, it worked out fine.

The three guest hosts, who manned the GoPro in MacDonald's absence, were Corey Callahan, Tyler Miller and Joe Bongiorno with Yannick Gingras, Vinny Ginsburg and Brett Beckwith, respectively, as their mic'd up guests.

A running joke in the first season of Mark On Mic was that the best way to beat the favorite was to put a mic on them. Although no one really believes that wearing a microphone can get you beaten, just as rooting for or against a team doesn't determine the outcome of any sporting event, in this case it wasn't far from the truth when you look at the numbers.

While wearing the mic in the inaugural season, Mark went one-for-16, only winning in the very last episode. His guests did slightly better, finding the winner's circle three times in the 16 starts.

The perceived curse continued for Mark's guest hosts in the first three episodes, none of which won their respective races, but their guests bucked the trend, going two-for-three.

Since returning, Mark got off the schneid in episode five and is now one-for-three. And although none of his guests – Scott Zeron, Trae Porter and Joe Bongiorno – have won yet, the shows have still been entertaining.

“You know who was gung-ho to do it?” Demsky said. “Trae Porter in race 14. I told him if we do 14, you’ll be the guest, and he was excited. Then I kind of broke his heart saying we’re going to do race 9 and he said, ‘If you ever need me, I’m happy to do it.’ And then I got to make him happy, because no one else wanted to do it.”

“I’m going to get younger new faces. That’s my goal. That’s why I was happy to put Trae in. He’s a 21-year-old kid. A lot of the young guys at The Meadowlands have a lot of personality and Vinny is definitely one of them. I want to get him back on. I think he was great the first time doing it. Talked through the whole race, just really good.”

“I like Brett Beckwith,” MacDonald said. “I think he’s one of the best young drivers around. He’s done it already, but he hasn’t done it with me.”

What fans of the show may not know is what goes into choosing the race.

“So, you’ve got to find a) a race that I have a shot in, which is hard to do,” MacDonald said with a laugh. “And then 1a) find someone in there with a shot to beat me and wants to do it with me. I’ve got to hope I land on a race where Yannick or Scottie doesn’t have the 10-hole with a 100-1 shot.”

Sometimes MacDonald finds a race that would be perfect but finds no takers for the guest spot, as happened with one race recently. Since MacDonald’s goal is to get people interested in our sport through these videos, hearing “No” can sometimes be frustrating, but he understands that it’s not the right platform for some drivers, who tend to be quiet.

“You’re looking for the guys with personalities and it’s tough to get,” MacDonald said with a laugh. “It’d be easy if all my family members were in town, we could have our own segment. But they’re not all here.”

“It’s getting to the point where I almost hate asking people because they don’t want to do it. I don’t know why. And it’s so easy to do because you just put a mic in your pocket. But that’s okay, I’ll make it work and it’ll be funny. Even if I’m last, I try and make it funny.”

The hope is to get at least 10 episodes in the can before Demsky needs to head for Tioga at the end of February.

“Shades does a great job editing it,” MacDonald said. “He’s very good at what he does. All the fluid switching that happens doesn’t just happen. It’s a lot of work.”

“From the time we turn those mics on it’s about 15 or 20 minutes. To strap the GoPro on is nothing. To turn the mics on is nothing. But to match the race with the GoPro footage, to sync in the audio of the two guys together is not an easy task. So, you need someone that knows what they’re doing to do that. That’s above my paygrade. I can talk and I can drive a horse but I can’t edit a video.”

The latest episode of Mark On Mic with guest Joe Bongiorno is now up and new episodes drop around noon on Wednesdays on The Meadowlands’ YouTube channel under the fun and games channel. It can also be found on Facebook and Twitter.

“It gets a lot of eyeballs inside the game, but anytime you’ve got any sort of platform you want to try and reach outside our game,” MacDonald said. “And I think people would enjoy them if they knew they were there. All that stuff you put on Twitter, Instagram, all those things, that’s free advertising. So, of course you take advantage of it, but we don’t take advantage of it enough in our game. We’re always two steps behind where everybody else is.”

“People say it’s unmarketable. Well, we don’t even try. I’m trying now to get some people outside of our sport to retweet it and see if I can’t get a few more people that just might like to listen to it to laugh.”

GRASSROOTS PERSPECTIVE

with CHRIS LOMON

Elson Miller has never put the cart before the horse

by Chris Lomon

He was a man with a plan well before he joined the standardbred realm, a then teenager who became familiar with trotters and pacers in his native Indiana.

The more he learned about standardbreds, the more he gave thought to owning his own.

"I started out buying and selling horses," Miller said. "I would go to racetracks, buy horses that weren't making money and sell them to the Amish. I started getting to know a couple of trainers and I would buy a couple of horses to give my friends to train. I just owned them."

And once he sat in the sulky, albeit in a different capacity, Miller was completely hooked.

Soon, he became a fixture driving in the pony racing circuit in the northern part of his home state.

"That was a lot of fun," Miller said. "They're between 50 and 54 inches tall and they go half a mile. They're like little standardbreds. It's still pretty accurate to compare them to a standardbred. The classifications are something you need to learn, but I really enjoyed all of it."

So much so, in fact, that the experience prompted Miller to pursue a career in harness racing.

In 2022, Miller earned his driving license.

He was meticulously prepared for the start of his career, but also eager to consume as much knowledge as possible.

"I have a friend, Jim Brinson, who was training a couple for me, and he was all about helping me get my trainer's license and my driver's license, which pushed me to actually do it," Miller said. "At first, it looked like a big mountain for me to climb over. But I was determined to give it all I had."

Miller had plenty of people in his corner, including Brinson.

A combined winner of over 350 races, the driver/trainer helped Miller get accustomed to his new surroundings and prepared for the new challenges that come with racing.

"Jim was racing at the Red Mile and getting ready to move up to Northville," Miller said. "He posted three horses for sale on Facebook, and one was Warrawee Victor, a son of Sweet Lou. I wanted to buy the horse and I messaged him. He trucked up to Michigan, which was only two hours away. I drove up and I ended up buying the horse. I took him back with me and I had a friend, Kevin Slabaugh, who had his trainer's license, so he took over that part. I didn't have my license at the time. I was hands-on, but I was only listed as the owner. We took the horse to Northville, and he won. That's where I was hooked. It was a great feeling and a feeling of accomplishment.

"Jim was there that day and instead of being jealous, he congratulated me. That was in October of 2021. He was in Pompano and texted me, asking if I wanted to send Warrawee Victor to him. He thought he could make money and he liked the horse. Two weeks later, I was in Florida. I went to the track and

"I've done okay for what is really my first year of horse racing. A lot of trainers don't know me, who I am, where I came from, things like that. Some will kind of question you. I grew up with horses, and in 2021, I sold over 700 horses, so the horsemanship was there. Yes, it's different from racehorses, but my love for it and my love of the horses has always been there. Some of the older trainers wonder why a young kid is doing well, which bothers you to a certain point. But I can't worry about that. I just keep learning and listening, pushing myself to get better."

hung out for three days, and jogged horses. We became friends, claimed another horse, a spur of the moment thing. It just kind of went on from there. He had helped me get signatures for my licenses. I felt a lot more confident heading into my first year as a trainer because of what I learned from Jim.”

By the end of his rookie campaign, one that produced a record of 6-2-5 from 36 starts, Miller had even surprised himself.

He had climbed the mountain.

“I had something that was making money,” Miller said. “I also was also doing real estate, and had something solid, business-wise, so making the step and getting away from it to follow what I really wanted to do was scary at first. You don’t know if you are going to make money... it was a big step for me. There was so much I didn’t know with the racing at the start. I’m so thankful for everyone who signed for me and supported me.”

After a successful first season, Miller headed to Cal-Expo in November, giving him an opportunity to keep his wheels in motion, so to speak.

While torrential rains meant the cancellation of multiple race cards at the Sacramento oval, it didn’t damper his enthusiasm to any great extent.

On Jan. 12, he sent out his first winner of 2023, Wonder Of Love, a horse he owns, trains and drives.

The 5-year-old son of Shadyshark Hanover (IN)—Savannas Love eked out a neck victory in 2:04 over a sloppy track.

Miller certainly made others take notice, even those who weren’t familiar with his back story.

“I’ve done okay for what is really my first year of horse racing,” Miller said. “A lot of trainers don’t know me, who I am, where I came from, things like that. Some will kind of question you. I grew up with horses, and in 2021, I sold over 700 horses, so the horsemanship was there. Yes, it’s different from racehorses, but my love for it and my love of the horses has always been there. Some of the older trainers wonder why a young kid is doing well, which bothers you to a certain point. But I can’t worry about that. I just keep learning and listening, pushing myself to get better.”

Miller is hoping to eclipse the numbers he posted in 2022.

He knows it won’t be easy but striving to reach the summit has always been part of who he is.

As always, the 21-year-old has a solid plan in place.

“For the short term, I want to be a trainer,” Miller said. “I love owning, and that’s one thing I always want to do. I would like to drive more than I want to train. I love it. Where I would like to get to is owning, driving, and do some real estate on the side. I always like to be working and whatever I’m doing, I want to do it the right way.”

Hall of Fame racehorse Presidential Ball dies

It is with sadness that Alabar Farms announces the passing of Presidential Ball at the age of 33.

An outstanding racehorse, Presidential Ball won 26 of 38 races and amassed earnings of over $3 million from his two seasons of racing in 1992 and 1993.

He received Dan Patch and O'Brien awards at both ages 2 and 3 and retired as the third richest pacer of all time. The son of Cam Fella—I Marilyn was inducted into the Harness Racing Living Horse Hall of Fame in 2022.

As a stallion, Presidential Ball sired divisional champions in both hemispheres led by millionaires Bigtime Ball (O'Brien), Cathedra Dot Com (O'Brien), and Allamerican Native (Dan Patch).

In the Southern Hemisphere, he was the leading 2-year-old sire in Australia from his debut crop.

"Presidential Ball was just an outstanding horse both as a racehorse and a sire," said Alabar Australia general manager Brett Coffey.

"He was good to so many people. It was a pleasure to have him retire to our farm and in his later years he became close friends with Village Jasper, which was really cool to see."

Presidential Ball is now buried at Alabar Australia.

Hoosier hotshots top PEO Mixed Sale

A pair of Indiana's fastest 3-year-olds of the 2022 racing season — the now 4-year-old trotter Ponda Adventure and pacer Sure Thing Herman — sold for the highest prices at the Jan. 23 Preferred Equine Online Mixed Sale.

Both six-figure sellers were consigned by PEO as agent for trainer Erv Miller and the horses' owners.

The nearly unbeatable Ponda Adventure 3,1:52.2 ($685,037), a winner of 22 of 28 starts and 19 stakes races at 2 and 3, topped the auction with a purchase price of $130,000. The Swan For

All gelding, who closed out his 2022 campaign by winning four open stakes at Hoosier Park, was bought by Andy Willinger.

Sure Thing Herman p,3,1:49.2 ($187,887), hammered down for $110,000, was purchased by Marc Reynolds as agent for Tom Pollack. The Tellitlikeitis gelding filled his bank account with more than $187,000 in earnings last year alone and was runner-up in both the Circle City and Pegasus Stakes.

Sale proprietor and manager David Reid said he was pleased with both the results and the overall participation at this and previous sales.

"It's been almost a year now since we launched our online sales division," he said. "First and foremost, I've been most pleased with the continued success sale horses have had for their new owners, and also, how the sales have been received across the industry.

"There are no boundaries with our online sales. Participation in our new sales platform has come from literally everywhere... Europe, Southern Hemisphere, East Coast, West Coast, Canada and the Midwest. That was the case once again at this week's sale."

In addition to racehorses – the bread and butter of these sales – broodmares and stallion shares were also on offer Jan. 23.

Another Indiana-bred, stakes winner Four Under Par 4,1:53.2f, led the seven broodmare prospects and in-foal broodmares that were sold. The $203,000 earner by Swan For All was purchased by Midnight Sun Partners for $58,000 after being sold by PEO for VIP Stable.

A share in Father Patrick, whose son Greenshoe led all stallions in yearling average at last fall's Lexington Selected Sale, was sold as agent for Brittany Farms and went to Patrick Maleitzke/Schockemöhle for $30,000.

In all, 28 of 35 lots on offer were sold for $632,500. Horses not sold are still listed on the Jan. 23 sale page, with "make offer" noted on each.

Preferred Equine Online is back to its every other week sale schedule, with the next auction slated for Monday, Feb. 6. Entries are currently being accepted at preferredequineonline.com.

Whata Swan retires to stallion duty in Pennsylvania

According to John Barnard, Breeders Crown winning owner and long-time supporter of the Indiana breeding and racing program, Whata Swan, has been retired and will stand at stud at Pleasant Hill Farm in Paradise, PA for the 2023 breeding season. The brilliant trotter completes his racing career with 35 wins and more than $550,000 in earnings.

A son of Swan for All, Whata Swan first came on the racing scene as a 2-year-old in 2018 at Harrah's Hoosier Park. He was initially broke and trained by Bill Crone, who teamed up with Barnard for the win in the 2017 Breeders Crown with Fiftydallarbill. After Crone's retirement in 2019, Luis "Tony" Quevedo took over training duties for the Barnard Stable, including a successful run with Whata Swan as an older open trotter in the Midwest.

Whata Swan scored a win in the 2021 Indiana Sires Stakes for older trotting horses and geldings and was the Indiana Sires Stakes Champion the same year in the same category. He came back as a 6-year-old last year, winning five races in the open at Harrah's Hoosier Park before his final race July 16, where he finished second. His career best time of 1:50.3 was taken during that string of wins, a new track record for older trotting stallions and the fastest mile ever trotted in the state of Indiana.

Following his track-record performance, Indiana's all-time leading driver and regular pilot Trace Tetrick said this about Whata Swan: "I knew he was still digging in and trotted right through the wire. That's tough to do. The fastest I've gone with a winning trotter. This horse's best quality is definitely versatility. He doesn't care if you take him back, send him or anything. He's slick gaited and can come out of a hole equally well on any size track."

In addition to the track record in Indiana, Whata Swan also set a track record of 1:53.2 at Hollywood Gaming Dayton as a 3-year-old. He competed five straight years on the track with multiple wins each season.

Whata Swan is the first foal from the Lou's Legacy mare Tanya's Legacy. In addition to Whata Swan, she has produced Racin Cream Pie (1:56.2) and Tanya's Joy (1:57.2), both of whom are still racing for Barnard. The family has a yearling for 2023 named Pilots Legacy, a colt by Pilot Discretion.

"With Fiftydallarbill and Swan For All both standing in Indiana, I thought it would be good to take him (Whata Swan) to Pennsylvania," said Barnard, who is part of the Swan For All syndicate and has had numerous six-figure winners by the stallion. "We are excited to add him to the roster at Pleasant Hill Farm and anticipate his first crop of foals in 2024."

Whata Swan retired among the top 15 all time in earnings by Indiana's premier trotting sire, Swan For All. The impressive list includes powerhouses such as Hannelore Hanover, Fiftydallarbill, M-M's Dream, Ponda Adventure and Swan In Motion.

For more information on Whata Swan or Pleasant Hill Farm, located in the eastern part of Pennsylvania near Philadelphia, contact Nate Fisher at (717) 847-2563.

Southwind Amazon earns 124th win at MGM Northfield Park

Thirteen-year-old warhorse Southwind Amazon eclipsed two milestones on Sunday (Jan. 22) at MGM Northfield, surpassing Breeze On J for fourth in all-time wins and pushing his earnings to over $1.4 million.

Winless in three starts this season, Southwind Amazon (Billy Davis Jr.) looked like a version of his old self on Sunday, winning an upper-level pacing event by a length.

Davis made the lead through the first eighth of a mile with Southwind Amazon but set a torrid pace early getting to the quarter in :26.3.

Coming to the half, Southwind Amazon didn't face any challengers allowing Davis to get a :28.4 breather. Heading into the clubhouse turn the final time, 2020 Carl Milstein Memorial winner Odds On Osiris (Ronnie Wrenn Jr.) tried to make a bid at the leader. Feeling the pressure, Davis stepped on the gas, opening up to a two-length lead, but heading to the three-quarter pole in 1:23, Captainofrocknroll (Luke Ebersole) with Odds On Osiris in tow.

Turning for home, Southwind Amazon had more left in the tank to win in 1:52.3 over Alamanc (Aaron Merriman), who closed to be second, while Odds On Osiris settled for third.

"He's been an absolute blast to train for seven years now; he is like my son," said jubilant trainer Paul Holzman.
