Convicted drug distributor Robinson: “I sold to everybody”

*Former standardbred owner and trainer

by Bill Finley

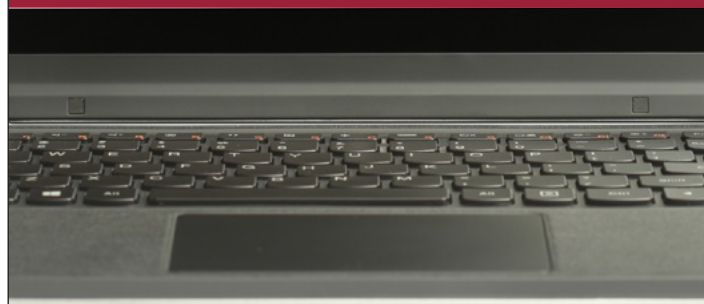

(Editor's note: This story originally appeared in Thoroughbred Daily News (full story here) It is republished with the permission of TDN)

Before he was caught up in the probe into performance-enhancing drugs in horse racing and arrested for selling and shipping adulterated and misbranding drugs, Scott Robinson was living large. He drove a Lamborghini and his online businesses that the government has charged were selling PEDs were pulling in millions. There was never any shortage of customers.

“I sold to everybody,” said Robinson, who added that he had “thousands of customers,” and not just in horse racing. Robinson said his products were bought by individuals using them with camels, racing greyhounds, racing pigeons and to people operating alpaca farms. As part of his sentence, which includes 18 months in prison, Robinson was ordered to pay a $3.8 million forfeiture.

One year to the day that the indictments against 27 individuals allegedly involved in a scheme to use performance-enhancing drugs on racehorses were announced, Robinson, a drug manufacturer and distributor, became the first of those involved in the scandal to be sentenced to prison after he pled guilty to one count of drug adulteration and misbranding. The maximum sentence for that offense is five years.

The scope of Robinson's operation, and how many trainers and veterinarians were buying his products, was one of many subjects Robinson discussed in a series of interviews with the TDN, one by phone and several by email. Robinson is currently serving his sentence at FCI Coleman Low Correctional Institute in Sumterville, FL. Few subjects were off limits, including his client list. It includes dozens of thoroughbred trainers and veterinarians who bought illegal drugs from Robinson, but it's a list he says he will not divulge.

"As far as telling you who I sold this to, I'm not ready to go that far," he said. "I know my career is over, but there are people out there who still work in racing and their livelihoods are at stake. They aren't the ones that got me into this mess, so there's no reason why I should want to see them get punished for something everybody was doing."

Robinson, who has owned and trained standardbreds, said the government has not pressed him for a list of his clients.

His willingness to discuss his situation stems in part from the fact that he doesn't see himself as the dope-peddling fiend the government made him out to be. Rather, he says the substances he sold were not narcotics or performance-enhancing agents but products that were not harmful to the horse and contained vitamins, minerals and amino acids.

"The definition of a PED and a non-PED is a very fine line and not black and white," Robinson said. "The government has their own definition of PEDs. I say for it to be a PED it must be a drug. I don't consider vitamins, supplements and amino acids PEDs."

The government would beg to differ. It charged that between at least 2011 and February, 2020, Robinson sold millions of dollars' worth of PEDs to customers across the U.S. and abroad, customers whose intent was to use the drugs to improve the performances of their horses.

"Scott Robinson created and profited from a system designed to exploit racehorses in the pursuit of speed and prize money, risking their safety and well-being. Robinson sold unsanitary, misbranded, and adulterated drugs, and misled and deceived regulators and law enforcement in the process," U.S. Attorney Audrey Strauss said after Robinson was sentenced.

Robinson, 47, admits that he mislabeled some of his products and did not properly list their ingredients, which falls under the category of misbranding.

"If you mislabel a vitamin or supplement and not put the ingredients on it, does it classify as a PED? According to the government the answer is yes," Robinson said. "Like I said before, it's a very complicated subject. I am remorseful for having this issue burden horse racing. I should have put a list of ingredients on all products I sold and although I would still technically be in the wrong, it would shed light on what was in it."

So far as why his products had names like “red acid,” “Blast Off Red” and “Liquid Viagra” that implied they were PEDs, Robinson said the names were part of a marketing strategy.

“Those names just sounded sexier,” he said. “It was marketing. The names didn’t accurately describe what the products were for.”

So far as how bad the problem of doping race horses is, Robinson wavers. In his initial interview with the TDN he said the situation is serious.

“More people should be indicted. Definitely,” he said, questioning why the indictments stopped after the original round in March, 2020. “I’d be lying if I said there weren’t people out there who need to be stopped. There are some real bad apples out there that should be indicted. Will it happen? Only time will tell. It doesn’t really affect me.”

In a follow up email, he wrote: “I personally don’t think there is a lot of illegal drug use in the sport.”

Part of the problem was that Robinson’s drugs proved to be undetectable, a common theme that plagues the sport. Rarely does a drug test result in a positive for anything other than overages of therapeutic medications. Robinson said that the sport needs to start using testing procedures currently in use by the United States Anti-Doping Agency (USADA) that involves the use of biomarkers. With biomarkers, scientists can retest stored urine and blood samples that were collected as much as 10 years earlier.

“It’s a form of testing that is far more stringent than current testing,” Robinson said.

Robinson is scheduled to be released on Dec. 15, but is hoping he will be let out earlier and able to serve the remainder of his sentence under home confinement. So far as what’s next he doesn’t know.

“Everybody else in here [at the Coleman facility] can go back to doing what they did before when they get out,” he said. “When I get out, I don’t have a job. This is what I did for the better part of 20 years. I’ve lost all of my racing licenses and I’ll never again be able to own or train a horse.”

That’s not likely to elicit any sympathy. Robinson knows that no matter how he spins his story he will always bear the burden of having been convicted of selling drugs that were used to dope race horses. Nor does it really matter how many others were involved and who.

“I did wrong,” he said. “I know that.”

Jury finds Dr. Seth Fishman guilty, could face 20 years in prison

by Robert Gearty

Florida veterinarian Dr. Seth Fishman, the first person to face trial in a sweeping horse-doping case that documented the widespread use of illegal and undetectable performance-enhancing drugs (PEDs) at tracks across the country, was convicted in New York on Wednesday (Feb. 2) on charges that could put him behind bars for 20 years.

A jury of eight women and four men in U.S. District Court in Manhattan found Fishman, 50, guilty of two counts of conspiring to violate adulteration and misbranding laws and the manufacture of PEDs administered to racehorses by corrupt trainers for money and fame.

U.S. District Judge Mary Kay Vyskocil will sentence Fishman on May 5.

Prosecutor Sarah Mortazavi told the judge prosecutors would be seeking to detain Fishman pending sentencing.

The verdict came swiftly. Jurors got the case late Tuesday (Feb. 1) and deliberated for about three hours Tuesday and Wednesday. The trial began with jury selection Jan. 19 and lasted 11 days.

The jury rejected Fishman's defense that his actions were in keeping with his oath as a licensed veterinarian to protect the health and welfare of animals.

"I understand the jury has reached a verdict," Vyskocil said after the jury filed in the wood-paneled courtroom on the 26th floor of the courthouse.

The jury's foreperson then announced Fishman's guilt on each of the counts.

"I love animals. I love horses," one of the jurors, Victoria Lopez, a 61-year-old woman from The Bronx, said in an interview following the verdict. "What they were doing wasn't right."

"The jury's swift conviction of Seth Fishman reflects the overwhelming evidence of his guilt as displayed through this trial," New York U.S. Attorney Damian Williams said in a release issued from his office. "As an ostensible veterinarian — sworn to the care and protection of animals — Fishman cynically violated his oath in service of corrupt trainers and in the pursuit of profits."

Williams added, "Through the sale of untested, unsafe, and unstable drugs, Fishman's illegal drug business was a platform for both fraud and animal abuse. Today's conviction appropriately condemns the danger inherent in Fishman's crimes and underscores the seriousness with which this office takes the kind of abuse that Fishman practiced."

Stuart S. Janney III, chairman of The Jockey Club, also reacted to the verdict.

"I am pleased to see all of the effort and time spent by federal agents, prosecutors, and others who have worked so hard on this case be rewarded with a guilty verdict, and I thank them for their commitment," Janney said in a statement distributed by TJC.

"It is highly encouraging to know that those who cheat and endanger our sport's athletes, both equine and human, face meaningful and life-changing punishments. Clearly, this verdict will serve as a deterrent to others, and it also provides hope for those who want to see true change in the racing industry. This step forward, one of many recently, reflects our steadfast determination towards maintaining the highest levels of integrity and safety for racing's athletes and customers."

Fishman wasn't in the courtroom when the verdict was announced. Vyskocil hasn't said in open court where he is. A cryptic comment from Fishman's attorney to the judge led to speculation Fishman may be in a hospital.

Fishman had a co-defendant Lisa Giannelli, at the start of the trial. She worked with Fishman for 18 years, and prosecutors accused her of being Fishman's drug distributor. On Jan. 24, Vyskocil declared a mistrial in her case after her attorney tested positive for COVID-19.

Nearly two years ago, Williams' office charged Fishman, six other veterinarians, 11 trainers, and nine others, identified as PED distributors, with conspiring dope horses in New York, New Jersey, Florida, Ohio, Kentucky, and the United Arab Emirates.

The investigation began in 2018 and was headed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and criminal investigators with the Food and Drug Administration.

At the time of the indictment, then-New York U.S. Attorney Geoffrey Berman said the case was "the most far-reaching prosecution of racehorse doping in the history of the U.S. Department of Justice."

At a March 2020 press conference announcing the indictments, FBI New York assistant director in charge William F. Sweeney Jr. said the doping conspiracy risked the health of horses administered PEDs.

"What happened to these horses amounted to nothing less than abuse," Sweeney said.

Those charged included top trainer Jason Servis, who federal prosecutors say juiced multi-millionaire Maximum Security, the first-place finisher in the 2019 Kentucky Derby Presented by Woodford Reserve (Grade 1), who was demoted to 17th by stewards for interference with another horse in the race.

The accused also included Jorge Navarro, who was sentenced to five years in prison last year after pleading guilty to conspiracy. Prosecutors presented evidence at Fishman's trial showing that the trainer paid Fishman tens of thousands of dollars for PEDs, including a substance called BB3 that prosecutors say thickens a horse's blood to make it run faster and farther.

Navarro is one of nine charged individuals who have pled guilty. Two others who were arrested entered into non-prosecution agreements with prosecutors.

The Fishman trial revealed that another of those accused, former harness trainer Ross Cohen, struck a deal with prosecutors to become a cooperating witness.

Servis and several others have pled not guilty and are awaiting trial.

Prosecutors have said in court papers that they are in plea discussions with several defendants without naming them.

The Fishman verdict could have an impact on cases going forward.

The evidence against Fishman included witness testimony, emails and texts, and wiretap recordings that captured Fishman talking about doping horses, and bragging that his drugs wouldn't appear in post-race testing.

Prosecutors also showed the jury thousands of vials of drugs seized from Fishman's Florida company Equestology.

Two of those witnesses were harness trainer Adrienne Hall and thoroughbred trainer Jamen Davidovich. They testified they juiced their horses with PEDs obtained from Fishman. Hall testified under deferred prosecution agreement with the government. Davidovich's testimony came after he was granted immunity.

As part of their case, prosecutors also played for the jury video of Navarro's juiced XY Jet winning the $2.5 million Dubai Golden Shaheen Sponsored By Gulf News (Gr. 1(G1) in Dubai in 2019.

XY Jet died of a heart attack a year later, Navarro said in a statement shortly after the incident.

"Thank you, boss, (you're) a big part of it," Navarro said in a text exchange with Fishman just after the 2019 Golden Shaheen.

HRU and the thoroughbred industry's leading publications are working together to cover this key trial.

FEB. 1, 2022:

Tuesday's report: Jury begins deliberations

by Robert Gearty

A New York jury began deliberations Tuesday (Feb. 1) in the horse doping trial of Dr. Seth Fishman.

The jury of eight women and four men deliberated for about 30 minutes before retiring for the night without reaching a verdict. They resume deliberations the morning of Feb. 2.

The charges against Fishman, a 50-year-old Florida veterinarian, stem from a federal government crackdown on horse doping at tracks across the country in which more than two dozen individuals were indicted. Those charged include top trainer Jason Servis, who is awaiting trial, and Jorge Navarro, who was sentenced to five years in the case after pleading guilty.

Prosecutors say racehorse trainers at thoroughbred and harness tracks juiced their horses with performance-enhancing drugs manufactured by Fishman and designed to elude post-race testing. They say Navarro was one of Fishman's clients.

At the start of the trial's 10th day Tuesday, jurors noted Fishman's absence in the courtroom for a second straight day. They weren't told where he was, and Judge Mary Kay Vyskocil advised them not to speculate on his absence.

"Please don't draw any inference as to why he may be absent," she said.

The panel spent most of the day listening to prosecutors and defense attorney Maurice Sercarz clash over the evidence in the case in closing arguments.

Prosecutor Sarah Mortazavi addressed the jury first and began by saying that Fishman built "a multi-million drug business through deceit."

"You know what the defendant Seth Fishman is all about," she said. "His business was to peddle adulterated and misbranded drugs, performance-enhancing drugs designed by him to cheat horse racing."

Re-emphasizing evidence submitted during the trial, she paused to play a 2019 Federal Bureau of Investigation wiretap. In that recording, Fishman says that anytime you give something to a horse you are not supposed to, that's doping.

Mortazavi said another wiretap quoted Fishman as saying he was cheating the system.

"If someone says they are trying to cheat the system, that's what they are doing," the prosecutor said.

A few minutes later, Mortazavi held a drug vial that had been seized from Fishman's business in 2018 and showed it to the jury.

"We're not talking about hay, oats, and apples," she said.

Mortazavi said there was overwhelming evidence of Fishman's guilt. The prosecution's case included witness testimony, emails, text messages, and dozens of wiretap recordings. Three of the witnesses were trainers who said Fishman supplied them with PEDs.

To prove its case, the prosecution must prove that Fishman defrauded or misled others over the course of the alleged conspiracy.

Mortazavi said the evidence showed Fishman tried to defraud and mislead the Food and Drug Administration by registering his corporation in Panama.

She said the evidence also shows how Fishman tried to avoid scrutiny by racing regulators.

She reviewed a text quoting Fishman saying "absolutely not" when asked if an order of PEDs should be sent to an address at a track.

"Why not send it to the racing office," Fishman wrote, apparently in jest.

"LOL," was the response from Fishman's business associate Lisa Gianelli.

She was being tried with Fishman, but a mistrial was declared in her case last week after her attorney tested positive for COVID-19.

Sercarz argued to the jury that there was insufficient proof from the government that his client defrauded or misled.

"Did he do something to violate racing regulations? Yes, but intent to defraud or mislead?" Sercarz said.

He contended Fishman's actions were those of someone acting in good faith and who, as a licensed vet, had the horses' best interests in mind.

"Seth Fishman improvidently chose to live in a rough neighborhood among racehorse owners and trainers bent on cheating," Sercarz said.

"I submit it was Dr. Fishman who was trying to wean horses off much more dangerous stuff and provide a safer alternative while adhering to his oath as a licensed vet to protect the welfare and safety of animals."

After Sercarz finished, prosecutors had the final say. Prosecutor Andrew Adams stood up and asked the jury to reject his adversary's argument.

"He doesn't have much to work with," Adams said. "He's not a magician. He can't make the evidence disappear."

The prosecutor told the jury that Fishman's actions weren't about helping racehorses but about helping his clients make money and cheat race regulators.

"He was a drug dealer, not a veterinarian," Adams said.

The panel spent most of the day listening to prosecutors and defense attorney Maurice Sercarz clash over the evidence in the case.

Cohen, Hall removed from USTA membership

by the USTA communications department

The United States Trotting Association announced Tuesday (Feb. 1) the expulsions of trainers Ross B. Cohen and Adrienne Hall, effective immediately.

Cohen and Hall have been key figures in the federal horse doping trial of Dr. Seth Fishman in New York, with both testifying to having received illicit performance enhancing drugs from Dr. Fishman, then having them administered to horses in their care. Additionally, Cohen claimed to have paid drivers to fix races.

Cohen is a former trainer who has not been active since 2009, while Hall most recently started a horse in late 2021, at the Meadowlands on Dec. 18. Both testified last week under plea arrangements as government witnesses in the trial of Dr. Fishman, a veterinarian accused of adulteration and misbranding conspiracy charges.

The USTA revocations are per Article 1, §4 of the Association bylaws, which states that "membership may be revoked for any member whose experience, character, or general fitness are such that the participation of such person in harness racing will not be consistent with the best interest of the sport and whose membership would be detrimental, reflect adversely or unfavorably on harness racing or upon the association and who has either admitted to race fixing in a sworn statement or been found guilty of race fixing in final adjudication, shall be barred from membership in this association for life."

Under Article VIII of the USTA bylaws, Cohen and Hall have the right to appeal their penalties.

Gural disagrees with USTA's ban of admitted PED user Adrienne Hall

Editor's note: The Meadowlands released the following press release on Thursday (Feb. 3):

The Meadowlands race card for Saturday includes two horses owned by Adrienne Hall, who recently testified in the federal horse doping trial of Dr. Seth Fishman.

On Wednesday, Dr. Fishman was found guilty of two counts of conspiring to violate adulteration and misbranding laws and the manufacture of PEDS that were administered to racehorses by corrupt trainers for money and fame.

Ms. Hall was notified on Tuesday that her USTA membership had been revoked per Article 1, §4 of the Association bylaws. USTA membership is not required to be granted a pari-mutuel racing license in New Jersey, thus she remains eligible to race per the New Jersey Racing Commission.

Ms. Hall's horses will not be scratched by The Meadowlands.

Meadowlands president Jeff Gural made the following statement on the issue:

"We disagree with the USTA decision and we applaud Ms. Hall for coming forward.

"To penalize those who testify for the prosecution will only serve to further the already existing notion that 'saying something will only lead to problems for yourself.' It will discourage the type of participation necessary to convict the indicted persons, as Ms. Hall's testimony has helped on this case.

"The lack of action by the USTA during this five-year effort on our part to get rid of the cheats along with their continued opposition to the HISA (Horseracing Integrity and Safety Authority) legislation which, with some changes, is our only hope of keeping the chemists out is dangerous to harness racing. We have received no support from USTA or any of their members in trying to eradicate the drugs and those who use them from racing.

"The absence of coverage on ustrotting.com of the Fishman trial proceedings is inexcusable.

"We now have access to Seth Fishman's customer database files, which contain the names of hundreds of his clients, including several prominent trainers who hopefully can produce records showing what they purchased and why."

USTA response

Editor's note: HRU reached out to the USTA for comment. Dan

Leary, the USTA's director of marketing and communications sent the following response:

Adrienne Hall testified under oath to obtaining an impermissible, performance-enhancing drug that was administered to a horse in her care that competed in and won a pari-mutuel event. This is a clear violation of USTA rules.

Ms. Hall has the right to appeal her suspension to the Association.

MEADOWLANDS MATTERS

with DEBBIE LITTLE

A plethora of new stakes options at The Big M in 2022

by Debbie Little

Opportunities abound at The Meadowlands in 2022, with new stakes for both 4-year-old mares and New Jersey-sired 2- and 3-year-olds, a "Win and You're In" bonus and a new draw formula.

For the first time, the Graduate series is tapping into its feminine side and offering races for 4-year-old pacing and trotting mares.

Although the estimated purses for the mares' finals are half that of their male counterparts, it's better than nothing.

"It's definitely a positive," said trainer Nifty Norman. "It's definitely a move in the right direction. I think a lot of owners want more 4-year-old racing and I think everybody wants the good horses to come back.

"But it's very hard to bring a mare back because of the opportunities. A good mare's first foal is going to bring $300,000 now. It's hard to say, 'I'm going to bring her back and race the guts out of her and win [$200,000] when I could breed her and sell the foal for [$300,000]. That's the argument. It's a good idea but we need more of it. They don't go for enough and I don't know why the mares are so disrespected. It's a shame."

Norman trains female trotter Bella Bellini and female pacers Fire Start Hanover and Grace Hill, all of which will be returning for their 4-year-old seasons. He's been down this road before with other talented ladies and knows the transition is not always easy.

"Because at 4, generally they're not racing 4-year-olds, they're racing 5- and 6-year-olds," said Norman.

He remembers bringing back Bee A Magician as a 4-year-old and she only won 4 of 17 starts.

"She couldn't win, basically," said Norman. "It was very hard. But then she came back at 5 and she was a different horse. She was a beast."

Dave McDuffee, co-owner of the aforementioned Bee A Magician, agrees with Norman that it's a big jump and that the money could be better.

"I've been preaching for a number of years, in fact I even mentioned to John Campbell at the Hambletonian Society, even the Breeders Crown for mares is a lot less money than it is for everybody else," said McDuffee. "Hopefully, as time goes on, they'll start to recognize that that's a class that's kind of ignored a little bit, from the purse standpoint, at least."

McDuffee is the owner/breeder of Hambletonian Oaks champ Bella Bellini and initially planned to end her career after the 2021 season. "I had even bought a share of Walner to breed her to him and my intention was to breed her," said McDuffee.

But that all changed when Bella performed well against her elders in the TVG Mare Trot.

"Jeff Gural had spoken to me right after that race and said to me we're going to have a 4-year-old [Graduate] division for fillies next year with more money," said McDuffee. "I said, 'You know what Jeff, I'm probably going to change my mind and I think we'll probably race her.'"

The first leg of the Graduate series will take place in May and the finals will be on Saturday, July 9.

Classic example

The inaugural New Jersey Classic Series, scheduled for September, will offer an 'A' and 'B' division for 2- and 3-year-old trotters and 2-year-old pacers. The format includes one elimination, if necessary, and a final, and has divisions for both males and females.

"Mike Klau and the breeders committee sat down with Nick [Salvi, Meadowlands' stakes administrator] and came out with a schedule for what's the most we could do with the money that we had," said Mark Ford, president of the Standardbred Breeders and Owners Association of New Jersey. "Across the board, New Jersey has completely revamped its program."

The estimated final purse for all 'A' division trots is $300,000 and $100,000 for all 'B' division trots, while the pacers will go for $150,000 and $75,000 for the 'A' and 'B' divisions, respectively.

Win and You're In

The Peter Haughton Memorial and Jim Doherty Memorial, although established stakes, are getting a bit of a facelift for 2022.

The races for 2-year-old male and female trotters will have both higher purses – estimated at $400,000 – and a win and you're in bonus, with a victory securing a place in their respective divisional Breeders Crown finals.

"A couple of different things were discussed and obviously added money and the win and you're in thing might interest some people," said Moira Fanning, the chief operating officer/director of publicity of the Hambletonian Society.

Neither the Haughton nor Doherty have had 20 participants for several years, which would have provided full fields for eliminations. In some cases, the number of entrants only required one race to whittle down the field for the final, and in 2018, the Haughton didn't need an elimination at all.

Part of the blame can fall on lucrative sire stakes that have created competition for Grand Circuit races. It is not unusual to find some sire stakes going for good money with small fields making them a more attractive choice even though the Haughton and Doherty finals are on Hambletonian Day, one of the biggest days of racing in the world.

"We talked about a lot of different scenarios and this one seemed pretty easy to agree on as far as it didn't have a lot of downside and had some upside," said Fanning. "We have the ability for the Breeders Crown to change racing conditions before we take the February payment. The Breeders Crown conditions are pretty liberal. [The Hambletonian Society and The Meadowlands] want to keep the trotting races strong on Hambo Day because it's a big European participation day, big European simulcast day."

Drawing board

The goal of the new draw system is to make more competitive elimination races by rewarding finishing position. This formula does not apply to New Jersey Sire Stakes or Hambletonian Society administered stakes.

Special dispensation in British Columbia allowing Best Dream Seeker to still race at age 16

He's not the only classy warrior still racing past the mandatory retirement age of 15.

by Brett Sturman

United States Trotting Association (USTA) rules state that no horse that is 15 years of age or older is eligible to perform in any race except matinees, county fair races, or races exclusively for amateur or club drivers as sanctioned by USTA. The Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO) rules state the same thing, although one exception is British Columbia in western Canada, BC does allow horses to race at 15.

And then there are exceptions to the exception.

This year, Best Dream Seeker (Cambest) has raced four times as a 16-year-old at the BC track Fraser Downs. For perspective into the length of his still ongoing career, his lifetime mark of 1:51.4 over My Old Friend John and Fireintheshark in the Bluegrass at the Red Mile as a 2-year-old was accomplished three US presidents ago when George W. Bush was still in office.

Through 2021, Best Dream Seeker has won at least one time every season going back to the start of his career in 2008. As a 15-year-old last year, he notched his lone win of the season in 1:58.2 at Fraser, becoming the only horse in all Canada last year to win as a 15-year-old. In addition to taking his mark as a 15-year-old at Frasier, Best Dream Seeker also took his mark as a 3-year-old at the same track 12 years ago. Through four starts in 2022 racing in the $5,000 claiming ranks at Frasier, Best Dream Seeker is yet to hit the board, though his modest earnings total in January has pushed him over $500,000 in career earnings.

The question becomes, how is the Best Dream Seeker still able to continue to race at age 16? To help, I spoke with Nigel Holmes, the executive director of Harness Racing British Columbia.

"In December, a ruling was made specifically for (Best Dream Seeker)," Holmes said. "The governing body here, the Gaming Enforcement Branch reviewed it individually and had the horse checked out by a vet. The horse remains fairly competitive, he looks good and he's well cared for, and so they made a rule variant as an adjustment, and every two weeks – twice a month – a vet will check on the horse and so forth. As of right now, he has the potential to race up until the end of our meet here in May, and we'll see what happens after that."

Best Dream Seeker racing at 16 may seem unprecedented, but Holmes points out that this isn't the first time a horse this age has raced. He notes that in 2018, the horse Prime Time Bliss (Blissfull Hall) raced at Fraser as a 16-year-old. And not only did he race five times at that age, but he also won one of those races, taking a mark as a 16-year-old of 1:59.4. I'd be hard pressed to find any other horse in the modern era of harness racing with a mark of any kind at that age.

Horses aged 15 remain able to race as-is based on province rules where the age range is 2 through 15, and the rare occurrence of horses racing past that age will continue to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

Not far behind Best Dream Seeker in the age department is another ultra-tough gelding, Dream Out Loud N. A millionaire who will make his 300th career lifetime start tonight at the Meadowlands, he's now 15 years old. Now eight years removed from his 1:48.4 record taken at Harrah's Philadelphia as a 7-year-old, he's able to still race in amateur races such as the GSY Series conducted at the Meadowlands.

Dream Out Loud is coming off a season in 2021 in which he won an amazing 21 times in 39 starts, good for earnings of $86,790. In that process, he was claimed 18 times. He closed out the year with 10 consecutive wins, overwhelming $10,000 claiming competition when the year winded down, the threat of him being claimed became less. Already, he has taken a relatively impressive mark as a 15-year-old in 1:56.3 coming at Freehold last month in another GSY event.

Both Best Dream Seeker and potentially even more-so Dream Out Loud N are examples of a case that could be made to expand past the age of 14 when it's mandatory that horses retire (with exceptions as noted).

For example, Dream Out Loud N is essentially competing tonight in an actual race that's going to go in a fast time. And the race is a pari-mutuel one. He's only even in the race on an also-eligible condition of a $12,500 claiming tag, the only horse in the race that can be claimed – as a 15-year-old.

I'm not sure of the overall intent in the rules of allowing for an exception for amateur or fair races etc., but it's not like this race at the Meadowlands is going to have any resemblance to an afternoon race at the Bloomsburg Fair that goes in a time of 2:05. And don't misunderstand – I don't have an issue at all with the horse racing. In fact, he should still be racing, based on his competitiveness. But what's the difference in racing in a race with a "GSY" designation compared to any other standard condition on the card?

Granted, it's not as if there's an overabundance of horses that make it to the end of their 14-year-old season, let alone in form where they should be able to continue onward. But it does happen and each year there are a handful of horses that would be good enough to continue on for at least another season.

Take Statesman N for example. Similar to Dream Out Loud N as a New Zealand-bred who also took his lifetime mark at Philadelphia many years ago and is close to that horse in career earnings at just under one million dollars, he won eight times last year as a 14-year-old including a seasonal mark in 1:52.4 at the Meadowlands. This year, he too is competing as a 15-year-old in the GSY Series races.

If these horses and others are able to compete at ages older than 14 in pari-mutuel events conducted at tracks such as Fraser, Freehold and the Meadowlands as examples, perhaps it's time to consider an adjustment to the standard at which horses can continue to compete without exceptions.

California's Jess Pacheco lets his numbers do the talking

by Chris Lomon

Jessie Pacheco is as modest a horseman that you'll find. His numbers, however, are quite a different story.

A brief glimpse at his statistics might suggest the California-based conditioner would have plenty to boast about, big-time successes worthy of big talk.

But that's not what the 28-year-old standardbred trainer is about.

That the hard-working son of Lino Pacheco, a successful horseman in his own right, is flourishing isn't necessarily a surprise considering his dedication to the sport and its equine athletes.

"When I was in high school and my dad asked me what I wanted to do, I said, 'Well, I want to be a trainer just like you.' He asked me if I was sure and I knew that I was. He said if I wanted to be a trainer, that in this business you don't get a day off, that I have to be constantly taking care of the horses, working as hard as I can, and doing everything I can to make it all a success. I told him that it's definitely what I wanted to do."

After several years under the tutelage of his father, Pacheco has carved out a strong career of his own, including at his home base, Cal-Expo.

He managed to turn plenty of heads in his rookie campaign in 2016.

Pacheco posted 28 wins in 161 starts, along with $136,183 in purse earnings and a .283 UTRS.

His sophomore campaign, which yielded 22 wins, was followed by 50 victories the following year.

In 2021, Pacheco, born in Torrance, CA, set a number of personal-best marks, including 56 wins, 176 top-three finishes and $244,900 in earnings.

One of his top horses is Pancetta, a 13-year-old son of No Pan Intended, owned by Richard Morita and David Yamada.

The veteran pacer has earned over $500,000 in a career that has covered 199 starts.

"Pancetta is a very nice horse and he always tries his hardest. I've been very lucky to race him. I'm An Athlete [a 12-year-old son of Art Major] and so is Delightfully Wild [a nine-year-old daughter of Bettors Delight]. She's a good horse too. I'm happy to have a lot of nice horses to work with."

The fact that Pacheco has seen his efforts come to fruition is a minor miracle.

"When I was two, I was in a bad accident. A horse kicked me in the face. My dad, he used to work at Los Alamitos training Quarter Horses. My mom brought me and my sister to see my dad at the racetrack. The horse went out with the hotwalker and I tried to follow the horse. The horse kicked me in the face, so I was in the hospital for almost a year. After that, my mom and sister went back to Mexico, so that is where I grew up until I came back to California when I was 18. I started working for my dad as a groom, and maybe six years later, I had the horses racing under my name. My first start, it came in Minnesota. I went there with seven horses and I came back to Cal-Expo with 16 for the wintertime."

He hasn't looked back since.

Currently, Pacheco has 17 horses in his barn. He's also added a new role to his racetrack repertoire.

"I have had some pretty good seasons and I am happy with that. Two years ago, I started to do my qualifying to become a driver because sometimes here at Cal-Expo, we need drivers. So, that's why I started driving. It's been good because since I train the horses, I know them and what they like and don't like."

Pacheco has also kept the countless pieces of advice his father shared with him top of mind.

"He always told me to respect the horses, to be good and kind to them all the time. He also told me that I need to be patient with the horses, to do everything the right way, and to make sure they are taken care of and prepared so they can be at their best when they race. And one day, he told me that I have to be willing to work hard to find the key to each horse, that every horse is different, and you need to treat them as individuals. Every horse has its own personality, and you have to find the best way to unlock their talents."

Pacheco is hoping to open more doors for himself this year and in the future.

He knows exactly what it will take to reach his goals.

"You always have to keep pushing yourself to be better. I have kept my same owners for a long time and I hope that I can keep bringing them success. I want to work with my horses to make them better. Maybe my next step could be going to New York one day and compete at the tracks there."

For now, he'll continue to compete in California, and look to build off an impressive 2021.

And when he's not in the Golden State working hand-in-hoof with the horses, Pacheco can be found in a familiar spot.

"Usually when I'm not at the racetrack, I'm back in Mexico, which is my second home. We have beef cattle there, so I like to be at the ranch, doing whatever I can to help. We also have riding horses, Quarter Horses, there, so I enjoy that too. I never think about needing a vacation because even though it's work, it doesn't feel like that for me. I grew up around animals. When I was in Mexico and I would finish school, I would come home, put a saddle on my horse, and I would ride. It makes me happy."

As does his harness racing career.

Pacheco is hopeful that the best is yet to come.

"Every day, I go to the racetrack and try to help my horses the best way that I can. I'm going to do my best to make them be the best they can be and I'm going to work hard to be better myself."

Ground broken on Cumberland Run harness track in Kentucky

by Kentucky Downs publicity

Bringing horse racing back to Eastern Kentucky took another step forward on Monday (Jan. 31) with the ground-breaking for Cumberland Run harness track.

Cumberland Run and Cumberland Mint, a satellite historical horse racing venue in nearby Williamsburg, are a joint venture between Ron Winchell and Marc Falcone's ECL Racing Management and Keeneland Association. Winchell and Falcone are the majority owners and managing partners in Kentucky Downs and The Mint Gaming Hall in Franklin in south-central Kentucky between Bowling Green and Nashville.

Projections call for construction to be done in time for Cumberland Run to conduct its Oct. 16-Nov. 8 meet on the Corbin property at 75 Buchanan Blvd. off the Corbin Bypass. Combined investment in both enterprises will be about $80 million with more than 200 year-round jobs expected to be created.

"Cumberland Run and Cumberland Mint represent an $80 million investment in Kentucky's tourism and horse racing industries and serve as another example of how the economic momentum that we are experiencing is reaching every community in the Commonwealth," said Governor Andy Beshear. "These exciting new attractions will create good paying jobs for Kentuckians and attract new travel markets to Southeastern Kentucky."

Gov. Beshear was joined by senate president Robert Stivers, senate majority floor leader Damon Thayer and Rep. Tom O'Dell Smith for the ceremony signifying the start of construction that will provide the Commonwealth with a third standardbred track.

"Harness racing has a long, storied history in Kentucky: Think Dan Patch, Greyhound and Niatross at Red Mile," said senate president Robert Stivers, R-Manchester, whose district includes Corbin. "After being on the ropes, there has been a substantial rebound in the standardbred industry. We added historical horse racing, a natural addition and attractive tourism draw to the Commonwealth, and Cumberland Run will be an important cog in getting a harness circuit back in Kentucky to revitalize the region."

Cumberland Run will be the first horse track in Eastern Kentucky since Thunder Ridge, also a harness track, in Prestonsburg closed in 2017.

"Cumberland Run would not have become a reality without the leadership of our state and local officials," Falcone said. "Our sincerest thanks to Gov. Beshear, President Stivers, Leader Thayer and Rep. Tom Smith for their strong support of this project and racing throughout the Commonwealth. We also are grateful for the guidance of Corbin mayor Suzy Razmus, Knox County judge-executive Mike Mitchell and economic director Bruce Carpenter, without whom this project would not be possible."

Last year, the Corbin dates were held at Red Mile harness track in Lexington with the meet funded by the new track's owners. Winchell said then that they wanted to show their commitment to harness racing and didn't want to sit out the year while the facility was being built. Now it's important for the 2022 meet to be in Corbin, he said.

"We want to bring these jobs and out-of-state tourism dollars to Corbin, Williamsburg and Southeastern Kentucky as soon as possible," Winchell said. "We want Cumberland Run and Cumberland Mint to be economic engines for the tourism industry in Whitley, Knox and Laurel counties. While the region is well-known for its spectacular natural beauty, we think we'll fill an underserved need for additional year-round entertainment options during the day and into the night."

Keeneland has worked to bring horse racing to Corbin for a decade, teaming with Winchell and Falcone in the project in September 2020.

"Keeneland is proud to work with Corbin and our friends at Kentucky Downs on the continued growth of racing in Kentucky," Keeneland president and CEO Shannon Arvin said. "We are especially appreciative of the support shown by the local community. Cumberland Run, which has been several years in the making, will strengthen the horse industry, generate millions in tourism dollars for the region and create a destination that makes us all proud."

Construction already has begun on the Williamsburg project, set to open in July.

"It's exciting times for the 86th district and Southern Kentucky," said Rep. Tom O'Dell Smith, who represents Knox County. "I want to thank the Governor for his leadership in the Thoroughbred industry and look forward to the investment from Keeneland and Kentucky Downs of millions of dollars into our local area. Also, I want to thank Speaker David Osborne for sponsorship of the legislation and Senator Stivers' leadership that made this possible."

Cumberland Run will feature a five-eighths mile limestone track, similar to that at Oak Grove Racing near Hopkinsville but with a longer stretch. There will be 150 historical horse racing terminals at Cumberland Run when that facility is completed, including a restaurant, targeted for January 2023. The Cumberland Mint is scheduled to have 450 historical horse racing machines.

Dick Duchossois was a giant in Chicago horse racing

by Neil Milbert

While Dick Duchossois is remembered as having one of the highest profiles in the thoroughbred racing world, the man who rebuilt tradition-rich Arlington Park into what was acclaimed as “the world’s most beautiful racetrack” and renamed it Arlington International Racecourse didn’t accomplish anything of consequence when he dabbled in harness racing.

Arlington’s chairman emeritus and a stockholder in its parent company, Churchill Downs, Inc., died on Jan. 28 at age 100.

Thirty eight years earlier, he joined with three partners to buy Arlington for $19 million from Gulf and Western.

At the time of the 1984 sale, Arlington had harness racing dates at Maywood Park under a 10-year lease agreement following the fire that destroyed its (never rebuilt) sister track Washington Park in 1976.

In 1977 and 1978, the Washington Park harness meetings were held at Arlington, a track with a configuration ill-suited to harness racing, and attendance and handle declined significantly, prompting the Maywood lease arrangement that began in 1979.

The lease extended into the first five years of Duchossois’ ownership of Arlington before ending in 1988. It was renewed for an Oct. 23-Dec. 31, 1989 meeting but negotiations over a further extension broke down.

Maywood’s management contended that the lease conditions offered were identical to those of 1989 but Duchossois refused because he sought special concessions on simulcasting.

Duchossois, claimed: “We weren’t out by design. The conditions of the lease we were offered at Maywood were unacceptable and we were not offered leases by either Hawthorne or Sportsman’s.”

Always eager to innovate in an attempt to win new fans during his time at Maywood, Duchossois introduced Team Harness Racing in 1987, pitting drivers from Chicago (Maywood) against those from New York (Yonkers Raceway). The following year he expanded the concept into a tournament involving Chicago, New York, Detroit (Hazel Park) and Toronto (Greenwood Raceway).

In 1988, at a meeting with standardbred horsemen, Duchossois said he would consider building his own Chicago area track if he couldn’t obtain a lease extension at Maywood.

However, the following year he seemed less inclined. “We’re trying to digest what we’ve done and don’t want new things on our plate at the same time,” he said. “Sure I might be interested in getting back in it in the future. If I ever wanted to build a harness track I’d build it right here at Arlington. We have 325 acres and don’t use it all.”

Duchossois had thought he was on the verge of getting a Chicago area harness track a few years earlier when the owner of Balmoral Park, Edward J. DeBartolo, put the south suburban track up for sale.

Initially, he and the other track owners in the metropolitan area convened and reached a tentative agreement to buy it jointly but then at a later meeting Duchossois surprised his fellow owners by telling them that he had made an independent offer and was in the process of buying Balmoral.

However, when Duchossois began haggling over some details of the sale, Sportsman’s Park president of harness racing Billy Johnston got word that DeBartolo might be willing to back out if he received another offer.

Johnston contacted the New York Yankees’ principal owner, George Steinbrenner — who liked the idea of increasing his involvement with racing — and the Johnston and Steinbrenner families subsequently teamed with members of the Carey family that owns Hawthorne Race Course to buy Balmoral for $8 million in January, 1987.

In 1988, Duchossois acquired Quad City Downs, a downstate track that had been serving as a feeder for tracks on the Chicago circuit and was bolstering standardbred breeding in the state. Foremost among those who got started there is retired Hall of Fame driver Dave Magee.

Because the track was shut down in 1993, in retrospect it seems that the primary reason for the acquisition was to capitalize on the off-track betting parlor opportunities for Quad City Downs that a newly-enacted law had made possible. Quad City Downs itself served as a simulcasting outlet from 1993 until Jan. 31, 2015 when it was permanently closed.

A July 31, 1985 fire that destroyed Arlington’s clubhouse and grandstand during its thoroughbred meeting was the catalyst that made Duchossois into one of the biggest names in racing.

Duchossois was determined to present its signature race, the Arlington Million, as scheduled on Aug. 25. Crews worked around the clock to remove debris, lay down blacktop and set up tents and temporary bleachers, enabling “The Miracle Million” to be run in a country fair setting.

He then bought out his partners — two of whom had contributed $100 for a 4 per cent ownership share for which they agreed to manage the track and a third who’d invested $1 million for an 8 per cent share — and took complete control.

The following year, again using tents and temporary bleachers, Duchossois put on the most lucrative meeting in Illinois thoroughbred and harness racing history, a 13-day stand that offered an average of $377,123 in daily purses and lured horses from 17 states and five foreign nations.

Using the same temporary facilities he held a 91-day meeting in 1987 before taking year off to rebuild and reopen. Amid speculation that Duchossois had shelled out $200 million he responded,

“Only God and my accountants will ever know for sure.”

The intent was to make already nationally renowned Arlington a world capital of racing and a premier entertainment destination and Duchossois poured his private resources into the undertaking.

The money came from Duchossois Industries (now known as The Duchossois Group). It began as Thrall Car Manufacturing, Co., a 35-employee firm that repaired freight cars and sold parts and it was owned by the father of his first wife, Beverly, whom he'd married while serving in the Army during World War II.

Duchossois had dropped out of Washington and Lee University after three semesters to join the Army and went on to become a tank commander under General George Patton, engaging in major combat operations after the Normandy Invasion. He was temporarily paralyzed when a bullet went through his left side and four months later after returning to combat he was struck in the face by a German grenade fragment.

When Duchossois was discharged in 1946 his rank was major and he was the recipient of a Purple Heart and two bronze stars.

The war hero immersed himself in his father-in-law's business, working from 12 to 16 hours daily. By the time he was 30, he was president of the company. Under his direction in the 1950s, the company expanded to manufacturing and evolved into an industrial conglomerate, making him a millionaire. By the time he bought Arlington his wealth had increased to multimillions and in 2018 his net worth was estimated at $63.8 million.

Over the years, without fanfare, Duchossois made enormous charitable contributions. The most substantial was a $20 million donation to the University of Chicago to build an outpatient center in memory of Beverly, who'd died of cancer in 1980 after being treated at the hospital for two years.

During the first four decades of his life, Duchossois resided on Chicago's South Side and in the southwest suburbs. He and Beverly then moved to northwest suburban Barrington Hills to be closer to the show horse activities that their (now deceased) son, Bruce, was involved in. They bought a 120-acre former dairy farm and christened it Hill 'N Dale.

Up to then, Duchossois had never been interested in horse racing. But a conversation about buying a thoroughbred with fellow parents at a horse show put a bug in his ear and in the late 1960s he went to Arlington and bought a bargain basement claiming horse named True Sue. In her first race for him True Sue broke down.

Many years later, he told the Chicago Tribune that the death of True Sue probably was the birth of his “mission to save racing.”

“When you have a failure like that it gets your boiler going,” he said. “You say: ‘I’m going to lick this.’”

By the 1970s, Duchossois had bought farmland adjacent to Hill 'N Dale, expanding it to 600 acres, and had begun breeding thoroughbreds. He assumed a leadership role in the Illinois Thoroughbred Breeders and Owners Foundation (ITBOF) and following the death of Beverly he intensified his involvement. Under his direction what once had been an organization of hobby horsemen began making an effort to influence members of the Illinois General Assembly to enact pro-racing legislation.

And, in turn, his work with the ITBOF set the stage for him to head the four-man group that bought Arlington.

At first, he was the silent partner but after “The Miracle Million” he bought out his partners and brought the same intensity to his racing and breeding endeavors that characterized his transformation of Thrall Car Manufacturing Co. into a conglomerate with diversified ventures consisting of companies that are today valued at $2 billion.

The annual income from his business dwarfed the yearly profits — and sometimes losses — from owning a world famous racetrack and breeding top-of-the-line thoroughbreds but he remained steadfast in his pursuit of excellence. In this perfectionist's one-track mind that entailed bringing the best thoroughbreds in the world to Arlington for the Million and other major races and constantly striving to improve the quality of racing day in and day out.

The 1990 Kentucky Derby and Breeders' Cup Classic winner Unbridled began his career at Arlington and 1991 Horse of the Year and Breeders' Cup Classic winner Black Tie Affair made it his summer home for the final three years of his racing career.

In 1996, Duchossois put up a $1.05 million purse to lure Cigar to Arlington where he won his 16th consecutive race, equaling Citation's modern record that had stood for 46 years.

Riverboat casino gaming invaded Illinois in the mid-1990s and it had a negative impact on both thoroughbred and harness wagering.

In response, Duchossois began clamoring for legislative approval for a “racing industry casino” at his racetrack, claiming that it would make “Illinois racing the best in the country.”

When the legislators took no action he responded by shutting down his track in track in 1998 and 1999.

Although Duchossois didn't get the casino license he coveted the 1999 legislation had enough perks to persuade him to reopen in 2000.

Later that year he made what unwittingly turned out to be an ill-fated move by merging Arlington with Churchill Downs, Inc. (CDI) in the belief that it would ensure the future of his beloved track and make it a monument to his legacy.

“This day is historical for racing,” Duchossois asserted. “This merger will benefit both Churchill Downs and Arlington and more important it will strength our industry in Illinois and North America as well as benefit the horsemen and fans who participate in this sport. This merger will put together a facility and an organization that can compete with anything in the world.”

The merger gave Duchossois Industries 24 per cent ownership in CDI and three seats on its board of directors.

Initially, the results were favorable. In 2002, Arlington was played host to the Breeders' Cup and a crowd of 46,118 came to watch by far the most lucrative and prestigious program in Illinois racing history.

Dan Leary, now the director of marketing and communications for the United States Trotting Association, was Arlington's director of media relations from 2000-2007 and he recalls “the most amazing thing Mr. D. did when I was there was after the Breeders' Cup (when) he asked me for the credentials list and hand-signed about 1,100 thank you letters to the media that attended.

"Mr. D was a great leader and he made my job much easier because of how well he treated the media. Every Arlington Million day, he would visit the Press Box near the end of the day to personally thank the media for coming and covering the races."

"As a person, Dick Duchossois was first class in every way," the late Billy Johnston once recalled. "Very affable and very charitable."

"As a businessman, he was hard-working and successful. He was competitive and would fight at any expense to destroy the competition."

"I was fortunate to know him well as a person and very, very unfortunate to have him as a business competitor."

The former head of the harness meetings at Sportsman's and the ownership group at Maywood and Balmoral was speaking from experience when he cited Duchossois' intent to "destroy the competition."

At the urging of Duchossois, the Illinois Racing Board voted to discontinue thoroughbred racing at dual-purpose Balmoral after its 1990 meeting and at the hearings for 2016 racing dates he teamed with Hawthorne's management to persuade the board to deny harness dates to sister tracks Maywood and Balmoral, which were in the midst of bankruptcy reorganization, thereby forcing them out of business.

Ironically, the long term result of his merger with Churchill was putting Arlington out of business.

Although Duchossois was a major contributor to the Republican Party, he often was at odds with Jim Edgar during the Republican governor's terms in office.

Edgar, who has been involved in both harness and thoroughbred racing as an owner and breeder, once said of him: "He's a very strong advocate for what's best for Arlington. There's nothing wrong with that but there's more than just Arlington."

Duchossois continued to run Arlington his way until June, 2017 when he sold one million shares to the parent company for $158.8 million, reducing his family's interest in the parent company to 6.8 per cent. He lost the three seats on the board of directors and two years later his title changed from chairman to chairman emeritus. That same year he was inducted into the Thoroughbred Racing Hall of Fame.

With CDI chief executive officer Bill Carstanjen calling the shots, Arlington's management began cutting corners, reducing staff, services and maintenance operations.

As fate would have it, in 2019 the Illinois General Assembly finally passed the legislation that Duchossois had been pleading for since the mid-1990s, namely permission for the state's racetracks to conduct casino gambling.

But Arlington president Tony Petrillo astonished the Racing Board by saying that Arlington no longer was interested in becoming a racino.

Shortly thereafter, Carstanjen announced that Churchill was taking bids for the sale and redevelopment of Arlington.

While no one at either Churchill or Arlington would admit it the obvious motive became crystal clear: the reason the racetrack was going out of business was because in 2019 CDI had bought a 62 per cent interest in Rivers Casino, the most profitable of the 10 casinos currently operating in Illinois.

Rivers Casino is only a 20-minute driving distance from Arlington. Closing the track not only would prevent it from opening a casino competitor it also would eradicate nearby thoroughbred racing competition for gambling dollars and do major damage to harness racing in Illinois.

With Arlington out of the picture Hawthorne is the only track in the metropolitan area, forcing harness and thoroughbred horsemen into a time-sharing situation that is unfavorable for both breeds.

There also is reason to suspect that the sale of Arlington to the Chicago Bears was a done deal long before the football team signed a $197.2 million purchase agreement in September. (Closing is expected late this year or early in 2023.)

While Churchill was still presumed to be taking bids, the Bears made a deal with BetRivers, the casino's sports betting arm to become their official partner in introducing that form of gambling that Chicago's professional franchises are entitled to under the umbrella of the 2019 gambling expansion legislation.

A bid to buy the track and perpetuate racing that was made by a group of horsemen and Roy Arnold, an Arlington president during the first part of the last decade, was rejected.

The Bears are expected to demolish Duchossois' beloved track and erect a state-of-the-art football stadium.

Although there's enough room on the premises for the racetrack and football stadium to co-exist comfortably, the Bears' senior vice-president of marketing and communications, Scott Hagel, told the Chicago Tribune's Robert McCoppin in an email: "We are not pursuing any horse racing opportunities on the site."

Duchossois wasn't at Arlington when the track held its final day of racing on Sept. 25 and he uncharacteristically didn't give any interviews during the 2021 meeting.

But, knowing the passion he felt for Arlington, it's safe to say that the 100-year-old man who underwent heart and cancer surgeries several times during the preceding 41 years died with a broken heart, knowing that the magnificent monument to his achievements would soon be destroyed.

He is survived by his second wife, Judi; son and business partner Craig; daughters Dayle (Fortino) and Kim; and step-sons Steve Marchi and Paul Marchi. In addition to his first wife, Beverly, he was preceded in death by Bruce, the son whose passion for show horses put him on the road to glory in the thoroughbred world.

Wake up to Fika Time

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

Fika Time is a horse that gets a little bit of attention for his name. A two-time New Jersey Sire Stakes champion, the pacer received the moniker from breeder/owner Chase Vandervort's wife Louise Arvidsson, who is a native of Sweden. The name means "coffee time" in Swedish.

"She wanted a little bit of a Swedish name, so we went with Fika Time," Vandervort said. "I thought it was kind of neat because most Swedish people have trotters, and we have a pacer that has a Swedish name. It's kind of funny. In the paddock, a lot of the Swedish grooms kind of paid attention a little more when he raced because of the name."

Of course, winning helps attract attention as well. As Vandervort said, "It's the horse that makes the name."

Fika Time, who makes his 4-year-old debut in a conditioned race Saturday (Feb. 5) at The Meadowlands, has won seven of 11 career races and $185,470. Vandervort, who trains the Sunfire Blue Chip-Raiders Favorite gelding, will be in the sulky as Fika Time leaves from post six.

Tim Tetrick drove Fika Time in the New Jersey Sire Stakes at ages 2 and 3, where he was unbeaten in a total of six starts in fields of two or three horses.

"It's been a blessing, and it's been such a surprise," Vandervort said. "Everything happened so fast, so you didn't really have time to enjoy it while it was happening. Looking back on it, it was a pretty amazing thing. I know, obviously, it was a two- or three-horse race, but the money is still in the bank, and we're pretty thankful for that."

"We were very fortunate with the short fields, but I think we still put out a pretty good product with our horse. I think he has talent, but he's kind of unproven. We'll know a lot more in the upcoming weeks. I think we've got to work our way up through the (conditions) and then we'll see what he is. We just want to develop him, do the right thing. We want him to feel good about himself."

Vandervort, a 36-year-old New Jersey resident, has been involved in harness racing for nearly two decades. He started with his sister, Leah, before working for other stables over the years. He has a five-horse stable at his farm, where he also keeps a small broodmare band and spends several months a year prepping young horses for clients.

"I've done a bit of everything," said Vandervort, who in addition to breeding, training, and driving has worked as a blacksmith. "I think this is kind of it."

"Obviously, if somebody called me tomorrow and said they wanted to put 20 one-hundred-thousand-dollar babies in the barn, I couldn't say no to that," he added with a laugh. "That would be fine. But right now, it's a very relaxed pace around here with our couple racehorses and our little business four months out of the year breaking horses for people. We'll see where it takes us for right now."

Last year, Vandervort started 35 times as a trainer, hit the board a total of 20 times with five wins, and earned a career-best $175,552 in purses. In addition to winning a New Jersey Sire Stakes with Fika Time, he won another with 2-year-old male pacer Polaris Breech. That horse is owned by Leah, who also bred him.

"Time has been put in and I'm just happy things are working out a little bit," Vandervort said. "Hopefully, it keeps up that way."

As for Fika Time, it will be one step at a time.

"There is no pressure because I own him and train him," Vandervort said. "As long as he does it the right way, I'm happy. Hopefully he can make his money and feel good about himself and develop into a nice overnight racehorse, or if we're lucky, a nice open horse."

"I don't want to go chasing (the Grand Circuit). I don't want to push my luck too far. I hope I'm wrong about that. I hope he's better than that. I'll feel good about it if I'm wrong. That would be a good thing. But the long-term plan is to have a nice racehorse."

Hanover welcomes first foal by 2020 Horse of the Year Tall Dark Stranger

First foal from Zero Tolerance arrived 24 hours later.

Hanover Shoe Farms welcomed its first foal by 2020 Dan Patch Horse of the Year Tall Dark Stranger Tuesday morning (Feb. 1). The filly is the fourth foal from the Western Ideal mare Livin Life, she a sister to world champion I Luv The Nitelife p,3, 1:48.4f $1,944,667.

"While Livin Life is somewhat of a short, blocky mare her Tall Dark Stranger filly is very long legged with a beautiful head. I'm not surprised though, genetics usually hold true and Tall Dark Stranger is one of the most beautiful and elegant stallions I have seen", said Hanover's Dr. Bridgette Jablonsky.

Hanover is expecting 18 more foals by Tall Dark Stranger including foals out of American Jewel p, 3, 1:48.2 $1,840,565, Bedroomconfessions p, 1:48.4 $1,001,441, Galliebythebeach p, 3, 1:49 $749,898, and Youaremycandygirl p, 3, 1:48.2 $1,566,292 as well as the dams of Abuckabett Hanover p, 3, 1:49.1 $759,783, Filibuster Hanover p, 1:48.1f $1,833,295, Bettor's Wish p, 1:47.3 $2,601,233, Papi Rob Hanover p, 3, 1:47.1f $927,979 and Tall Drink Hanover p, 3, 1:48 $893,532.

Almost exactly 24 hours later, in the early morning hours of Feb. 2, another notable newborn was welcomed by Hanover, a Captaintreacherous filly and first foal from the sensational race filly Zero Tolerance p, 2, 1:51, 3, 1:50.2 $980,736. In addition to her own racing accomplishments, Zero Tolerance is out of a sister to Rainbow Blue p, 3, 1:49.2 $1,428,934.

Liz Buxton dead at 81

Elizabeth (Liz) Buxton died on January 20, 2022 with her husband and daughter at her side after being briefly hospitalized with COPD-related breathing difficulties. She was 81.

Born and raised in Ontario, she came to the United States after marrying Gary Buxton. While working payroll at Rideau Carlton Raceway in Ottawa, she met her future husband after misspelling his name on his paycheck, a subsequent source of great amusement to the family.

After marriage, Liz joined her husband on the harness racing circuit, sometimes working the mutuels at Hollywood Park, Balmoral and the Red Mile until her first child, Brenda, was born. Liz devoted herself to her growing family, a second child, Bret, having arrived in 1971, and remaining a source of stability despite constantly traveling as Gary worked racing meets all over the United States. She greatly enjoyed socializing with the harness racing community and made many friends. In 1975, the family moved to the Los Angeles area and Liz held down the home fort while Gary frequently traveled for his job. As her children grew up, Liz returned to working as a bookkeeper, eventually creating her own business that she only officially retired in 2018. A warm and gregarious person, her home was always open to family and friends from Canada, the harness racing community, and elsewhere. Her love of travel continued in to her later years and after Gary's retirement, they enjoyed traveling the California coast. In April 2021, they celebrated 56 years of marriage.

Survivors should include in addition to daughter Brenda (spouse Stephen Walsh) and their two children Flynn and Violet, there are his son Bret's wife Dina and step daughter Dakota Bales (Cruz Bales) and granddaughter Emilyann Bales and a surging niece Mary Beth Buxton Henry (Fred Henry) and a nephew Brad (JoEllen) who is a trainer at The Meadows.

Luttrell joins Preferred Equine Marketing

Preferred Equine Marketing has announced that Austin Luttrell will be joining the industry's leading sales agency's staff as an account and recruiting manager, according to Preferred's David Reid.

Luttrell has a background in both the standardbred and thoroughbred industries.

After graduating from Transylvania University in Lexington, KY,

Luttrell was an assistant trainer for the well-known thoroughbred operations of Christophe Clement and Kiaran McLaughlin, and was a manager at Denali Stud and Donamire Farm. He also worked for Magic Millions in Australia as a bloodstock consultant.

Luttrell has owned, bred and trained standardbreds, winning his first race as an owner/trainer at his hometown track, the Red Mile.

Luttrell also formed and managed the successful partnership named "Cats by 90, LLC" with over 60 friends who raced in Kentucky and Ohio.

"I'm incredibly excited for this opportunity to work with Preferred Equine. Preferred is a pillar in the standardbred industry and operates on the highest level of quality and honesty," Luttrell said.

"I have tremendous respect for David Reid and the amount of hard work he puts toward getting each horse through the auction ring. I believe my dual-breed background will allow me to build on our great reputation while bringing fresh faces and ideas into an ever-changing industry."

Reid said: "I'm excited that Austin has agreed to join our Preferred team and I look forward to his contributions to our growing organization. With his dual-breed background and excellent work experiences with leading trainers and sales companies around the globe, he brings valuable knowledge that will help service our clients' needs into the future."

Pocono readies to open 2022 season

Preparations for the opening of the 2022 harness racing season at The Downs at Mohegan Sun Pocono are approaching top speed, with a draw today (Feb. 4) at 11 a.m. for the first qualifying races of the year on Monday (Feb. 7) at 10 a.m., ahead of the opening program of racing on Saturday (Feb. 12), which will be drawn on Monday the 7th at 9 a.m.

During February, the track will operate on Saturday the 12th, Saturday the 19th and Sunday the 20th, and Saturday the 26th and Sunday the 27th. Upon switching to March, the track will race a Saturday-Sunday-Monday schedule starting Saturday, March 5. Post times at Pocono this year will be every racing day at 1:30 (an hour later than last year) except for Sundays, when cards will start at 5 p.m. (After the first qualifiers, Wednesday will be the track's regular day for qualifying beginning Feb. 16.)

It has been announced that until March 15 there will be a 90-day qualifying rule on entered horses, rather than the usual 45-day rule, so that will be an adequate equine population available in the first few weeks of the meet.

The track's very popular Game Of Claims racing series will dominate the action during the months of February and March, starting on Saturday the 19th, with horses at various base levels of price trying to earn spots in their rich series Championships. New this year is that the horses in the Game Of Claims do not have to make their nomination payment until they start in the first leg of the Series.

The Bobby Weiss Series for developing 3-year-olds, with divisions for both gaits and sexes, will be the featured attractions during the month of April. A nominating fee of $100 must be paid on all Weiss hopefuls by February 15. Nominating forms for both of these series can be found at <https://mohegansun-pocono.com/racing/horsemen.html>.

The best harness horses in North America will gather at Pocono on Saturday, Aug. 20 for Sun Stakes Saturday, a program where purses could easily exceed $2 million. The four races for leading 3-year-olds will be divided divisionally by current earnings of the horses, with $300,000 top-level events for the Beal colt trotters and the Hempt colt pacers, and $250,000 jackpots for the Delmonica Hanover filly trotters and the Lynch filly pacers.

The top Pennsylvania-sired horses will as usual be featured through the spring and summer, with the Pennsylvania All-Star races kicking off on Saturday, May 8 and the Pennsylvania Sire Stakes and Stallion Series events beginning on Monday, May 30. Pocono will host all eight Stallion Series Championships, worth $320,000, on its Monday, September 5 card.

Perennial Pocono sulky king George Napolitano Jr. is scheduled to be back at the mountain oval, going for his eleventh straight crown as winningest driver and sixteenth in track history. First-time Pocono training champion Gilbert Garcia-Herrera will be on hand to defend his title; also likely right in the mix is Ron Burke, the 2020 Pocono champion who will be inducted into the Harness Racing Hall of Fame this summer.
