As Atlanta burns: Hambletonian-winner up for auction to rid owners of Rick Zeron

Owner Brad Grant said the four majority owners of Atlanta are united in selling the star trotter on OnGait.com in the hopes of retaining her without her troubled trainer.

Atlanta won the Hambletonian and Kentucky Filly Futurity (shown with Scott Zeron) in 2018 and now is embroiled in an ownership dispute with the majority owners selling her to try to buy out trainer Rick Zeron.

Prominent horse owner Brad Grant said he's disappointed and embarrassed that his Hambletonian-winning filly Atlanta is up for auction at onGait.com (view listing info here), but said he and the trotter's three other majority owners are united in the cause of getting Atlanta out of the hands of her trainer Rick Zeron.

"It's a choice that had to be made to... remove Rick," Grant said Thursday.

Atlanta is scheduled to be up for auction until 1 pm (Eastern time) today (Feb. 15). As of 10 pm Thursday the bidding had reached $1.1 million.

Grant, who lives in Milton, ON, holds a 25 per cent share in Atlanta, along with Holland Racing Stable of Niagara-on-the-Lake, ON (25 per cent share), Howard Taylor of Philadelphia (25 per cent share) and Crawford Farms of Syracuse, NY (20 per cent share). Zeron retains just five per cent of Atlanta after selling the majority of his share to the Crawfords last June (full story here).

“The group as a whole – 95 per cent of the ownership – got tired of five per cent basically treating it like it was his horse and his alone,” Grant said.

The issue came to a head Tuesday (Feb. 12) at the Sunshine Meadows training center in Florida. “It was agreed on by the four of us, the 95 per cent ownership group, to move the horse to Tony Alagna’s barn. I directed Tony to do that. He did that,” said Grant, who also has horses with Alagna whose shedrow is adjacent to Zeron’s at Sunshine Meadows. “Later that same day, Rick told his man (Ernie Hendry) to go get the horse. So the guy that owns five per cent is dictating the whole process. When he went to get her, Tony called me and I said, ‘Tony, this isn’t your fight at this time so don’t get into a confrontation...’ I can assure you if I would have been in Florida, Ernie would not have been picking the horse back up.”

Zeron told HRU via text that he declined an “offer of $50,000 for my five per cent,” from the other owners, “as I feel she is well worth in excess of that. Therefore all the partners agreed to listing her on OnGait.

“We couldn’t agree on a price and due to February 15 being stake payments, the only way to have her eligible to all the stakes was to sell,” Zeron said. “The owners agreed to buy her back at a certain price, but if she brings the type of interest I think she should, then anyone can have her.”

Grant said the owners want to separate themselves from Zeron for reasons that go far beyond the fact the trainer is appealing a stiff six-month penalty and $10,000 fine from the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO) (full story here) that led to Atlanta being stripped from contention for Canada’s O’Brien Awards. Depending on the outcome of today’s auction, Grant may further clarify what’s behind the owners’ beef with Zeron.

Michelle Crawford was contacted via text by HRU for comment and said only that she “can’t talk about it right now (because) this is so upsetting.”

Woodbine Mohawk Park president Jessica Buckley said the new integrity rule in place at her track and partner tracks in province, would not have prevented Atlanta from racing in Ontario if she had remained in Zeron’s care since his AGCO troubles are not predicated on a positive test.

“The new integrity rule only covered positive tests (class 1 and 2 and TCO2),” Buckley said. “Therefore, it would not have come into play in this case.”

Winning is in their blood. What is in their joints?

However, Jeff Gural said Zeron is currently not welcome at his three tracks – the Meadowlands, Tioga Downs and Vernon Downs – and, therefore Atlanta “would not have been eligible which is why she is being sold, I guess, to get rid of (Zeron).”

For the moment, Grant said the owners are united in going hard to retain Atlanta.

“We don’t have to bid until (Friday),” Grant said. “My personal opinion on this one will be, if you want her you’re going to earn her, because I’m not prepared, and my partners are not prepared, to give up on this mare. There’s a ton of future with this mare and I’ve spent a lot of money on bad horses so I’m at least going to spend it on a good one.”

Grant said it’s clear Atlanta’s stellar performance in 2018 – a year in which the daughter of Chapter Seven out of Hemi Blue Chip earned over $1 million and the Dan Patch Award as sophomore trotting filly of the year – is not the least bit tainted by Zeron’s legal troubles in Ontario.

Dave Landry

Rick Zeron said he declined the owners' offer of $50,000 for his five per cent share of Atlanta saying the filly was worth more than that.

“First of all, whatever went on (with Zeron) went on in Canada and this mare was not in Canada at any point for any time,” Grant said. “Not for one second do I believe that Rick did anything illegal with this mare. She passed every test, every stakes barn, the whole nine yards. There’s no issue in my mind that this mare (raced clean).”

That said, the souring of the relationship with Zeron has tainted how the other partners remember her accomplishments.

“The disappointing part is to see a wonderful mare and the year we’ve had and not been able to enjoy it because of Rick and the way Rick handled things,” Grant said. “I’ve never seen anything where one individual can try to control a situation. I think it’s embarrassing.

“It’s disappointing and it makes a person wonder why the hell you’re in this business.

“I’ve never had an issue with anybody and it just galls me that a guy that had five per cent of this horse has embarrassed this industry, himself, and discredited this mare without one ounce of remorse.”

Zeron punishment appears ridiculously severe

Also, what I learned from great friends such as Mike Lachance, why training on farms became popular and my pick for the greatest driver colony of all time.

by Ron Gurfein

Tidbits: Update on the Rick Zeron case (full story here).

After being privileged to read details from the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO) case and subsequent appeal by attorney Larry Todd, it is my opinion that a ridiculously-severe penalty is in the process of destroying the livelihood of the trainer. Did Zeron make mistakes? Yes. Did he do anything that was so egregious as to result in the penalties he received? Absolutely NOT.

To begin with, requiring labels on over-the-counter medications is ridiculous. When the decision first came down, I wrote that if heroin or erythropoietin were involved it was bad, but if you read the charges there is nothing of consequence that you couldn't buy in a tack shop. GastroGard is very expensive. Many trainers buy generic versions of the drug with no labels. All it is, is Tums for horses. The two horses that Dr. Joseph Malone allegedly shock-waved were not in to race but in to qualify. Why did it take the AGCO half a year to come up with this pile of garbage? The only guilt I see in the entire case is the labelling of over-the-counter meds. Recently, the commission has fined a similar case $300. What is the true story behind these charges? Larry Todd also requested some pertinent information in his appeal and as of this writing he has received nothing.

For heaven's sake, the man just won the Hambletonian. The public doesn't understand how insignificant the unlabeled merchandise was, and as mob rule usually works, the masses are demeaning Atlanta's amazing victory.

The basis of this entire matter is a rule that makes no sense at all — all bottles need to be labelled. Zeron purchased a generic form of GastroGard (omeprazole – Tums for horses) and most likely saved $30 a dose. The medication came without a label, so someone attached a label to a harmless over-the-counter product.

As for the shock machine use too close to race time, I interviewed Dr. Malone and he said he asked the grooms if the horses were in to go and they said, 'no' probably because it was a qualifier and may not even been drawn at the time.

To the AGCO, if there is more to this than released, so far, please step up and fill us in. If not, please reconsider the harshness of your penalty and put this mess behind us.

Atlanta is being auctioned online at OnGait.com. It's a distinct possibility that this entire sordid affair may have been the cause. So sad.

Bill Cohan asks: When I was a kid all the trainers would stable at the racetrack. When and why did training farms become so popular?

First of all, in today's world it is impossible to stable at some tracks because they no longer maintain barn areas and some new ones, such as Harrah's Philadelphia, were built without any housing facility for horses other than the paddock. The lack of stall space is more indigenous to the Northeast than to the Midwest or Canada. My personal preference was always to be at the track as I think shipping no matter what the distance is tough on both the trainer, the horse and the pocketbook.

BRITTANY FARMS

Shipping in to race started to become popular with trainers that pushed the envelope, and then really became popular with barn area closures. Even I succumbed to peer pressure and stabled Continentalvictory at Showplace Farm with a few other horses.

The transition began to occur in the late '60s and early '70s right about the beginning of the era of the "milkshake" surprise, surprise, surprise.

It's easy to understand that the bandits didn't want to get caught with a tube down a horse's throat by some guard tippy toeing around the barn area. Plus, there were times when they would institute car searches when entering the track, and trunk searches if you were stabled there – two more topics of displeasure for the criminals.

In the early '70s at Monticello there were very few shippers, but I remember one that was a nice older fellow that had a UDR of about .460, which was enough proof that he had discovered tubing.

Also at the Meadowlands, if you think back, the guys stabled there were your everyday vanilla trainers, ie: Jim Doherty, Ray and Larry Remmen, Bill Popfinger, Ted Wing, and me. We all did okay, but it was the wise guys shipping in that were batting .400.

I am not going to point fingers because there were many honest non-PED trainers with homes in south Jersey that found it convenient to use farms because of the proximity to their houses on a day-to-day basis. Unfortunately today it is a necessary evil in my area as there is no barn area at the Big M, Harrah's or Freehold and Yonkers has around 40 horses stabled there.

Andrew Kerns asks: What are some of the interesting things your friends in the business taught you?

For certain my greatest life lessons came on the road with Michel Lachance. Every summer from 1992 till the collapse of Illinois racing we drove all over the Midwest. All the American Nationals in Sportsman's Park, and then Balmoral, The Review at Springfield, the Horseman at Indianapolis, and the World Trotting Derbies at DuQuoin. Lachance is the most regimented person I know. He literally changed my life to the point I would say I might not be here today writing this piece if it wasn't for him.

He taught me to eat correctly. I was always meat and potatoes and desert for sure. Now I actually like fish, don't often eat potatoes and never eat desert. He taught me to go to bed early when I could and not be roaming the streets at 2 a.m., and one of my favorites, to stretch in a hot shower that I still do to this day. He taught me to never put a bad horse in the box for any reason at all. They are better off in the stall or someone else's barn rather than engraving a black mark next to my name. He taught me to stretch a horse out before a major race and how to protect young talented colts. After all that, all I taught him was to drink Manhattans.

George "B" Berkner, may he rest in peace, taught me to eat food I hadn't had since my childhood and best of all taught me how to play craps in the seedy back rooms in the Catskills.

Dennis Payne (R.I.P.) taught me all I know about shoeing the trotter, and was the blacksmith on all three of my Hambletonian winners. To me, both he and Steve Stanley of Red Mile fame were the greatest minds to ever work behind an anvil.

Todd Morrison asks: Which driving colony do you consider the best from the following:

- Yonkers/Roosevelt in the late 1960s – Herve, Carmine, Chappy, Insko and Fontaine.
- Big M 1976-1984 – Campbell, O'Donnell, Gilmour, Webster, Gags, Williams, Doherty, Wing.

- Woodbine/Mohawk 2000s – Christoforou, Jamieson, MacDonald, Hudon, Baillargeon, Ritchie and Randy Waples.
- Chicago 1970-1990s – Magee, Paisley, Busse, Graham.
- Montreal 1970-1990 – Lachance family, Hebert family, Baillargeon, Samson and Cote.
- Big M 2000-2014 – Miller, Sears, Gingras, Campbell and Pierce.

Entertaining question. Before I answer, why did you leave

Lachance out of 2000-2014 and how come Yves Filion and Henri Filion are not mentioned at all?

That said, I would pick the Big M 1985-2000. I say this without reservation. As of this date, Campbell, O'Donnell and Lachance were the most dominant trio of reinsman to race at one venue in my lifetime. Almost every driver on your list, with the exception of a few, has driven for me at least once and I am more than familiar with all of them.

The Yonkers / Roosevelt colony was great in its day, but when the Meadowlands opened they were a bit past their prime. Many horsemen will tell you Buddy Gilmour was the best driver that ever lived. Let's revisit this in five years when Yannick Gingras, David Miller and Brian Sears have a little more limelight. They fit well with any group. David and Brian are awesome for big money and Yannick is just plain crazy good all the time.

New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy (signing the sports betting legislation) has now signed the bill that may provide $100 million to the state's horse racing industry over five years.

New Jersey Governor Murphy signs support for horse racing industry into law

The Standardbred Breeders and Owners Association of New Jersey (SBOANJ) thanks Governor Phil Murphy and the New Jersey Legislature for passing and signing into law an essential measure to propel New Jersey's horse racing and breeding industry. The $100 million over five years will be used for horse racing purse allocations and greatly increase the participation in this thriving industry in the Garden State.

"SBOANJ is grateful for the tremendous support the horse racing and breeding industry has received from the State and the continuous effort to ensure that the many careers and businesses created through the industry are protected," said Mark Ford, president of the SBOANJ. "The New Jersey Legislature and Governor Murphy have made it a priority to create a sound and reasonable appropriation in an effort to bring tremendous economic development to New Jersey. For these reasons, we thank the sponsors and the Governor for their leadership on this issue. This measure guarantees New Jersey's position in the industry in order to compete with the surrounding states."

The horse racing industry and breeding farms not only aid and protect the preservation of open space in New Jersey, they heavily support the agribusiness and ensure thousands of jobs around the state. The new law will encourage growth in these businesses and throughout the State's economy.

SBOANJ would like to express its gratitude for the remarkable work accomplished through our advocacy efforts. The relentless work of the association in conjunction with the valiant efforts of the state will pay dividends for the horse racing and breeding industry and the economy as a whole, allowing us to continue to provide compelling purses that will undoubtedly attract unparalleled competitors back to the state. SBOANJ is also appreciative of the support shown by their longstanding partners – the Meadowlands Racetrack, Freehold Raceway, the New Jersey Thoroughbred Horsemen Association and the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association of New Jersey.

It's 2019, why can't we get accurate finish line camera angles?

by Garnet Barnsdale

Recently, I read a thought-provoking column in another industry publication that discussed how technology could help move the sport forward. There were some interesting ideas presented in parallel with some of the innovations the Pro Bowling Association has incorporated in conjunction with a recent resurgence and a return to network television.

But the immediate thought provoked in me was how some of the current technology just doesn't measure up, starting with the wide disparity in video quality which in one recent case led to a Twitter user complaining to me about the camera angle at Northfield Park.

Twitter user @Rojthedo1 posed this question to me in this tweet:

"@gocashking, Tell me who you think won the 11th race at Northfield Wednesday night?! The patrons at Mahoning Valley went nuts when they put up the results. Thanks, Roj"

Immediately, I opened my advanced wagering deposit and cued up the replay of the race in question – Race 11 from Wednesday, Feb. 6 – and to me it looked clear that the #2 horse, 35-1 shot Song In My Heart had got the win by about a head having slid up the passing lane.

Now, I watch enough races at Northfield Park to understand that there is a certain "angle" that favors the outside horse slightly. That's my bone of contention with this form of technology, but I'll get back to that. Incorporating the angle while I watched, it still seemed clear that Song In My Heart had won over the 3-5 favorite, #1 Revrac Harbor, and I wasn't alone.

"There are many of us have done this for many years. I even called charts. There wasn't one guy in the whole place that thought the 1 won," @Rojthedo1 tweeted. No one is suggesting the wrong number was posted, but the real question here is, in 2019, why do customers need to have to guess at the "angle" at the wire? In this specific case, it almost seems for some reason the angle was even more pronounced than usual somehow because regular players who know its effect still thought it was clear that the inside horse had won.

I'm not here to pick on Northfield Park in particular. I think we all know that the angle favors the outside horse at The Meadowlands and the inside horse at Mohawk Park. But at least at Mohawk Park, there is a close-up slo-mo replay that follows immediately after the race which shows the winner clearly from a straight-on angle, like the one used at the Los Alamitos quarter horse meet. This angle leaves no doubt.

Some tracks show slow-motion replays of the stretch drive that are on such a pronounced angle that it makes it look like the inside horse won easily if the winner was actually reaching up on the far outside at the wire. That's just another "angle" that bettors need to learn.

Harness racing has seen some nice advances in technology in the past couple of years, such as the use of Curtis Macdonald's drone camera at The Charlottetown Gold Cup and providing a live feed of The Stable.ca yearlings training down, or Ryan Clements creation of the Off and Pacing and Catch Driver games which are very popular. But before we start thinking about incorporating other more radical concepts, shouldn't we fix some of the issues that directly impact bettors, like this camera "angle" that many bettors still find annoying?

Statistical record data should be made publicly available

Last Saturday at Freehold Raceway, Nick Surick won seven races on the card as a trainer (all with Andy Miller driving). In fact, not only did Surick win seven races, but he won all seven races that he had starters in. In his possible engagement with history, the first thought that came to mind was if that was some type of record. Where does seven training wins rank all-time on a single card, and has any trainer ever won 100 per cent of his races with as many as seven starts? The immediate answer to all of these questions was: who knows?

There isn't any central location to go to in hopes of finding out what pretty basic records are.

As it turns out, Surick's seven wins from Freehold were indeed a new record specific to Freehold going back to at least 1992, when statistics were first electronically maintained. In winning seven races, Surick broke his own record of six training wins at Freehold, which he accomplished three times previously (twice in November of 2017 and once in November of 2018). But as it turns out, seven wins isn't even close to the record number of wins on a card by a trainer. That record belongs to Donald Eash, who had 12 wins at the Goshen Indiana Fair in September of 2014. In fact, 54 times since 1992 has a trainer won seven or more races, although most of those have occurred at fairs. Of those 54 instances of seven or more training wins, Eash alone owns 17 of those.

To know these statistics, a request had to be made to information and research specialists at the United States Trotting Association (and the representative that assisted me with the information was very timely and helpful, by the way). But the question is, why are seemingly standard statistics not available anywhere to begin with?

In any other sport, these types of statistics and records is commonplace and can be found everywhere. If you're wondering what the all-time record is for number of rushing yards in an NFL game, you can find it in two seconds through a Google search (it's Adrian Peterson with 296 yards). How about what the record is for number of strikeouts in a major league baseball game? The same quick Internet search would show in a second that four pitchers are tied for the record with 20.

Why is it so hard in harness racing to find similar statistics for all-time records? This is a problem with horse racing as a whole, as the thoroughbred industry isn't much better. But is there a legitimate reason as to why this specific type of data isn't available, or can't be accessed free of charge?

It's well known and a major issue to many that data within the industry is kept vastly on lockdown by those who control and own it. It's been long debated previously as to why data such as past performance information isn't free and, similarly, why does it cost money to access sire and breeding statistics? In all of these instances, the purpose of pursuing the data is to invest back in some way into the sport, so why make it more difficult to access data that would lead to more informed consumer decisions?

In the case of statistical records though, it should be even more simple. There's really no purpose or nothing that can be done with the data other than to be aware of the sports tradition and history.

To its credit, the USTA does currently show a sampling of the sports records through the Top Performers section on its website. Here, you can see statistics for the top 50 pacers and trotters for each of the most recent 5 years, plus the top 50 pacers and trotters of all-time from 1992. Those same time periods are also available for the top 50 trainers and drivers, which all in all isn't a bad start.

But anything in addition to that isn't available. If you want to know any type of record specific to a track for a horse or person, you're going to be out of luck. For example, finding out what the record number of wins is for a driver at Cal Expo or finding the top 10 fastest trotters ever at Hoosier Park isn't something that's readily accessible except to a select few.

An advertisement for Woodbine's Standardbred Pick 4. It features the Woodbine logo (a red circle with a white 'W' and a star) and the text 'WOODBINE™'. Below this, 'STANDBRED PICK 4' is written in large, bold, black and red letters. To the right, '$50,000' is written in large, bold, black letters, with 'GUARANTEED EARLY PICK 4 EVERY RACE DAY' in smaller red text below it. At the bottom, it says 'For more information, visit WoodbineSB.com/Pick4' and includes a small disclaimer: 'Know When To Take The Reins. ResponsibleGambling.org TM Trademarks of Woodbine Entertainment Group.'

The USTA was gracious in granting my request for data to determine if seven wins was a Freehold training record, but depending on the types of future data requests, a fee could be incurred for the requested data to be retrieved. Understanding there is a cost to have a resource be available to query ad-hoc data requests, here's where the process could be easier.

Statistical record data should be open to everyone, so that those interested in the sport can track noteworthy occurrences. Similar as to how search, filtering and grouping features already exist within Pathway, a similar function could be put into place that allows anyone to search through the record breaking or milestone types of data. This isn't to say that the USTA needs to become the harness racing version of the Elias Sports Bureau, but it would be nice if the sports record keeping organization could be just a bit more open with the records it keeps.

For a sport that is so rich with history, records and data, that information should be visible for all to see.

Readly Express - the best trotter in the world?

by Thomas Hedlund

Swedish-bred Readly Express (Ready Cash) had an unusually good weekend last week. On Friday night, the Timo Nurmos' trained 7-year-old was named Sweden's Horse of the Year for 2018 at the Awards in Stockholm and on Sunday afternoon, he played with his opponents in Prix de France ($398,000) at Vincennes racetrack in Paris.

Readly Express was outstanding in the voting for best Swedish older horse at the awards on Friday (Feb. 8) and in the Horse of the Year category, where even trotters bred in foreign countries compete. Readly Express got 46.3 per cent of the votes, compared to Propulsion's 38.3 per cent. Elitloppet winner Ringostarr Treb got 8.4 per cent and Mellby Free 7.1 per cent of the total votes.

In the 1.3 mile Prix de France, Readly Express started from post five and Björn Goop was eager to hit the lead with the son of Ready Cash. When the duo was in front, Goop was allowed to keep the pace really slow for about 600-700 meters, which ended up in a very fast last quarter of a mile. When Bold Eagle had to do the job first over, Goop controlled the field and let Readly Express sprint away to a comfortable win in mile rate 1:53.

Uza Josselyn gave up the lead to Readly Express at an early stage of the race and followed to a silver medal ahead of Bold Eagle.

Jean-Michel Bazire, who dominated the Prix d'Amérique by winning with Belina Josselyn and finished second with Looking Superb and fourth with Davidson du Pont had same three horses in the field in Prix de France, but the mission for team Bazire was over after just 200 meters. Davidson du Pont made an early break behind the gate, while Belina Josselyn galloped after 150 meters and obstructed Looking Superb, who made a break soon after.

Social media connected to harness racing business couldn't hold back the superlatives when Readly Express flew home in the stretch and, of course, the fans want to see Timo Nurmos' trotter at Solvalla, in Elitloppet at the end of May this year. In past years, the breeding business has taken too much of power from the horse and it's not yet decided how his connections will handle that this year.

His next target might be in Prix de Paris over 2.5 miles, which most certainly will be an easy task for the champion trotter. Normally, the best horses in Europe (France) avoid this race and this year it's suitable for Readly Express to enter it.

What we should keep in mind regarding Readly Express is that he, so far, is quite unexperienced for a horse in the elite trotting class in Europe. His 34 starts and 24 wins have resulted in a lifetime earnings of $2,276,621.

Prix de France replay.

Evangelina Blue takes Prix de Centaures

In monté race Prix de Centaures ($250,000), the first choice Fado du Chene made an early break and normally all his chances to hit the podium would have disappeared at that point. But jockey Paul-Philippe Ploquin gave his horse another shot for the lead and despite the lost lengths, Fado du Chene was seen in front in the last turn.

Evangelina Blue (Speedy Blue) disarmed the heavy favourite in the home stretch and the Jean-Philippe Mary trained horse landed in a mile rate of 1:55 over 1.3 miles.

Fado du Chene finished second and Feeling Cash third.

The F-crop (4-year-olds) in France seems to be an eminent kind and when dominant Face Time Bourbon is missing from races, Falcao de Laurma (Uniclove) is the one that collects the big trophies. Falcao de Laurma defeated Face Time Bourbon when they met in Prix de tonnac-Villeneuve earlier this winter and last Sunday the Thierry Duvaldestin trained trotter was impressive when he won Prix Ephrem Houel ($125,000) at Vincennes racetrack.

From the lead, the 4-year-old Uniclove son won comfortably for driver Anthony Barrier in mile rate 1:59 over 1.7 miles.

Falcao de Laurma was sold as a yearling at the sales in Deauville 2016 and the owner paid $38,000 for him.

Interesting addition in Svanstedt's stable

Åke Svanstedt will enlarge his stable in New Jersey with one of the best mares in Sweden the previous seasons.

Cantab Hall mare Darling Meares has been a star since her early days at the track and as a 3-year-old she won the biggest race for mares in Sweden, The Oaks, where she earned more than $300,000. Trainer Stefan Persson has followed a nice plan for his horse throughout the years and during 2018 Darling Mearas won European Championship for Mares ($195,000) in mile rate 1:54.4 over 1.3 miles at Solvalla.

Twelve wins in 28 starts and a lifetime earnings of nearly $700,000 is what Darling Mearas has achieved so far.

"There are too few big races for mares in this category in Sweden and that's the reason why we made this decision," said owner Calle Wihlborg to harness racing magazine Sulkysport.

Darling Mearas will land in Åke Svanstedt's stable within two-three weeks.

"Together with trainer Stefan Persson we reached the decision that Åke Svanstedt is the best choice and historically, Åke has shown that he is really good of letting older horses develop. Åke will decide when and where she is ready to start and we have staked her for Maple Leaf Trot," said Wihlborg.

The Legend returns

Ten-year-old Bit Of A Legend will make his seasonal debut Saturday in the open handicap at Yonkers as he preps for the Levy Series.

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

New Zealand-bred star Bit Of A Legend is ready to make his 2019 debut in Saturday's (Feb. 16) $44,000 open handicap at Yonkers Raceway and trainer Peter Tritton says the 10-year-old stallion looks as good as ever.

Last year, Bit Of A Legend won five of 21 races, finished second seven times, and earned $549,315. His victories included the Battle of Lake Erie in a career-best 1:49.4 around Northfield Park's half-mile oval and he was runner-up in the George Morton Levy Memorial Pacing Series championship, Joe Gerrity Jr. Memorial, and Dan Rooney Invitational.

Since arriving in the U.S. in 2016, Bit Of A Legend has won 26 of 77 races and earned $1.79 million. Other top wins include the Gerrity, Bobby Quillen Memorial, and Molson Pace in 2017 and the 2016 Levy championship.

"To me, he seems to be coming up every bit as good as he did last year and the year before," said Tritton, who trains Bit Of A Legend for Vonknoblauch Stable LLC. "He's probably a little more forward this year than he was last year. We gave him a month off, but we couldn't give him much more because he got too full of himself. But he had a really good break. I'm very happy with where he is at the moment."

Bit Of A Legend, driven regularly by Jordan Stratton, is a son of Bettor's Delight out of Soky's Legend. He was a two-time Australasian Breeders Crown champion Down Under, where he won 20 times and earned $659,686, giving him lifetime earnings of $2.45 million.

Tritton will use the next month to prep Bit Of A Legend for the Levy Series, which begins March 16 at Yonkers. The series consists of five preliminary rounds followed by a $200,000-added final on April 20.

"With any luck through the series he should be right there," Tritton said. "We'll give him one or two more runs before the (preliminary rounds). The beauty of him is that he can go right through without a break. He enjoys his work and Jordan looks after him pretty good."

"I just hope we can get through the series and get to the final and draw good. I thought he could have won the last couple if he had drawn better, but he drew the outside both times. It's hard to win those finals from the outside."

Tritton is planning to keep Bit Of A Legend on a schedule similar to previous years, although he might not stake the stallion to events on bigger tracks. Bit Of A Legend is winless in eight starts on tracks larger than a half, with two on-the-board finishes.

"He can go around the big tracks, but he's so slick on a half and can get around those corners so quick," Tritton said. "I think he loses his advantage on the big tracks, where some of them gain an advantage."

Bit Of A Legend is one of 10 horses in Tritton's stable. Three other New Zealand-breds could compete in series action at Yonkers, with Pacing Major pointed toward the Levy and mares Sell A Bit and Shezza GNP penciled in for the Blue Chip Matchmaker.

"Pacing Major is not as good as Legend, but he's a good racehorse," Tritton said. "With the right trip he can go (1):51 around Yonkers. He's done it a couple of times. I think he'll acquit himself quite well."

"In the Matchmaker, I'll run Shezza GNP. She's probably not good enough to win, but she'll be right there. She can go with those mares. I may run Sell A Bit. She's qualifying on Friday. She's getting close to a million dollars. I'd love to get her to a million dollars. I think I might give her another shot at it."

"We'll keep our fingers crossed. We just need a bit of luck."

Strongest Blooded Horse Winter Sale ever

The annual Blooded Horse Winter Sale held Feb. 12, at the Champions Center in Springfield, OH, was the strongest in its 56-year history. It was standing room only as owners, trainers and breeders flooded the pavilion to restock stables and acquire broodmares.

“People love coming to a sale to actually see and touch the horses they want to buy,” said sale manager Jerry Haws. “It may take a bit more time and resources, but the dividends far outweigh the cost. Bringing horses to a packed venue of eager buyers is a tremendous marketing tool. Consignors, for the most part, were quite pleased.”

The sale topper was the Muscle Hill 5-year-old trotter Southwind Cobra who was purchased by Loren Yoder of Iowa for stallion duties for $54,000. Consigned by Windy Ridge Farm, the Grand Circuit winner sported a record of 2, 1:53.3 and earnings of $236,834. Runner up honors went to the highly competitive 4-year-old pacer Gerardo, a winner of $104,000 last year. Consigned by Doug Dunbar of Ontario, the son of Rockin Image was bought near the end of the sale by Kayne Kauffman for $50,000. Dunbar also signed the ticket for the solid conditioned pacing mare Big Lis for $35,000, one of 29 that Canadian buyers took home. Of those, six were purchased by Brian Doyle for export to Ireland, including the lovely Art Major broodmare Miri for $17,000.

The Burke Racing Stable consignment included a pair of fancy trotting fillies that got breeders' attention. Winterwood Farm acting as agent had the final bid on Pink Fringes, a daughter of Uncle Peter from the family of B Cor Pete 9,1:53.2 ($893,076) and Tall Cotton 8,1:51.3f ($871,621) for $26,000, and Dublin Valley Farm secured Pat On The Back, a Donato Hanover daughter of Buck I St Pat 7,1:51 ($2,320,637) for $15,000.

The always popular Spring Haven Farm consignment offered the fast 5-year-old Somebeachsomewhere mare

MyLittlesurfergirl p,4,1:51.3 who was purchased by Gray Thunder II Stable of NY for $18,500, and the attractive 4-year-old trotting gelding Fan The Flames that Brandon Presto acquired for $19,000 to race at The Meadows.

For complete sale results visit bloodedhorse.com. The next sale is May 14 and it's an exceptionally strong market for racehorses. Entries close April 22.

Goshen Yearling Sale set for Sept. 8

Goshen Standardbred Horse Sales has announced that the 2019 Goshen Yearling Sale will be held on Sunday (Sept. 8) at the Mark Ford Training Center in Middletown, NY. The date marks the fifth anniversary of the sale that has grown into the pre-eminent outlet for buying New York-bred trotters and pacers within the Empire State.

The Goshen Yearling Sale has annually offered high quality stock from top breeders that include Hanover Shoe Farms, Winbak Farm, Blue Chip Farm, Concord Stud, Cameo Hills Farm and Boxwood Farm and has presented well-bred yearlings that are eligible to the lucrative New York Sire Stakes program each year.

"We are excited to announce this year's date and to get things rolling towards another great sale," said Mark Ford, president of the Goshen Standardbred Horse Sales Co. "Last year's sale was a great success and many of the horses purchased there will be making their raceway debuts only a few months from now in preparation for stakes season."

Some notable stakes-winning alumni of the Goshen Yearling Sale from the last two years include Clear Idea (American Ideal—Glass Maker 1:50.4, $463,546), Scuola Hanover (A Rocknroll Dance—So Artsi 1:50.4, $234,558), Natalie Hanover (Chapter Seven—Nanticoke Hanover 1:54.1, $189,305), Rootin Tootin (Roll With Joe—Wild Retreat 1:51.2, $185,287), Venier Hanover (Well Said—Valmctorian 1:53.3, $154,300), Shes A Billionair (Artiscape—She's Game 1:54.3, $145,618), Ostro Hanover (Betterthancheddar—Ozmopolitan 1:52.1, $134,156), Teasin N Pleasin (Cr Excalibur—Brontease 1:58, $121,745), Box Of Luck (Lucky Chucky—New DVD 1:56h, $105,625) and Major Blake (Art Major—Bet Your Life 1:51.4, $84,408).

The sales facility is located at 90 Slaughter Road, Middletown, NY, which is within a 90-minute drive of many major racetracks and training centers in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, making it a very convenient location to buy your next champion.
