Big M not paying lip service to betting customers

With revamped wagering changes, Meadowlands looks to lead the way.

For all the (rightfully deserved) talk of tracks that feature high takeout rates wagers and that don't have the bettor's best interest in mind, the Meadowlands racetrack is taking a different approach.

Beginning two Fridays ago on Feb. 7, the Meadowlands dramatically altered both its betting menu and takeout rates associated with those wagers. In the changes, there is an implied understanding from the Meadowlands that to truly grow the sport, the amount of money bet on it must increase.

As key parts of the changes, the Meadowlands is bringing back a "real" (non-jackpot) Pick-6 wager. That would make the Meadowlands one of a small number of harness tracks to offer the traditional Pick-6. In addition to Pompano, that has been long-standing in offering the wager, Hawthorne just added the non-jackpot Pick-6 too as their new season opens.

The most popular wager through the years at the Meadowlands and maybe even the most popular multi-leg wager across racing in general is the Pick-4, and the Meadowlands has responded by adding a second Pick-4 as part of its nightly wagering options. Like the Pick-6, having two Pick-4s on the card is a return to something that the Meadowlands has offered in the past.

For not just these wagers, but for all other multi-leg wagers, including the nightly Pick-5 and the Can-Am Pick-4 offered on Saturdays, takeout rates on the bets have been slashed 40 per cent going from 25 per cent all the way down to 15 per cent.

In announcing the changes through press release, Meadowlands chief operating officer and general manager Jason Settlemoir said that, "We understand that horseplayers are a major part of the racing industry," and that "they deserve our respect."

These are words that you sometimes hear from those within the industry, but the actual action rarely reflects it. What good is saying the horseplayers need to be respected, while at the same time having takeout rates north of 30 per cent? What the Meadowlands is doing is attempting to set a model that the rest of the industry should follow.

A year ago, the Meadowlands received an appropriation from the state of New Jersey that allowed them to significantly raise their purses and be able to compete with tracks in neighboring states. Now, just a year later, the Meadowlands is essentially passing on that benefit to its customers, the bettors. This is in stark contrast to tracks that, for years, have been handed billions of dollars in subsidies for purses, but, in turn, have largely neglected bettors.

So far, in a premature data set of just two weekends, handle at the Big M hasn't changed since the implementation of the wagering changes. In fact, the last $3 million handle was the Saturday before the changes took place. But that's something bound to happen with an increase in time. For example, I'm almost certain that handle for tonight's (Feb. 21) card will be the highest Friday handle since the changes took place.

In part, it's because the Pick-6 wager will already have a carryover of $14,376 from when it went un-hit last Saturday. The pool that night was $22,558 and, completely guessing, maybe handle for the bet tonight hits $100,000 including the carryover. That, combined with the fact that there will be more eyes on the program overall as bettors look at the Pick-6, in addition to it now being the third Friday since the takeout changes, I think that Friday handle will blow by the $2.1 million from last week's number.

What the Pick 4, 5 and 6 wagers do is create excitement. There's always more of a buzz going when there's real opportunities for big scores, and the Meadowlands will now offer that with regularity. Years ago, when the Meadowlands offered the Pick-6, one of the pools after a few days' carryover was $500,000. If or when that occurs tonight and a few carryovers are strung together, you're going to see that type of excitement again and it's going to have a trickle effect on the entire product. And with the 15 per cent takeout across the board to go with it, there is a real incentive for bettors to take part.

As part of the new changes, the Meadowlands did drop its 20-cent Survivor Pick-10 wager which was probably for the best anyway. You could argue that wager wasn't particularly friendly to the smaller horseplayer, and that the money that did go into that bet siphoned off other wagering opportunities throughout the card.

By reducing takeout across the board on its multi-leg wagers, and not just reducing it as a token gesture on one or two wagers like some tracks have done, the Meadowlands is showing a commitment to its customers and I think that an increase in handle will soon reflect that as time goes on.

Of course, takeout alone isn't a be-all end-all solution to all problems the sport faces, but what the Meadowlands is doing is extremely positive. It's a nod to horseplayers that the track cares about its customers and wants to do what it can to grow handle and further interest in its racing product. Hopefully it becomes a model that other tracks will be able to follow.

by Mark McKelvie / Woodbine communications

Woodbine Entertainment announced Thursday that the inaugural Mohawk Million for 2-year-old trotters will officially be contested on Saturday, Sept. 26, 2020 at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

The deadline to purchase one of nine slots in the Mohawk Million was Feb. 18 and Woodbine has received purchase contracts to fill all slots. A $55,000 payment was required by the deadline and those that receive slots will be required to submit a second $55,000 payment by June 1.

"We are thrilled to announce that the inaugural Mohawk Million is officially moving ahead," said Jim Lawson, CEO of Woodbine Entertainment. "On behalf of our board of directors and our fans, thank you to the owners who are helping make this innovative event a reality. We are confident that this race is going to be a huge success and we hope that it will become a staple on the Woodbine Mohawk Park stakes calendar."

Woodbine will not be releasing the final number of purchasers or names at this time, in order to allow any additional purchase contracts and cheques submitted by mail to arrive.

Woodbine asks that any owners who have mailed a purchase contract and have not received confirmation of its arrival to immediately contact Bill McLinchey, Director of Racing, atbmclinchey@woodbine.com.

The final number of purchasers and next steps regarding slot distribution will be announced in the coming week.

The Mohawk Million is a $1 million (USD) harness race for 2-year-old trotters that follows a buy-in formula. The race has 10 slots with nine available for purchase at a cost of $110,000. The 10th and final slot will be awarded to the winner of the William Wellwood Memorial, which will be contested on Saturday, Sept. 12, 2020.

The Mohawk Million will take place on Saturday, Sept. 26, 2020 at Woodbine Mohawk Park in Milton, ON and will become Canadian harness racing's richest race of the season.

Thoughts on claimers, suing Santa Anita and which tracks have the best food

Plus, condolences to the Harris family, a response to Marty Adler, great news about the Lexington restaurant scene and the interesting case of Rick Dutrow.

by Ron Gurfein

Tidbits: I want to offer my most heartfelt condolences to my friend Andrew Harris and his family on the loss of his very young wife Amanda to that dreaded disease. It is beyond my comprehension why these horrific things happen. Andrew, your kindness and talent will make the road ahead a lot less bumpy.

Innocent or guilty, it matters NOT. If they want to get you they surely will. In today's world racing, commissions in certain areas have carte blanche.

Last year I wrote a piece on the Lou Pena suspension, explaining that the ridiculous guidelines of perusing his veterinarians calendar of injection would make anyone guilty. They got away with the ruse and did so again on appeal. I am not praising Mr. Pena one bit and I am sure he was using some form of PEDs, but you can't put a man in jail on hearsay.

Well, it appears that our thoroughbred counterparts have gone one better. Rick Dutrow, the running horse version of our Lou Pena, got 10 years and a $50,000 fine when an investigator "found" syringes and drugs in a desk drawer in his barn at Aqueduct Racetrack in New York, subsequent to his receiving a positive test.

Recently, in a letter from a retired state steward to the commission, it was stated that he believed that the evidence was planted.

This letter has been turned over to the Queens district attorney and there is an ongoing investigation into the validity of the claim as I write this article. Stay tuned.

Big news to Lexingtonians who are real foodies. Frank and Dino's, the fabulous Italian restaurant in the heart of Boca Raton, FL is moving to Short Street in Lexington, KY.

On and off for the past 50 years I have been a Lexington resident. Never in that half century has there ever been a fine Italian restaurant. In honesty, there has never even been a good one. Carlo Vaccarezza is moving to Lexington. The horse trainer/restaurateur is moving his prized operation to Kentucky. It will make Floridians sad, but will be a shining light to Lexingtonians.

As an almost local, I have written about the Lexington culinary arts for a long time. I have liked many eateries in the past five decades, none more than the Peppercorn Duck Club in the Hyatt Hotel that was very short lived. Deauville, Dudley's, and the new Jeff Ruby's have been my downtown local favorites of late, but if Carlo brings the same quality fare to Lexington that he has prepared in Florida for the past 10 years he will, without a doubt, be the premier restaurant in the town.

A shout out with best wishes for a speedy recovery to my dear friend Meegan Sattelberg, queen of the Fred Grant barn, who underwent a successful knee replacement surgery Tuesday morning. The word is the patient is walking already.

To Marty Adler who decided to assassinate my character in Feedback Sunday (2020-02-16 Feedback), you don't know me at all. I don't get paid enough to be selling my soul to fat cats as you call them in the industry. I love this sport and have had amazing success for a kid from the big city. I write from my heart and anyone who really knows me understands this. I also select my topics in a fashion that will appeal to my readers.

I am certain my following would much prefer to hear about a million dollar yearling than a $5,000 claimer.

As for the Pennsylvania situation, I said not to worry but I also said we must be proactive and not sit on our hands.

I am sure I cannot change the direction our sport is headed, but I sure as hell can do my best to keep it above water.

I am not overreacting. Please note that for every Marty Adler admonishment (they always appear in Feedback as they never private message me) you see in HRU I get 100 emails thanking me for supporting the sport we love so much.

"Of all the gin joints in all the towns in all the world, she walks into mine" Rick Blaine (Humphrey Bogart) quote about Ilsa Lund (Ingrid Bergman) in Casablanca. Please don't ask me why I printed this. I love the line and the film.

Richard Evans asks: Murray Brown posted a statement on Facebook asking why people entered horses in claiming races and then cried about their horses being claimed. What were your experiences racing claiming horses?

Claiming races are a necessity to the sport since it is not as easy to go down in class today as it was when we raced

ABC's. You need to make purse money to survive and avoiding putting a price on your horse will be more costly in the long run.

I have seen many trainers that never put a horse in a claiming race because they like the income from the training bill. This is counterproductive and a slap at the owner. All horses with the exception of a valuable filly or mare should be in claimer when they no longer can win a conditioned event.

My personal experience is that I have never entered a horse for a price that I didn't hope was in someone else's barn the following week.

However, there were two exceptions, both from times gone by. They were both $10,000 to $12,500 claimers and won at least half their starts. The first was Jerry's Pluff, one of the first horses I ever owned. He raced at Yonkers and Roosevelt mostly driven by "The Red Man" (Carmine Abbatiello). The second was Meadow Fox who unfortunately I didn't own but trained for The Goldfarb brothers and Jeffrey Greenberg and won about 10 races for them. The eventual disposition of the two of them is far beyond this old writer's memory but I really can't say I remember either one being claimed.

Joe Santoro asks: What is your opinion as to the validity of George Sharp's suit against Santa Anita and the Stronach Group and his "humiliation" due to the scratch of his horse?

For those of you not familiar with the case, Mr. Sharp had a horse, League of Shadows, in the California Cup Sprint scratched at post time and felt it unfair as his veterinarian and others deemed the horse fine. To boot he found himself humiliated by the event.

This is a disruption caused solely by the PETA media hype. To me that is a frivolous lawsuit at best.

The plaintiff's reasoning is that because of all the equine fatalities the management of Santa Anita is forced to make arbitrary scratches to show the public that they are serious about addressing the problem. I personally feel sorry for anyone that would believe The Stronach Group would stoop so low.

I am nearing the end of this segment and I am thinking to myself that maybe I should have passed on this question. Sorry, my readers.

I must point out that in no way would a state veterinarian ever partake in such a fool hardy scheme.

Charles Foster asks: What track restaurant has the best food? What restaurants near a track has great food? What track restaurant has the best hot dogs?

Unfortunately since the demise of Roosevelt Raceway and it's famed Cloud Casino or maybe Blue Bonnets Raceway in Montreal, there really are no top restaurants.

To be perfectly fair, I haven't sat down to dinner in a racetrack with the exception of the Red Mile, Keeneland, and Gulfstream Park in maybe 20 years or more.

The Red Mile, since the culinary department has been taken over by Fran Stalcup has had some wonderful selections in their enormous buffet offering. If you attend the fall meet in Lexington you must try their fare.

One of my all-time favorite restaurants near a track and that of many foodies like myself is still going strong right around the corner from the Meadowlands going north on route 17.

IL VILLAGGIO, put simply, has fabulous food. Any pasta in Ralph's marinara sauce is to die for. To give you some idea how much my family loved this place, when my kids were in New York City with a million great restaurants available, they would often have me pick them up and bring them to New Jersey for dinner at Il Villaggio. The quality of the food and the preparation is beyond wonderful.

I still like Tombolinos just outside the north gate of Yonkers. Giannis, not far from Pompano, remains a great dinner spot.

As for the best hot dogs, I love them but never seem to eat them at the track. However, the Dog House near the Meadowlands also on route 17 has a great selection and, to me, they are as good as you could ever want. Don't judge the place from appearance wait till you taste the food.

Thanks to all of you for your kind words. Please keep the questions coming in and have a wonderful week.

Bercury Rising

Pennsylvania's Bill Bercury on why he never forgets the mantra "Harness Racing is Fun."

by Chris Lomon

The four words on Bill Bercury's race bike serve as a daily reminder to himself, and others, of what standardbred racing should be all about.

Even on the rainiest, windiest and downright dreadful days in Pennsylvania, there's very little, if anything, that can bring down Bercury, a long-time horse owner and trainer.

That sunny outlook, however, can lead to the occasional good-natured ribbing from his fellow horsepeople.

"I have the words, 'Harness Racing Is Fun' on my race bike," said Bercury, who's based in Slippery Rock, a borough in Butler County, PA. "Sometimes, when it's miserable outside, or you're in the middle of winter, people will tease me when I go rolling by on the track. They'll say things like, 'So, is harness racing still fun, Bill?'"

For the man who has no more than six horses in his stable at a time, his response, usually in the form of a smile, is always the same.

And despite the odds suggesting otherwise, Bercury has proven that less can be more when it comes to standardbred success.

Even so, there are two particular hurdles that immediately come to mind when it comes to maintaining a winning operation.

"The declining opportunities for the better horses is one challenge," said Bercury. "It makes it a little more difficult to pay what they're worth. The Meadows has not filled their open pace or open trot consistently over the last year. They've eliminated their open mare trots. So, it's a little more difficult. We've been racing a little more at Northfield because of that. That's one of the challenges we have facing us now."

Another one is the work that goes into keeping a band of a half-dozen horses in winning form.

Bercury views those efforts as a source of pride.

"In order to have success with a small group of horses requires a lot of attention to detail and a good eye," he said. "It also requires the understanding to know not every horse you have will work out the way you hope. We work very hard, watching for opportunities to buy good horses. My wife (Renee) has a very good eye for them. She does a great job of taking care of the horses as does my assistant trainer, Mike McDowell. They are hands-on every day. We are all out there every day, seven days a week. We make sure the horses are happy and sound. You get to those little problems before they become big ones.

"And Renee's constantly coming up with horses that fit our stable well. That's the first thing – to get a good athlete and when you do, doing everything you can to have them fit in your stable. If they don't fit into your stable and perform, admit your mistake, and go and get another one. Don't sit there and pray. Praying's good for everything, except the weather and your horse's performance."

The amiable horseman hardly needs any divine intervention.

In 2019, Bercury fashioned a .580 UTRS (Universal Trainer Rating) and won the title in the 'less than 300 starts' category.Over 123 starts, his pacers and trotters notched 51 wins and earned $617,870, an average of more than $5,023 per start.

"I'm proud of the consistency. We have horses that have performed for years and they continue to perform. They are not overnight wonders. They consistently go out there and average $4,500 a start, and the horses continue to be in that training average of .500. That's pretty exciting. They are dedicated, capable athletes, who we do everything we can to take good care of."

His six-pack of stars includes Touchamatic, 2019 Older Pacing Mare of the Year at The Meadows, and winner of 18 of 36 starts last year. Eight-year-old mare Barn Girl, has 66 lifetime triumphs from 132 starts and over $860,000 in purse earnings. Wind Of The North, a 10-year-old trotter, 55-time winner, and million-dollar earner, is on the mend, and on the road to a return.

"There are so many of them I could talk about," said Bercury. "Touchamatic, she's a full-sister to the Breeders Crown winner American History. She's just a hard-working, dedicated, big, strong, sound athlete, who loves to race. She is never in the corner of the stall when you come to get her. She's right there, ready to go. Right now, she's the star of the stable.

"Barn Girl has been a wonderful mare. She holds the world record on a half-mile track for a mare. She's won over half of her lifetime starts. I mean, how many horses do that? She had a few problems at the end of last year, but we're working to bring her back, slowly and comfortably. I think she's going to come back and race well again. Wind of the North… a millionaire. He's just happy, strong, and sound. I don't know what else I can say about him. I just bought Blue Ivy (A daughter of Captaintreacherous) at the end of last year. She's a 4-year-old now, and she has five wins in a row. She's been on vacation and she's getting ready to qualify. What an impressive horse she is."

Bercury's sizable contributions to racing don't end at the wire.

He's been instrumental in the Meadows Standardbred Owners Association's (MSOA) marketing efforts, and has helped The Meadows develop and improve its Super Hi-5 wager.

"I've been part of the MSOA for the past six years, up until now," said Bercury. "MSOA has done a lot of great things for the sport. They have done a tremendous job in pushing harness racing in western Pennsylvania. Lori Romanetti (MSOA secretary, and board member) is doing great work. Dawnelle Mauk (Marketing Director, MSOA), she is the consummate professional. She does a great job of finding opportunities for racing publicity. Evan Pattak (writer) is getting race reports to the individual newspapers – we get articles all over western Pennsylvania – when a horse wins. It's all out there. That's something the MSOA has to be very proud of."

Just as Bercury is proud of a small-scale stable that continues to deliver big-time results.

Bill Bercury.

Don't expect Team Bercury to rest on its lofty laurels, or hang up its tack any time soon.

"I think having a smaller stable gives you the opportunity for excellence. You're not there trying to filling holes, or trying to get your owner two horses because that's what they are looking for. It's about being able to maximize the production of each horse you have in your stable. We only have six in our stable. You have to insist on excellence for each one of your horses."

On this day, Bercury is driving to The Meadows where he'll soon be in the sulky for morning training.

"The sun is shining and there's not a cloud in a sky," he said.

Which sounds like it would be a great day for harness racing.

"Absolutely," said Bercury. "But, really, every day is."

Just like his race bike says.

Questioning a rare Superfecta carryover at Northfield

by Garnet Barnsdale

Last Saturday night at Northfield Park, an accident-marred race — which thankfully did not result in any serious injuries — caused a rare Superfecta carryover that caused abuzzbecause it seemed unfair to anyone who made a bet on that Superfecta in that race.

It started in Race 5, a $7,000 claiming race for fillies and mares. When pocket-sitting 8 to 5 favorite My Three Girls — in rein to leading driver Aaron Merriman — broke stride rounding the final turn then stumbled and fell, there was unfortunately no time for the trailing horses to avoid her. The two horses battling it out in front of her were clear and one of the trailing horses managed to get around her affected rivals (after getting briefly tangled) and finish the race in third, but distanced.

This meant that the official finish order showed three horses that completed the mile intact so there were the usual Win, Place and Show payouts and Exacta and Trifecta payouts. What started a minor Twitterbuzz was the Superfecta payout that showed that anyone holding a ticket with the first three finishers got a "consolation" payout of $1.40 for every 20-cent wager paid to 8-4-3-All while $5,363.04 of the $9,276 bet into the Superfecta pool got carried over to the 6th race Superfecta pool.

This prompted a promotional tweet from the Northfield Park Twitter account: Upcoming 6th Race Superfecta - $5,363 carryover - $20,000 guaranteed total pool! One follower of this account asked the question many others might have been thinking:

"Can you please provide the rule where the track gets to carryover the pool if paid to all because no one finished. Seems pretty horrible that the track gets to benefit because no one else finished."

Rob MacLennan asked the question. No reply was tweeted.

The intent of this column is not to pick on Northfield Park because it seemed fairly obvious that they were simply following whatever rules were at their disposal. But it still rightfully left a bad taste in some bettors' mouths. Punters who bet the Superfecta in this race had no opportunity to cash the ticket because there were not four official finishers. So, should they be penalized and have more than 50 per cent of the monies bet taken and carried over into the next race (while those that correctly forecasted the top three finishers be given a tiny "consolation" payoff that paid to "all in the 4th slot)?

Imagine you buy a lottery ticket and the machine that rolls the numbered balls out malfunctions and only five of the six balls draw. Would it be fair if they paid part of the prize pool to anyone having those five numbers on their tickets as a consolation prize and carried the rest of the money over to the next draw? There are only two options that should be considered in cases like this. The entire pool should pay to bettors that had the first three finishers on their tickets, or the entire Superfecta pool gets refunded. You shouldn't take any portion of bettors' money when they didn't have a chance to cash due to the rare events that occurred within the race. Bottom line is, no bettor had the opportunity to cash because there was no official fourth-place finisher.

We aren't talking about a huge amount of money here as there was $9,276 bet into this Superfecta pool. But $5,363 of that amount was carried over to the next race and that carryover helped generate a pool of more than $65,000 — by far the biggest pool of the night by more than $35,000.

The rub here is that carrying over a majority of a pool when no bettor correctly selects the top four finishers in a typical race just isn't the same as moving part of the pool to the next race when no one had the chance to cash. It defeats the spirit of the rule. There has to be a better way.

Bob Quigley, pioneering racing executive, dead at 90

This obituary, written by David Grening, originally appeared in the Daily Racing Form here.

Bob Quigley, a former racetrack executive in New Jersey and Texas, a horse owner and a member of the Harness Racing Hall of Fame, died Monday (Feb. 17) in Florida of natural causes. He was 90.

Quigley, a native of Atlantic City, NJ, worked his way from a low-level employee in 1951 to the position of vice president and general manager of Atlantic City Race Course. He was GM at Atlantic City from 1968 to 1975 when he was tabbed by Sonny Werblin, CEO of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, to become the general manger at the yet-to-be-built Meadowlands Racetrack in East Rutherford.

Quigley oversaw the construction and development of The Meadowlands, which became a leader in standardbred racing while also conducting a fall thoroughbred meet. With Quigley at the helm, the Meadowlands offered harness racing's first $1 million race, the Meadowlands Pace, which was won by Niatross on July 18, 1980. Three weeks later, The Meadowlands ran the $2,011,000 Woodrow Wilson, the first $2 million race in the history of horse racing. Quigley helped bring the Hambletonian to The Meadowlands in 1981.

After eight years at The Meadowlands, Quigley was hired by businessman Robert Brennan to be the president of Garden State Park, a track Brennan was rebuilding after a fire destroyed the grandstand in 1977. Garden State Park opened on April 1, 1985. Quigley served as Garden State president until 1992 when he moved to San Antonio, TX, where he saw the construction of and served as the president of Retama Park until he retired in 1995.

Quigley served as a director and member of the executive committee of Harness Tracks of America, and a director of the United States Trotting Association. He was inducted into the Harness Hall of Fame in 2013.

Rich Orbann, who worked with Quigley at Atlantic City and Garden State, said Quigley was a father figure for him.

"I don't know that Bob had an enemy," said Orbann, who lives in Boca Raton, FL. "In the horse racing industry, I don't know that there's anybody else I can say that about. Bob was just a great guy. For me, personally, he was like a father to me."

Orbann said he remembered the day he had to call Quigley to let him know he wouldn't be going with him to Retama as had been discussed.

"He said, 'Richard, I certainly hope you have made the correct choice for yourself,'" said Orbann, who eventually became a racing executive with Penn Gaming before retiring in 2005. "I've been in tears all day, this has really hit me. I've never had anyone support me like Bob did."

Orbann said that Quigley's wife, Wanda, was by Quigley's side when he was pronounced dead at Aventura Hospital in South Florida.

In retirement, Quigley owned horses and his recent winners included Most Happy Fella and High Jingo, the latter a New York-bred who won a race last August at Saratoga and who, on Jan. 29, finished third in a claiming race at Gulfstream. Quigley's trainer was Jason Servis.

In addition to his wife Wanda, Quigley is survived by son Kevin and daughters Kelly and Karen. Quigley has five grandchildren.

COSA sponsorship puts you in sulky through VR arcade game

The Central Ontario Standardbred Association (COSA) has partnered with The Farm Games, creators of Off and Pacing & Catch Driver, to bring you a never before seen experience — a fully immersive VR arcade harness racing game.

Ryan Clements of The Farm Games said he is excited for the opportunity: "We were thrilled to have found a partner in COSA to help develop this game. Without them it would have remained just a dream, but now it is a reality. This type of industry partnership is exactly what we need in order to continue innovating within the sport we love. We are very grateful for the opportunity, and we believe this game is going to create some waves."

Fans will feel like they are truly a part of the action as they sit in the sulky and control their horse using realistic reins. The game will put the player directly into a race with other Catch Driver players, so others can play along from their phones.

Bar Hopping book full and closed

The 2020 book for Bar Hopping has been announced as full and closed. A son of Muscle Hill, Bar Hopping 3,1:51.4 ($1,292,433) is standing his fourth season at Hanover Shoe Farms in Pennsylvania. Bar Hopping's first crop of foals sold as yearlings in 2019 and averaged an incredible seven times his stud fee, with individual prices as high as $350,000, $185,000 and $175,000.

"Bar Hopping is a beautiful horse, he's tall and long and very modern looking. In my opinion, he's one of the very best looking trotting stallions at stud today. He has a flawless gait, a superior pedigree and won several of the classics. His 2019 yearlings looked and acted special and sold accordingly. We are very excited to see his first crop race in 2020 and want to thank the breeders that have supported Bar Hopping in his first four years at stud " said Hanover's executive vice-president Dr. Bridgette Jablonsky.

Ernst Benz announces partnership with Tetrick Racing

As the evolution of time continues, corporate America has become the well-oiled machine that helps many sports grow and prosper. Tetrick Racing is proud to announce their partnership with Ernst Benz. Ernst Benz watches are inspired by the spirit of travel and known for their accuracy, durability and legibility. These timepieces are created with the fine art of watchmaking and are investments that can be handed down for many generations. Beyond incredible craftsmanship, Tetrick Racing was most impressed with Ernst Benz's philanthropic work. "We believe if you are lucky enough to be successful in what you do, it is your job to give back," said Mr. Leonid Khankin president and CEO of Ernst Benz and second-generation watchmaker. Leonid is no stranger to big partnerships. Ernst Benz has worked with Dan Marino of The Dan Marino Foundation and created a watch series to aid in funding schools for autistic children. This is just one of the many A-list relationships Ernst Benz has created to strengthen local communities.

The Tetrick Racing and Ernst Benz partnership is committed to working together to create a series of watches that will give back to standardbred aftercare. As Leo explored the world of harness racing he was thrilled to recognize how much we love and respect our horses. Although the creation of a Tetrick Racing and Ernst Benz watch series is still in the works, one detail is certain and it is that a substantial percentage of each watch sold will go directly to New Vocations Racehorse Adoption Program. New Vocations is a 501 (c)3 charity that assists in transitioning horses from racing to becoming riding horses for nearly three decades. We look forward to a long-term relationship between Tetrick Racing and Ernst Benz.

For more information on Ernst Benz, head to ErnstBenz.com.
