Arlington closure will cause harness racing some whiplash in Illinois

The venerable Chicago thoroughbred track will close at the end of 2021, likely pushing harness racing to a fall-winter schedule at Hawthorne.

by Neil Milbert

The projected sale and redevelopment of one of North America's most celebrated thoroughbred tracks, Arlington International Racecourse, at the end of its 2021 meeting, will have a whiplash effect on harness racing in Illinois.

Bill Carstanjen, chief executive officer of Churchill Downs, Inc. (CDI), announced Tuesday (Feb. 23) that Arlington's parent corporation will use the Chicago-based real estate firm CBRE to market the 326-acre site of the track which held its inaugural meeting in 1927.

Arlington's original grandstand and clubhouse were destroyed by fire in 1985 and when the luxurious rebuilt facility reopened in 1989 it was widely acclaimed as "the world's most beautiful racetrack."

The departure of Arlington will leave the Chicago metropolitan area with only one racetrack, Hawthorne Race Course, and that's the crux of the problem for harness racing. Since the sister tracks Maywood Park and Balmoral Park were forced out of business after their 2015 meetings, the thoroughbreds and standardbreds have been time-sharing at Hawthorne.

"We all suspected this would happen so it doesn't come as a surprise," said Tony Somone, executive director of the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Association (IHHA). "We've known for awhile that we need a second standardbred racetrack in the Chicagoland area. For the next couple years, Hawthorne will share the facility with us and the thoroughbreds. Until another racetrack is built we'll just have to hang on.”

This year, Hawthorne will conduct a May 7-Sept. 26 harness meeting that is sandwiched between March 6-April 25 and Oct. 1-Dec. 31 thoroughbred meetings. When the thoroughbreds leave Hawthorne on April 25 they will move to Arlington for its April 30-Sept. 25 meeting.

If Hawthorne were to transition to a summer thoroughbred meeting and conduct standardbred racing during the fall, winter and spring in 2022, Somone believes “that would be a disaster” for the harness horsepeople. It would leave them without a Chicago base during the summer months and confine those who chose to remain in Illinois to the State Fairs at Springfield and DuQuoin and the county fair circuit.

“We have to be able to race at least part of the summer at Hawthorne,” Somone insisted. “If we don’t what would we do with our Illinois-bred stakes program?”

“If we had to race 50 days at the State Fairgrounds in Springfield we’d probably be okay with that but there are a lot of tricky parts to make that happen. It’s easier said than done.”

A longshot possibility would be a meeting at the state’s other track, Fairmount Park in downstate Collinsville, across the Mississippi River from St. Louis. It once was a dual-purpose track like Hawthorne, but ended harness racing after the 1999 meeting. This year Fairmount’s thoroughbred schedule calls for racing on Tuesday afternoons and Friday and Saturday nights from April 27-Sept. 6.

The main reason Fairmount might not want to resume harness racing is because the 2019 legislation that allowed Illinois racetracks to conduct casino gambling and have race books also called for a harness track/casino/racebook in any one of six townships in Chicago’s southern suburbs. Because of the location, it undoubtedly would lure many more harness horsepeople than Fairmount so the hassle involved in racing standardbreds for only a couple of years and then going back to a meeting exclusively for thoroughbreds probably wouldn’t be financially worth the effort.

Rick Heidner, a video gambling entrepreneur and real estate developer, had planned to buy state-owned land in Tinley Park and build the racino with the support of Hawthorne, and the Illinois Racing Board granted him dates for an inaugural meeting in December, 2020. But, after the Chicago Tribune disclosed that Heidner had a longstanding business relationship with a banker with alleged ties to organized crime members, the state backed out of the land sale and the Racing Board rescinded the dates.

Although the COVID-19 pandemic has left the harness track that the legislature envisioned in limbo, the Arlington situation should be a catalyst for luring would-be investors. There also is the possibility that losing applicants for the new casino licenses in Waukegan and Chicago that are permitted under the 2019 law then will focus on getting the racino license in the south suburbs that will also enable them to conduct sports betting and open off-track betting parlors.

Meanwhile, Hawthorne and Fairmount are going full speed ahead in constructing the casinos at their tracks.

In stark contrast, Arlington chose not to apply for either a casino or a racebook after having pushed for their legalization for many years. Ironically, when Arlington’s former owner, Dick Duchossois, merged the track with CDI in June, 2020 in a $71.5 million deal — and his privately-held company became the parent corporation’s largest shareholder by far — there was a short-term string attached that would have allowed him to increase his holdings if the legislature legalized slot machines at the racetracks.

Since 2015, CDI has bought back the lion's share of the stock held by the Duchossois family and Dick Duchossois, who continued to be Arlington's hands-on chairman after the merger, has been relegated to the role of chairman emeritus, making him a figurehead at his beloved track.

A parallel development was CDI's 2019 acquisition of a 61 per cent interest in Rivers Casino in Des Plaines. Rivers Casino is the most financially successful of the state's 10 existing casinos and it is located only 10 miles from Arlington. Last week, CDI unveiled plans for an $87 million addition to house a more slot machines, a poker room, an events ballroom and new restaurant.

In addition, Rivers is bidding for the license for the new casino in Waukegan, a few miles from the Wisconsin border on the outer fringe of Arlington's market area.

Like the harness horsepeople, thoroughbred horsepeople, members of the Racing Board and officials of the Village of Arlington Heights (where the historic track is located) weren't caught off guard by Carstanjen's announcement. The handwriting was on the wall in 2019 when Arlington declined to apply for a casino license and last July it became almost a foregone conclusion when Carstanjen said in a CDI quarterly earnings call that "the land will have a higher and better purpose for something else at some point."

His statement this week said the 2019 law's tax regulations and requirements for a portion of an Arlington casino's casino gambling revenue for purse subsidies would make it "financially untenable."

However, in a seeming contradiction, Carstanjen reiterated that CDI is interested in trying to relocate Arlington's dates to either another location in the Chicago metropolitan area or elsewhere in Illinois.

"We are committed to Illinois thoroughbred racing and will consider all options in working toward opportunities for it to continue into the future," he said.

In no uncertain terms, in a counter-statement, Illinois Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association (ITHA) president Mike Campbell set the record straight: "Churchill spent two decades lobbying Illinois lawmakers for the authority to develop a casino at Arlington. But since purchasing the majority stake in nearby Rivers Casino, Churchill has all but abandoned any meaningful commitment and instead devoted itself to ensuring that Arlington could not become a gaming competitor to Rivers.

"The license is not Churchill's to move. Moreover, the notion that a seasoned gaming operator would relocate a racing license away from a state-of-the-art modern racing facility near the heart of the Chicago metropolitan region to some yet-to-be determined location is absurd.

"Churchill is just trying to obfuscate from the fact that it cares only about maximizing profit and will gladly sacrifice the spirit of the Illinois law and the livelihood of working Illinoisans to serve its greed."

This is the second in a monthly series of profiles of members of the team at The Meadowlands that matter.

Even though James Davis has only been an assistant security manager at The Meadowlands since December of 2020, he's definitely not the new kid on the block, because this is actually Davis' second tour of duty at the famed mile oval.

One evening in 1991, a 23-year-old Davis was at The Meadowlands Fair, which was set up in the parking lot of Giants Stadium next to the racetrack, and what happened that night would change the direction of his life and career.

"It was posted that they were hiring [at the racetrack] so I put in for a part-time position in the security department," said Davis. "I saw it was really diverse at the racetrack and the opportunity opened up for me because I was part-time."

At that time, both the stadium and track were part of the Meadowlands Sports Complex, which was owned by the State of New Jersey and operated by the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority.

In 1993, the year after he married his wife Mary, Davis was approached about a job change.

"I was asked if I wanted to go on the backstretch, which was a Grade 1 full-time position in the backstretch area with more pay and it was the right timing," said Davis. "So, I went to the backstretch until 2011 when it was privatized and Mr. Jeff Gural bought the track."

During his time on the backstretch, Davis moved up through the security ranks.

"First, I did patrol, then I was promoted to desk clerk, then to sergeant, where you drive around and check the guys that are patrolling," said Davis.

Meadowlands security officer Darren Polite first met and worked with Davis years ago on the backstretch.

"He was my sergeant," said Polite. "It was like a big family back there. We all knew each other, the horses, the trainers, the barns and we all knew our jobs, especially James. He was a stickler for the rules. He made us all better. You're only as good as your team. If you're not good, your team's not good. That's what he believes in."

There is no question that Davis enjoyed his time working on the backstretch but his wife may not have always felt the same way.

"I used to come home and my wife would be like 'Put those clothes and boots out on the porch,'" said Davis with a laugh.

"When I started working there, you'd see the horsemen and their love for the horses and you'd see how they'd take care of them [at all hours] then you'd see actual races and you'd start talking to the trainers and owners and the grooms that actually lived out there and you became attached," he said.

His hard work did not go unnoticed, and in 2011, he was offered yet another opportunity.

"I was approached by the HR department – because of my work ethic I was told – and asked if I wanted to go to Bayonne, which is an Off-Track Wagering facility called Winners as Assistant [Security] Manager,” said Davis.

Again, Davis was diligent and was promoted to Security Manager at Winners Bayonne.

Most people would think that when the pandemic hit last year, and the racetrack and Winners Bayonne were forced by the state to close, that all the employees got a three-month break. In most cases that would be correct, and although Davis would have loved to have spent more time at home with his daughters Courtney and Brianna, who are currently attending the University of Pittsburgh at Bradford and Stockton University, respectively, security doesn’t get time off.

“During the pandemic, when everything was closed down, I worked in the surveillance room at the racetrack,” said Davis. “[Once everything opened back up] I was asked again to come up to the Meadowlands Racetrack because there were people out sick in the barn area where you have to sign in the horses with health and Coggins papers and I have knowledge of that so I was asked again to come up and assist.”

Once again, Davis’ good work was noticed by his superiors.

“He did work intermittently at my location so I had an opportunity to see his work style, his work ethic and then when the position in my department became available, I went to my Assistant General Manager [Marianne Rotella] and said, ‘I want James here,’” said Tom Ciccone, the Meadowlands’ security director. “He’s the kind of guy we need. Very professional. Well spoken. Knowledgeable. Has a lot of experience and time at The Meadowlands and so I lobbied to get him transferred from [Winners Bayonne] to the position of assistant [security] manager at the Meadowlands Racetrack. Jim has been a vital part of my security department. His work ethic is second to none. His commitment to the company and the security department is second to none. He’s a team player. He’s a good example and role model for everyone.”

Since Davis was security manager at Winners Bayonne and is now an assistant at the racetrack, it could be seen as a step down, but that’s not his point of view.

“I don’t see it as a demotion. I see it as a promotion because it’s a larger facility,” said Davis.

Since returning to the racetrack, life has not been perfect for Davis. His mother, Bernice, died from COVID-19 on February 15 and he also missed some time after he contracted the virus.

But through everything, Davis continues to be a consummate professional, which now includes dealing with all the state restrictions due to the pandemic, including mask wearing, which not all patrons always adhere to.

Davis remembers one specific incident where a patron who had his mask pulled down was given a verbal warning.

It just so happened that Meadowlands chief operating officer and general manager Jason Settlemyre was walking the floor, as he often does, and saw the patron pull down his mask again.

“I enforce rules and regulations, policies and procedures, and when Mr. Settlemyre said he took it down again, since I had already warned him, I escorted [the patron] out, personally.

“I look for vigilance. I look for the security guards to patrol the areas and report suspicious activities and unruly patrons. So, we can nip it in the bud so to speak and remove parties that are being a little abrupt and cursing a little too much. Pretty much I do things as a reminder. 'If you continue to do this, I'm going to have to ask you to leave.'"

Settlemyer said he appreciates Davis and said he's a "hard working, dedicated employee."

In the short time they've worked together, Ciccone also acknowledges what Davis brings to his team.

"Our dress code for the security department was a little relaxed and Jim came in with almost a full-on suit and when I told him to dress comfortably, he came in dress shoes, dress pants, a shirt and tie and a jacket," said Ciccone with a chuckle. "And we're wearing khakis and polo shirts. That's Jim, he's a professional. He's old school, meaning you come to work dressed like you're going to work."

Ciccone has six assistant managers, both full-time and part-time, and is proud of their diversity, since of the seven, only two are white.

"The good thing about it is, between the staff, between us, there is no color," said Ciccone.

That diversity is important when you consider that it appropriately reflects the diversity of the patrons of both the racing and sports book.

"What the security [department] does is secure the safety of the patrons as well as the employees and makes it go smoother for all of the departments," said Davis. "It gives me pride to know I'm there and doing what I'm supposed to do through the years. That's why I'm there and I believe the work that I do makes it easier for other departments."

"I believe with structure and rules and regulations that's what keeps a company going. Without structure, even in families, things could go left or right without any control. You don't want total control, but you want things to work accordingly to move to that goal that everybody wants."

GRASSROOTS PERSPECTIVE

with CHRIS LOMON

Patience in the bike has helped Braxten Boyd's rising career

by Chris Lomon

Whenever Braxten Boyd talks career highlights, the "cookie monster" quickly comes to mind.

The veteran pacer, a horse bred and owned by Brett Boyd Racing Inc., wasn't exactly a longshot when the starting car gate sped away from the field assembled for the first race at Running Aces on Aug. 18, 2019.

With his young driver sitting in the race bike, Bestinthebusiness, at 5-1, got away quickly and assumed command, holding a one-length lead after the opening quarter. After the duo yielded top spot at the half, they were back in front and holding just over a length advantage at the stretch call.

At the wire, the pair had a crafted a length score and with it, Boyd had notched his first pari-mutuel win.

Dee Leftwich

In 2020, Braxten Boyd set career best numbers with 48 wins and earnings exceeding $300,000.

The victory was even sweeter considering the milestone came with his father's horse.

"He's our family horse. In every way, he's part of our family. We bred him and he's done so much for us, helping our family reach new heights in the business. He's a once-in-a-lifetime horse."

And a horse, now 13 years of age, that no doubt lives up to his name.

"For us, absolutely. He is the best in the business. He's pretty funny. He's a cookie monster. It's sort of, 'Give me my treat and leave me alone.' He's a good one though."

The same can also be said of Boyd.

An accomplished athlete at Hillsdale High School in Michigan, he figured out early on in life that he would one day find his way to a standardbred career. He was around seven or eight when he started jogging horses with his father and jogged his first one alone at the age of 10.

After learning the ropes from his father, Boyd worked under the tutelage of Gene Miller in Minnesota.

Starting out in 2017, he saw limited action in his first two years, winning two races and posting a pair of seconds from six starts. His first official win came July 6, 2018 at the Eaton County 4-H Fair in Charlotte, MI, when he drove Megatron to victory.

In 2019, Boyd won eight races and had 34 top-three finishes from 91 appearances. Last year, he recorded 48 wins from 429 starts.

In 2020, he set career best numbers, posting a record of 48-60-60 in 433 starts good for earnings exceeding $300,000 and a UDRS of 0.234.

Boyd, currently competing at Pompano Park, has had plenty of backing from longstanding horsepeople along his journeys.

"I would say the biggest challenge for me was just getting started. I'm lucky enough to have my own horses, so hopefully, people can see what I'm capable of and have faith to put me on their horses. It's pretty cool to see how far I've come because at the beginning, I didn't get a catch drive [at Pompano] until about a month after I came down to Florida. [Long-time trainer] Cassandra Uppal, she was the first person to give me that opportunity. I did pretty well and they started naming me on more of their horses. She really gave me that kick-start out here.

"It was the same thing when I was at Cal-Expo last winter. I was lucky enough to have Quentin and Kim Schneider put me on basically their whole barn there. They were okay with me learning. They knew I was new to driving and they were willing to accept the rookie mistakes I made. They helped me out tremendously. It was the same thing at Running Aces. I wasn't driving that much, but strange as it sounds, COVID helped me out because some of the drivers weren't allowed to come back at a certain point with the pandemic protocols."

Boyd said he is grateful to have his own horses to drive.

Currently, he has eight with him – racing four – in the Sunshine State.

"I'm lucky to have my own horses and have capable ones too. They allow me to show people I can get the job done because they're good enough to get the job done. Every horse in my barn is completely different. I have three horses that are comparable in that they can all pace about :52 on their good days, and :53 on their bad days. But you have to drive all three of them differently. They all go the same speed, but they all require a different approach. It's a good bunch to have."

That group includes Bestinthebusiness, who has 241 lifetime starts, 51 wins, and 127 top-three finishes.

In 2020, the son of Another Mile (MI), a 38-time winner, won three races and had five seconds from 14 dashes.

"He tore a suspensory, so he's been on the shelf, but we'll get him ready to go to Tioga."

For now, Boyd will focus on elevating his skill-set in the sulky, picking up invaluable lessons from each drive.

What's the most impactful lesson the soon-to-be 21-year-old has learned so far?

"To be patient. It's hard, at my age, to be patient. You just want to race and go, go, go. That's the worst thing to do. The biggest lesson is to be patient – be patient with your horses, be patient when you're driving."

A talented golfer, Boyd has also taken some of what he's learned on the golf course and incorporated it into his daily life at the racetrack.

He sees several connections between the two sports.

"When it comes to driving, you have no choice but to take things race-by-race just as you take things hole-to-hole in golf. If you let one race ruin your night and you have five horses to drive, you're going to drive all those other ones badly. If you drive one badly and it bothers you, it could potentially set the table for a bad night. And that's not fair to the horses, the owners and the trainers. When it comes to golf, you can't let one bad shot or one bad hole ruin your round."

As for what he's most proud of in his career to date, Boyd points to a particular horse.

"On February 7, I was able to win with a horse called Reys N A Ruckus [a 6-year-old pacing son of Mattarocket]. He's a good boy. Just seeing him grow over the past year has been very rewarding. He wasn't doing that well and he's really taken a liking to my program. He's won eight races for me since last June. He's been very, very good to me. That's one of the greatest things I've experienced. His owner [Geno Sullivan] is an incredible guy. I know he thought the horse had the potential that he's showing now. He might even have more potential than he has now. He works hard every time he's out there."

Just like the man in the race bike.

Monday night I was buzzing after going 10-for-10 with my Western Fair picks

by Garnet Barnsdale

Monday afternoon (Feb. 22) started out innocently enough with me sitting down to watch the card of harness races from The Raceway at Western Fair looking to make a few wagers on the selections that I provided to the Tips From The Pros section of the Ontario Racing website (full story here). When my top pick in the opener, Miss Chili Pepper, got the job done for driver Lorne House, I innocently tweeted a familiar refrain that many public handicappers do for amusement. "You can't sweep the card at The Raceway if you don't win the first!" I tweeted with tongue in cheek, never really expecting to create a buzz during this typical Monday card as I started to pick winners off one by one.

Would my tweet become prophecy? You'll have to keep reading to find out. My Best Bet in race 2, West River Cindy was facing an overmatched group and she got the job done as the 6-5 favorite. Despite going off as the overwhelming 3-5 chalk in race 3, Ideal Space may have been a fortunate winner as she rode the rail to the lane, the beneficiary of a pocket pull that went awry by second choice Crystal Dragon. Ideal Space saved all the ground, angled out in the lane, and wore down pacesetter Mark Your Paige to get up by a 1/2 length in 2:02 flat. Just like that I was 3-for-3, none of these winners particularly hard to come up with.

After 1-9 shot Veneno won the 4th and Jessica's Legacy crushed the field by 12 expanding lengths in the 5th, I proudly tweeted that my ice cold Pick 5 would have got you more than $98 for every buck. While that doesn't seem like much, imagine how many times you can hit it if you have five singles!

Race 1 - (4) MISS CHILI PEPPER tried to blast from the widest post here last week but she couldn't clear and paid the price. From the middle of the gate she has a much better chance to clear to the front and she gets top call. (3) XELENE BAYAMA also had a tough trip here last week and she has a good chance to improve moving inside;

On to the back part of the card we go five winners in tow, but only halfway to a perfect game still not really even considering it might come down to the last race. I mean, you always get beat somewhere, right?

Race 6 featured a pacing warrior making his 14-year-old debut. Amazing Quest – by Badlands Hanover out of the Keystone Raider mare Catch Raider – had already notched 93 wins from 376 lifetime starts for a stellar win percentage close to 25 per cent in 11 years of racing action. A perusal of the past performances and some quick math revealed that Amazing Quest's five rivals had tallied 70 fewer wins than he had to date. It seemed like a good spot for the veteran and he didn't disappoint. Driver Garrett Rooney sent him right down the road in 2:01 flat for what I thought was a juicy $8,60 mutuel.

So now I'm six for six and not being superstitious, because, who really expects to go 10 for 10, I start chatting about it on Twitter. My top pick in the seventh, Quizzer, is a no-go and I scratch onto the winner Sports Nation, who jogs by 7 1/2 lengths and my top choice in the eighth Homey Joe rallies for a popular win at 3-5.

Clearly feeling my oats at this point, with only the late double to go, my confidence starts to swell as two of my best plays remain to get me back into the dugout having pitched a perfect game. I am so confident that I come up with this rhyming tweet: HOMEY JOE wasn't late and we went 8 for 8. Now looking for nine in a line with SIMON SAID, hoping we don't go dead.

Simon Said paced home a comfortable 3 1/2 length victor and it was all up to my spot play Fern Hill Breeze in the nightcap. At that point I had a flashback to July 28, 2016 where only a horse named Rosberg getting nailed in the final strides of race 3 that night prevented me from going a 10-for-10. Would history repeat? I was hopeful that Fern Hill Breeze would take advantage of his rail post and take the field on a merry chase. Driver Travis Henry had the same idea and he and Fern Hill Breeze set out for the front immediately and he paced unstressed on the lead until the 3/4 pole where he faced a stiff challenge by 4 to 5 favorite Jack of Clubs at the 3/4 pole. Obviously hearing my pleas from 187 KM west, Fern Hill Breeze left it all on the London track to stubbornly hold on to a 3/4-length win and perfection was mine! My second ice cold Pick 5 of the card returned a healthy $570 and I added a pile of Canadian loonies to my glory.

Announcer Sugar Doyle, obviously following my Twitter feed, provided the icing on the cake finishing off his race call with this beauty: "Fern Hill Breeze has Garnet Barnsdale going 10 for 10 in an Ontario Racing Tips From The Pros sweep!" (full story here; shoutout at the 3:08 mark)

With that, one more item was scratched off my bucket list. Now it's up to Josh Allen to go get me a Super Bowl win. Go Bills!

EUROPEAN REPORT

with THOMAS HEDLUND

In The Money strongest in Criterium des Jeunes in Paris

by Thomas Hedlund

The $205,000 Criterium des Jeunes for 3-year-old trotters was held at Vincennes in Paris on Sunday (Feb. 21) afternoon and the event was definitely worth seeing with optimistic drivers pushing the pace to high levels throughout the race.

Philippe Billard's Ideal Lignerles had to defend himself in several turns in front and when Inoubliable, who was one of the favorites in the race, connected on the leaders outside after three quarters of a mile, the pace was pushed really high, which resulted in two horses unable to fight for the victory when the home stretch waited.

When first choice Italiano Vero attacked with less than a half mile to go in the 1.3-mile race, the pace once again reached a high level and leader Ideal Lignerles had to give up the fight for real, even if he deserved high grades in combat for finishing fifth.

Thierry Duvaldestin drove his In The Money (Cristal Money) carefully during the race's first half and the duo was seen sixth over. When the front runners ran out of power, In The Money used his speed and could easily disarm new leader Italiano Vero in mid-stretch. Thierry Duvaldestin collected his fourth trophy in the Criterium des Jeunes and this time he did it in a stakes record mile rate of 1:58.3 over 1.3 miles.

Field for Prix de Paris set

The $485,000 Prix de Paris over 4,150 meters (approximately 2.6 miles) is the last of three Grand Prix races at Vincennes during the winter meeting in Paris and the field of this year's edition was set on Thursday (Feb. 25).

Fifteen trotters are ready to climb the hill of Vincennes twice on Sunday (Feb. 28) and it's a strong field that chases the big trophy.

Prix de France winner Delia du Pommereux finished fifth in this race last year and she has great opportunities to improve this time.

Gerard Forni

In The Money (Thierry Duvaldestin) winning the $205,000 Criterium des Jeunes for 3-year-old trotters on Sunday at Vincennes in Paris.

Jean-Michel Bazire's Davidson du Pont went off stride at an early stage in the Prix de France and now the duo is looking for revenge. Bazire has been the king of Prix de Paris since his first win in the race in 2005. He can look back at six additional wins in Prix de Paris and he is the title defender since Belina Josselyn claimed the victory in 2019 and 2020, both times with Bazire in the bike.

Age 31 proved to be golden for these drivers

by Bob Heyden

Dexter Dunn is 31. Coming off back-to-back Driver of the Year awards, what might Dunn expect to see this year? Here's a look at some prominent drivers and what they accomplished at age 31:

- Tim Tetrick turned 31 in 2012, the same year he was 1-2 in the Horse of the Year race with Chapter Seven and Market Share. That year, Tetrick drove the winners of seven divisional titles in all, a record that still stands today.

- Herve Filion won his second dash title in 1971 at the age of 31 and was #1 in earnings with $1,915,945.

- John Campbell was embarking on his first ever $10 million season in 1986 at age 31. His $10,386,495 that year was a new earnings record, something Campbell would accomplish five times in his career.

- Mike Lachance was making his way to New York at age 31 in 1981. He posted his first $1 million season that year ($1,881,384).

- Bill O'Donnell earned $681,854 in 1979 at age 31. Just two years later he would become the sport's first ever $4 million man.

- Jack Moiseyev had a year to remember at age 31 in 1991. He won his first Meadowlands Pace and Hambletonian with Precious Bunny and Giant Victory, respectively, and led the nation in wins (769) and earnings ($9,568,468). That has not been done since 1977 when Filion was the last to pull off that daily double.

- Tommy Haughton was 31 and was on his own just a couple years after his dad passed. That 1988 season also brought us Peace Corps, the outstanding filly from the first crop of Baltic Speed who would go on to win four Breeders Crowns, a record that still stands.

- David Miller in 1995 at age 31 had his first ever drive in million-dollar races with North America Cup favorite Cinder Lane Sam, who also got some money in that year's Meadowlands Pace.

- Per Eriksson turned 31 in 1991 between Giant Victory's Hambletonian win (1991) and Alf Palema's (1992). Eriksson won three Hambletonians before he was 31.

- Dan Dube had the Horse of the Year and all-time single-season record setter Gallo Blue Chip (and later all-time money leader) in 2000 at age 31.

Record-breakers

How many times did the following drivers set a new single-season earnings record?

Billy Haughton — six times

John Campbell — five times

Bill O'Donnell — four times

Herve Filion — three times

Stanley Dancer — twice

David Miller's Hambletonian quest

David Miller is still looking for his first Hambletonian victory. Despite ranking second on the all-time earnings list, he has never drive a Hambletonian favorite. Still, Miller has been cashing steadily in the Hambletonian.

In 2020, he was fifth with Hollywood Story at 100-1.

In 2019, he was third with Gimpanzee at 7-1.

In 2015, he was third with Uncle Lasse at 39.40-1.

In 2013, he was third with Corky at 8.70-1.

In 2010, he was fifth with Temple Of Doom at 53.70-1.

In 2009, he was fifth with Symphonic Hanover at 21.40-1.

Hambletonian influence

Of the five leading drivers by career earnings, John Campbell made $1 of every $41 in the Hambletonian, David Miller has earned $1 of ever $432 in the August classic, Tim Tetrick has earned $1 of every $115, Ron Pierce $1 of every $58 and Brian Sears $1 of every $70.

Take this to the bank...

One hundred years from now, this record will still stand:

Three members of one family all driving in at least one Hambletonian final at the age of 25 or younger.

Billy Haughton was 25 in 1949 when he finished 18thwith Crossbow. Peter Haughton was fifth, fifth and fourth in the Hambletonians in 1976, '77 and '78 at ages 21, 22 and 23. Tommy Haughton remains the youngest driver to win the Hambletonian, doing so in 1982 at age 25 with Speed Bowl. Tommy is also the youngest to win a Hambletonian heat. He was 23 when Final Score did it in 1980.

The Big M was big for these drivers

The following six drivers made it to the Hall of Fame, but their single biggest purse check ever did not come in a victory. It came at the Meadowlands finishing either second or third in a huge purse event, the kind that stamped the Meadowlands in its first decade or so.

- John Simpson, Jr. was second with Lon Todd Hanover in the 1981 Wilson for $1,760,000, by a nose, no less. Billy Haughton won it with McKinzie Almahurst for his biggest ever driving score. For Simpson Jr., the purse money for second was $440,000, by far his biggest one-race haul.

- Ted Wing was second with Prince Royce in the 1987 Woodrow Wilson which carried a healthy pot of $1,422,500. Even Odds won it. Wing made the Hall Of Fame a couple of years back and the $366,625 check Prince Royce earned in the Wilson was the biggest in the driver's career.

- Bill Popfinger holds the record on this list with a $540,250 check for Praised Dignity in 1984 for finishing second in the sport's richest ever race – the $2,161,000 Woodrow Wilson won by Nihilator.

- Doug Ackerman's prized colt Chocolatier was second in the 2006 Hambletonian (to Glidemaster) that carried a $1,500,000 purse. The $375,000 second-place check, with son DR driving, was a career high for Doug.

- Joe O'Brien was third with Neros BB in the 1980 Woodrow Wilson won by Land Grant. O'Brien's $241,320 third-place check was a career high. He died four years later.

- Glen Garnsey died three years after his No Nukes was second in the 1982 Meadowlands Pace to Hilarion. The $250,000 second-place purse check was the most for a single race for Garnsey, despite the fact that he had two Horses Of The Year in the previous four seasons – Abercrombie in 1978 and Fan Hanover in 1981.

Racing reflections with Jordan Stratton

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

Racing Reflections is an occasional USTA newsroom series recounting favorite memories of harness racing participants and their careers in the sport.

When he was quite young, it wasn't enough for Jordan Stratton to spend his waking hours around horses, or with his father, trainer David Stratton.

"My parents told me the only way they could get me to nap was by being on the jog cart with my dad, counting laps," Stratton said, adding with a laugh, "By the second lap, I was lights-out."

Stratton's early exposure to harness racing and enjoyment in the sport meant lights-out on any other choice of profession.

"Me and my brother (Cory) have been jogging and training our whole lives," Stratton said. "That was the only (career) track in life. As much as they say don't follow in my footsteps, go to college, do something else, it's hard when you get the harness racing bug early on."

Stratton grew up in Ohio, where his family had a 30-acre farm. By the age of 14, Stratton was taking care of horses for his father on a full-time basis, including a future two-time Ohio Sire Stakes champion, pacer Noble Cam.

"He was the first really good horse I took care of," Stratton said. "I remember sitting on a bucket his whole 2- and 3-year-old years in the sire stakes, going on the road with him. He came out (east) and competed with the top horses a little bit, but just wasn't up to it on a national level. But in Ohio he was a really good horse. He was a great horse to learn on."

Noble Cam earned $505,021 lifetime and Stratton ended up driving the horse to his final six victories in a 32-win career.

Several weeks prior to his 19th birthday, and two months before sitting behind Noble Cam for the first time in a race, Stratton notched his first career win with a pacer named Mediator at Monticello Raceway.

"My dad bought him cheap for me to race in the amateurs," Stratton said. "He made a really big run up the backside, and I came second or third over and swooped the field."

"I had a white helmet, my dad's boots, my dad's colors, no gloves; it was a mess. But it's a fond memory. I started just warming up at Monticello, so everyone kind of knew who I was. It was fun to get a win. It was really thrilling."

The thrills have continued over the years. In 2008, he became, at the age of 21, the youngest driver to win a driving title at Monticello. In 2009, still at the age of 21, he became the second driver in history to reach 1,000 wins prior to his 22nd birthday and received the Rising Star Award from the U.S. Harness Writers

Claus Andersen

Driver Jordan Stratton.

Association.

Today, Stratton has won 4,415 races and $74 million in purses. He entered Tuesday (Feb. 23) as the leading driver at Yonkers Raceway this season. He has finished no worse than third in the standings at The Hilltop in each of the past four years.

Last year's highlights included driving on the Grand Circuit with pacer Manticore and trotter Crystal Fashion. Stratton made his first appearance in the Breeders Crown and finished second in the Open Trot with Crystal Fashion. He was eighth with Manticore in the final for 3-year-old male pacers, beaten only two lengths in a blanket finish.

"It was a lot of fun to go on the road with them," Stratton said. "To finish second in the Breeders Crown from (post eight) was a thrill."

Among Stratton's other career highlights is his association with pacer Bit Of A Legend N, who won 33 of 99 races in North America and $1.90 million. In 2016, the stallion became the first – and still only – horse to sweep the six-week George Morton Levy Memorial Pacing Series (now the Borgata Pacing Series) at Yonkers.

This year's series begins March 15.

"I really like that series," Stratton said. "The way the points schedule is, you kind of have to start every race because you get 25 points just for showing up. It really narrows it down to the toughest horse at the end."

"What Bit Of A Legend did was unbelievable, to win every leg and then the final. He was unbelievable. He did everything right."

New Jersey

Davis happy with sharp 'Shnitzle

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

Shnitzledosomethin keeps growing on trainer Dylan Davis. Literally.

"Physically, to me, he's still getting bigger," Davis said about the 6-year-old male pacer, who has earned $817,583 in his career. "If you saw him up close, you wouldn't think it was possible for him to get any bigger. But to me, each year he gets a little heavier, a little wider, a little more girthy I guess is the best way to put it. He's massive.

"He's very heavy but his gait is unbelievable. I don't ever recall training a horse as heavy but as graceful as he is."

Shnitzledosomethin races in Saturday's $27,500 winners over/open at The Meadowlands. So far this year, the stallion has two wins and two seconds in five starts. He was eighth in his most recent start, parked from post seven at Yonkers.

"He was a little unfortunate; Yonkers is the toughest half-mile track in the world when you've got the outside," Davis said. "But overall, he's come back great. He seems to be as sharp as he's been. I don't remember him being much better than he is right now."

Shnitzledosomethin, who has won 22 of 72 career starts, was a Breeders Crown runner-up in 2017 and finished second in Indiana Sire Stakes championships at ages 2 and 3. He won four of 15 races last season; a campaign interrupted in March by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I thought I had him peaking at the right time around the middle of March, and the next thing you know, we shut down," Davis said. "I just couldn't get him on his toes. He's a horse that has to work. If he's not working, he's heavy, he's lazy. I just could never get him into form."

Davis is pointing Shnitzledosomethin toward the Borgata Pacing Series at Yonkers. The six-round event begins March 15.

Michael Lisa

Shnitzledosomethin and Corey Callahan.

"He loves a half-mile track," Davis said. "As long as the draw goes okay, I think he fits with the best ones out there."

Also in action for Davis on Saturday at The Meadowlands is 4-year-old male trotter Swan In Motion. The stallion joined Davis' stable at the end of 2020 after being purchased at the Standardbred Horse Sale's Mixed Sale for $65,000 by Howard Taylor.

Swan In Motion, trained previously by Jamie Macomber, was an Indiana Sire Stakes champion last year and runner-up at age 2. He has won nine of 30 career races and $422,185.

This season, Swan In Motion has a win and two seconds in five starts. He competes in Saturday's $15,500 conditioned trot at the Big M.

"I'm very happy with him so far," Davis said. "I was kind of familiar with the horse from watching him race in Indiana. He seems to be living up to expectations of what we bought him for. He's always trotting hardest at the wire. He's not wicked quick off the gate but he does get home pretty good, with a lot of will. He's got a very good attitude."

Racing begins at 6 p.m. (EST) at The Meadowlands. The Big M and TrackMaster have teamed to regularly provide free past performances for each race card. Past performances can be found here on The Meadowlands website.

Veteran trainer Jim Gluhm dies in Florida

James R. Gluhm, a lifelong harness horse trainer, died recently at age 77 after a lingering illness.

He was a native of Hamilton, OH, but lived in Trenton, FL for many years.

"The best horse I ever trained was JEFs Spice," Gluhm said recently. The daughter of Super Bowl won $951,469 in 1985-86 winning 19 of her 33 starts with seven second-place finishes. She took her mark of 1:55.3 at The Red Mile and was later exported to Europe.

JEFs Spice won the Breeders Crown in 1986.

Gluhm and his stepdaughter Kim Miller were the first father-daughter to win Breeders Crowns. Miller trained the 2006 Breeders Crown winner Charley Barley by Western Hanover.

"I learned so much from him," Kim says. "He wasn't consciously teaching me. You had to watch what he did. I learned from that."

Gluhm was a trainer who didn't seek the limelight and his horsemanship was best appreciated by his peers in the training profession. For many years, he helped to develop youngsters for the Sunbird Stable operated by Jack Landis of Florida. Gluhm would develop the youngsters and get them gaited, mannered, and trained down, then often send them north to be raced by other trainers.

In the 1980s, Gluhm selected and started yearlings purchased by Jack Landis of Sunbird Stable. Some of the most notable performers were the back-to-back 1983-84 Peter Haughton Memorial winners Why Not 4, 1:56.4 (823,108) and Another Miracle 3, 1:57.1 ($906,314).

He was also involved in the purchase and preparation of Kentucky Futurity winner Jazz Cosmos 3, 1:55 ($701,568) and the top star Nearly Perfect 4, 1:54 ($630,327).

"Jim picked them out and got good value at the yearling sales," says Miller. "He was a willing to buy from the scratch-and-dent section of a yearling sale if he saw something he liked."

Gluhm was also closely involved with the success of three horses in the Florida Harness Racing Hall of Fame: Anythings Possible, American Patriot and Basil.

Gluhm's father was a veterinarian in Butler County in southwest Ohio and he worked on many standardbreds in that area, including those raced by Howard Beissinger and his father.

Stepdaughter Kim says that Gluhm considered John Patterson, Eldon Harner, Bruce Nickells, and Ohioan Charlie King to be mentors.

"He learned patience from them," she said. "He believed in allowing a horse to find itself."

"Just keep going with one," Gluhm often told his stepdaughter "But when you have to start making excuses for a horse, then you're in trouble."

Miller says that Gluhm didn't put much faith in luck in racing.

"Luck is when preparation meets opportunity," was one of her stepfather's favorite sayings, said Miller. "He said you simply had to watch and see what the horse was doing. He also didn't believe a horse had to dance every dance; a trainer had to pick the right spots to race. He was always in full command of his barn."

Gluhm felt that owners trusted him to provide the best care for their horses and Kim Miller said he was not happy when an owner once told him that he "wasn't progressive enough about using veterinarians."

The family asked that any donations in Gluhm's memory be made to a local chapter of the America Legion.

USHWA holds successful annual meetings via Zoom

The United States Harness Writers Association (USHWA), harness racing's leading group of industry communicators, held its annual directors and membership meetings this past Saturday and Sunday – using the Zoom technology, as the group's annual "weekend" including these meetings and culminating in the Dan Patch Awards banquet had to be cancelled due to the health pandemic.

Dan Patch award winners were honored through a virtual "Dan Patch Awards" program before a Saturday night card at The Meadowlands. That effort was chaired by Gordon Waterstone, and was brought to fruition largely through the efforts of Jason Settlemoir, Jeff Gural, and many members of The Meadowlands' communications office. The show was watched through The Meadowlands' signal, and through a number of USHWA and other social media platforms, which generated much viewing and engagement.

The loss of the Dan Patch Awards Banquet will mean that USHWA will not make a profit in 2021, since the sponsorships and souvenir journal ads, the main sources of USHWA income, will not be available. However 2021's situation comes after five straight years of profit for the organization, during which it doubled its cash position, largely through the efforts of Barry Lefkowitz, Tom Hicks, and others.

The transition of the meetings from "live" to "virtual" was a long and difficult process, but the end result was a generally-positive process in which 26 directors and over 70 members took part. Credit for much of the needed research and co-ordination goes to USHWA president Kim Rinker, host of the meetings, and meetings' facilitator Debbie Little.

The annual process of discussing and voting on changes to the association's By-Laws and Rules and Regulations was orderly this year, whereas in some years there was long and heated debate on some topics. Voters expressed their views through discussion and then through the Zoom system's voting capacity, and after amendments, all of the changes passed by a large margin.

Elections of officers were held during the membership meeting. Kim Rinker, administrator of the Ohio Standardbred Development Fund, was returned as USHWA president. Kim French, editor of the United States Trotting Association's Hoof Beats magazine, was elected to the vice-president post. USHWA immediate past president Shawn Wiles, executive director of racing/facilities at Monticello Raceway, remained chairman of the board by USHWA by-law. Bill MacDonald, controller of a Maine construction firm and a leading disseminator of Maine harness racing information for many years, received the nod as USHWA's treasurer. Jerry Connors, freelance writer and a member of the Communicators Hall of Fame, was voted secretary for the 20th consecutive year.

Early to post bets the most at Big M

Since the start of 2021, The Meadowlands has been experimenting with an earlier-than-usual post time of 6 p.m. and the undertaking has proven extremely successful over the first eight weeks of the year.

"The idea was, during the COVID-19 era, people were not staying up late," said track chief operating officer and general manager Jason Settlemoir. "And shifting players' attention from the late-night races [that take place from 11 p.m.-midnight] and moving those eyes to the hour from 6-7 p.m. was worth trying. The early post time created a new dynamic, starting with our pre-game show, which gets underway at 5:27 p.m."

On a typical weekend, after the Gulfstream Park races end, the Late Pick-4 at Santa Anita and The Meadowlands' 20-cent Pick-5 kick off the nighttime action for both harness and thoroughbred players around the world.

"As a result," said Settlemoir, "the top thoroughbred hubs wagered 45 per cent more on The Meadowlands last Saturday (Feb. 20) than they did as compared to the comparable Saturday in 2020."

Last week, The Big M's streak of betting at least $3.4 million on Saturdays stayed intact, as action has exceeded that number on all eight occasions in 2021. Last Saturday's all-source total of $3,871,820 – an increase of $1.1 million over the comparable card from last year – was the fifth-highest night of business this year. The per race average was $258,121. The lofty $3.8-million figure was reached three times during all of 2020.

The Big M's signature wager, the 50-cent Pick-4, has seen the most prolific pools of the season, with an average of $94,857 in total action each the time wager takes place, which is twice a night, beginning nightly in the sixth and 10th races, respectively.

The 20-cent Pick-5 – which averages $88,540 in total play – always gets the night off to a good start in the first race. The last two Saturdays were right on the number as $88,541 (Feb. 20) and $86,011 (Feb. 13) were wagered, respectively, serving as the catalyst for superb race one overall total pools of $389,159 and $367,134, respectively.

"The Meadowlands has made an increased effort to keep the horseplayer in action longer with low-takeout and low-minimum bets," said Settlemoir. "The player response has been sensational, resulting in the largest pools we have seen in over a decade. The larger players can now freely bet larger amounts, knowing the pools are big enough to play into, fueled by average field size, which is at 9.56.

"The early post has exposed more thoroughbred players to The Meadowlands' signal. This new dynamic has created an average handle of $3,455,779 per night, far surpassing every night time signal of any breed in North America."

SIMULCAST HEAVEN: For those who love betting the runners as well as the pacers and trotters, the featured simulcast action offered at The Big M on Saturday will be from Florida's Gulfstream Park, which has a spectacular card in store.

The 14-race program will feature nine events with purses of $100,000 or more, with the feature being the Grade 2, $300,000 Fountain of Youth at a mile and a sixteenth for 3-year-olds who are Kentucky Derby hopefuls. Post time for the first race at Gulfstream is 11:30 a.m. The Fountain of Youth is race 14 and has a post time of 6:10 p.m.

GET SOCIAL: You can always check in with the team at The Meadowlands on Twitter.

On race nights, stay in touch with the Big M's Dave Brower (@eedoogie), Dave Little (@DaveLittleBigM), Ken Warkentin (@kenvoiceover), Shades Demsky (@shadesonracing) and Jessica Otten (@JessicaOtten1).

FREE PPs FOR ALL: Thanks to an agreement between The Meadowlands and TrackMaster, past performances for every race of every Big M program are now available at no cost.

To access the free PPs, go to www.playmeadowlands.com.

$100,000 GUARANTEED: Every night, The Meadowlands guarantees big green on both editions of its signature wager, as each 50-cent Pick-4 sports a $50,000 guaranteed pool.

CHECK OUT THE PICKS: For those who need to get a leg up on the action, go to playmeadowlands.com to see track oddsmaker and analyst Brower's selections and commentary. Click on the "handicapping" tab and go to "race reviews".

Additionally, track announcer Warkentin's blog is available on the site and offers his picks and analysis.

THE SCHEDULE: Live racing at The Meadowlands takes place every Friday and Saturday evening. Post time is 6 p.m.

The track's live "Racing from the Meadowlands" pre-game show begins at 5:27 p.m.

CAN'T MAKE IT TO THE TRACK? There are several options for those who would rather catch the action from The Big M at home.

Racing fans can watch all the races live on the Roberts Television Network (rtn.tv). In addition, they can watch and wager by going to the Television Games Network (tvgn.com) or their favorite Advance-deposit Wagering site (ADW).

Virginia 2021 harness race dates announced for Shenandoah Downs

Dates and post times for the sixth annual fall harness racing season at Shenandoah Downs in Woodstock, VA have been announced, pending Virginia Racing Commission approval. The five-week pari-mutuel meet will run from Sept. 17 – Oct. 16 with racing every Friday at 4 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m.. Races take place at the Shenandoah County Fairgrounds in Woodstock, located halfway between Harrisonburg and Winchester off I-81 at Exit 283.

Racing applications will be available online in late spring at vhha.net and shenandoahdowns.com. The barn area will open Wednesday, Sept. 15 and close on Wednesday, Oct. 19. Purse distribution is expected to average $50,000 per day.

The Virginia Breeders race schedule has also been confirmed and will be presented in a slightly different format from past years. Opening weekend will feature eliminations for 3-year-old trotters on Sept. 17 and 3-year-old pacers the following day. Elims for 2-year-olds will be held the second weekend – trotters on Sept. 24 and pacers on Sept. 25. The 24th annual Breeders Championships, which also include aged races and combined purse monies well over $300,000, will take center stage on the third weekend. Trotters in the 2, 3 and aged divisions will go for big money on Oct. 1 while pacers in each will compete on Oct. 2.

The Shenandoah County Fair will continue a decades-long tradition of harness racing at their late summer Fair – held at the same Woodstock location – two weeks before the "Downs" meet begins. A four-day season will run Sept. 1-4 with a daily post time of noon.

The Virginia Harness Horse Association (VHHA) also announced details of an enhanced Certified Residency Program that will offer combined bonus monies of $2 million to participating 2020 and 2021 foals.

In order to enroll in the lucrative program, horses must register with the VHHA and reside at a participating farm or training center in the Commonwealth for a minimum of six consecutive months before they turn two years of age. Once horses start competing, they will accumulate points from every money earning start as a two and three-year-old. The better the finishing position in each start, the more points they will accumulate. Double points will be awarded from any start in Virginia – at the Shenandoah County Fair and Shenandoah Downs meets.

Awards are distributed based on cumulative year end point totals and the bonus money pool available. 2020 foals will compete for a $300,000 bonus pool in each of their 2- and 3-year-old race seasons while 2021 foals will vie for a $400,000 pool in each. Horses in the Certified program will also be eligible to compete in a series of newly added $25,000 restricted races at Shenandoah Downs during their freshman and sophomore seasons, based on their age, sex and gait.

Complete program details, application forms and a list of participating farms is available at vhha.net. For more information, call Debbie Warnick at 443-463-0917. The Residency program is separate from the Virginia Breeders Fund program.

Rood & Riddle Veterinary Pharmacy launches StallSide

Whether you are a horse enthusiast, a first-time horse owner or a seasoned equestrian, you will learn something new on StallSide, the Rood & Riddle Veterinary Pharmacy audio and video podcast. Both educational and entertaining, you are able to listen or watch Rood & Riddle veterinarians discuss timely and engaging topics on equine healthcare.

Co-hosted by Dr. Peter Morresey and Dr. Bart Barber, the duo talks with each week's guest clinician and delves into the fascinating and diverse world of equine healthcare. StallSide's first guest is Rood & Riddle co-founder Dr. Tom Riddle. Learn about the evolution of Rood & Riddle, his journey to becoming a veterinarian and how he balanced his home and professional life.

Co-host Dr. Bart Barber said, "We want to give listeners an insight into Rood & Riddle and veterinary medicine. Our goal is to strengthen the bond between animals, owners and veterinarians."

StallSide will focus on common equine conditions faced by horse owners. Each episode will feature a veterinarian or veterinarians from Rood & Riddle interspersed with guests from around the country and the world who are experts in the topic area. Future episodes of StallSide will include health care topics like care of the pregnant mare, foaling, neonatal care, laminitis, colic, dentistry, geriatrics and infectious disease.

"We cover the highs and lows of equine practice and the industry, never shying away from the difficult issues," said Dr. Peter Morresey. "Always informative, we hope entertaining, and something of value to add to your day."

You are invited to submit topics for future episodes at stallside@rrvp.com.

You can find StallSide on YouTube, iTunes, iHeart Radio, Audible, Stitcher, Spotify, Google Play or wherever you listen to your podcasts.
