Chris Oakes sentenced to three years in prison

Despite pleading guilty, the standardbred trainer received the maximum allowable sentence.

by Bill Finley

Trainer Chris Oakes, a central figure in the doping scandal that has rocked thoroughbred and standardbred racing, was sentenced Thursday (March 3) to serve three years in prison.

In October, Oakes, 57, pled guilty to one count of misbranding and drug adulteration with intent to defraud or deceive. Oakes has admitted to supplying PEDs to high-profile thoroughbred trainer Jorge as well as using illegal drugs with his own horses.

The decision was handed down by Judge Mary Kay Vyskocil in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York before a small audience that included Meadowlands owner Jeff Gural. Under the sentencing guidelines, three years was the maximum allowable sentence. Oakes' sentence will begin June 1.

"I believe this offense is serious," Vyskocil said. "I have taken that into account as well as the characterizations of Mr. Oakes as a human being and a person. But I do not see any compelling reason to go below the sentencing guideline."

While the case against Oakes involved his pattern of doping his own horses, it also focused on his relationship with Navarro and the doping of Navarro's XY Jet (Kantharos). Oakes supplied Navarro with PEDs that were given to X Y Jet, including a "blocker" PED. On Feb. 13, 2019, the same day X Y Jet won an allowance race at Gulfstream, Navarro instructed Oakes to enter the Gulfstream backstretch to administer PEDs to the sprinter.

"Mr. Oakes shared misbranded and adulterated drugs with others, including, and most particularly Mr. Navarro," Vyskocil noted. "Specifically, he helped Mr. Navarro dope XY Jet."

While still in training, XY Jet died in early 2020. Navarro said at the time that the cause of death was a heart attack.

Addressing the court, government lawyer Sarah Mortazavi lashed into Oakes, saying that he had failed to realize the severity of his actions.

"The defendant has not grappled with the seriousness of his crimes," she said, "Instead of remorse, we have gotten from him self-serving excuses meant to minimize his conduct. He has said that the government can't prove that I killed any horses or did something to improve their performances, so what I did was not detrimental to these horses. But he injected these horses with drugs up to and including the day of their race, putting their health at risk."

Oakes' attorney Page Pate did not deny that his client used PEDs and broke laws, but asked the court to consider that trainer had many good qualities. That, he argued, was justification for leniency.

"The offenses committed, while clearly wrong, are inconsistent with who he was as a person and as a trainer who cared for his horses," Pate said. "It's true that he tried to win purses by using PEDs he got from Dr. (Seth) Fishman and PEDs he created on his own and that that gave him an unfair competitive advantage in his races. But the narrative became Mr. Oakes abused his horses. Looking back over his 40-year career that is not consistent with what so many people who knew him and worked with him have told the court. The things he has done for his community, his random acts of kindness, they show that he is not a criminal."

When addressing the court, Oakes, who began to choke up, brought up what he said was a long-running battle with alcoholism.

"I drank when I succeeded and I drank when I failed and I failed a lot," he said. "I did not ask for help because I thought that would show a sign of weakness."

Vyskocil said Oakes would have to enter a drug and alcohol treatment program once in prison.

Oakes said he was remorseful and blamed his decisions on stress and the pressure he felt to succeed.

"I was constantly unhappy, irritated and depressed," he said. "I wanted everything to be perfect and I demanded that of my wife, my kids and my employees. I regret the path that I followed. I allowed stress and the pressure I was under to dictate my decisions. I have no one to blame but myself. I am aware of the crimes that I have committed and I have learned from them. I humbly ask for leniency."

Gural, who had banned Oakes at his tracks well before he was indicted, sat quietly and listened to the testimony. Gural was instrumental in putting together the investigation that led to Oakes and more than two dozen others being indicted on charges related to doping.

"I am glad I came, if for no other reason than to see how justice works," he said. "I thought everybody did a good job and the judge understood the severity of the situation. It is a tragedy. These horses can't talk for themselves. When I started this, I had friends who told me it was a waste of time, that it was impossible to catch these guys. Getting 5 Stones involved and the fact that so many horses died in California, that got the attention of the U.S. Attorney and they were willing to prosecute. I spent a great deal of time talking to the U.S. Attorney and convincing them that there were people out there using drugs."

Adrienne Hall voluntarily turns in New Jersey license

by Bill Finley

Caught up in the doping scandal involving Dr. Seth Fishman and a number of standardbred horsepeople, owner/trainer Adrienne Hall has voluntarily turned in her New Jersey Racing Commission (NJRC) license, Harness Racing Update has learned.

Hall said she did so after failing to come to an agreement with the state racing commission over when her hearing would be held. While Hall testified against Fishman in federal court, she still must testify against his former assistant, Lisa Gianelli. Gianelli's trial was postponed after her lawyer tested positive for COVID-19 and no date has been set yet for the start of her new trial. Hall said lawyers from the Department of Justice asked that she not testify before the racing commission before the Gianelli trial was concluded. The NJRC did not agree to the delay, so Hall went ahead and turned in her license.

"With an additional case still open and possibly headed to trial I was asked to refrain from participating in any open hearings that could compromise my future testimony," Hall said. "This request was relayed to the state racing commissions. Unfortunately, the NJRC have been unwilling to postpone open hearings, despite my assurances I'm not racing or entering horses at the moment. Because of that, I have voluntarily relinquished my license to ensure the integrity of the open federal cases and the wishes of the Southern District of New York. It is a shame that certain state agencies, including those currently failing to abide by their own state requirements, would choose to undermine larger criminal cases."

Hall said that she did not show up for a NJRC hearing because she was under the impression it wasn't necessary. The NJRC, she said, followed up with a letter to her in which it said it had ruled that she was "unsuitable for racing."

"My attorney and I were under the impression we didn't have to appear because the license had already been relinquished," she said. "Lo and behold, I got a letter saying you failed to appear and you have been deemed unsuitable for racing, which is nonsense. What are they going to do when all these other names come out? You know how many people are going to be unsuitable for racing? I actually did a good thing and I was completely honest and this is how they are going to treat me?"

"At first the racing commission was understanding, which they should have been. Then it came to the point where they said I can't postpone my hearing and, 'If you don't come in on such and such a date we will take action against you.' Basically, they were trying to undermine the government's case in order to fit their own agenda. I didn't appreciate that."

Hall testified in court that she received illegal performance-enhancing drugs from Fishman and used them on her horses. Fishman was found guilty of two counts of conspiring to violate adulteration and misbranding laws and the manufacture of PEDs and faces up to 20 years in prison. After her testimony, Hall's license was promptly revoked by the United States Trotting Association, but Meadowlands owner Jeff Gural had a very different take on the matter. He hailed Hall as a whistle blower and said banning her would discourage others from coming forward to provide evidence against drug cheats. Gural allowed her to race at the Meadowlands, but that is no longer possible since she does not have a valid NJRC license.

Despite receiving the notification from the NJRC, Hall believes there is a path to her being reinstated after the Gianelli trial has concluded.

"Because I submitted my license voluntarily, when I am ready to talk to them I can make an appointment and set up a hearing," she said. "I'd love to have this all over with, but I can't."

However, she is not sure that she wants to return to training.

"I have had a lot of really influential people contact me and thank me for what I did and offer me positions," she said. "Some have asked that I help with HISA (Horse Racing Integrity and Safety Act). Others want me to do more work with after care. I'm more interested in that than the racing side of the business. I'll take a month or two to clear my head and figure out what I really want to do. I have had some really nice people support me and that has helped me get through this."

Gural stands for the brand

by Debbie Little

There's a singular and simple question at the heart of one of the hottest topics in harness racing right now: Is your horse's life worth $40?

A pair of $20 bills is what it currently costs to have a horse freeze branded by a United States Trotting Association (USTA) technician. Many believe that the freeze brand is the best identifying marker for saving their horse if it ends up in a kill pen.

Is it a 100 per cent guarantee that the brand will save your horse? No. But Meadowlands' president and chief executive officer, Jeff Gural, believes it's a small price to pay to possibly save a horse. In addition to microchipping, he will also have all of his foals freeze branded.

"I don't want to see a horse that I've bred end up in kill pens," said Gural. "I think that's the biggest reason for [doing both freeze brands and chips]."

Until the last few years, freeze brands were the USTA's required form of identification to race, but now that the microchip has become the international equine standard, brands have taken a back seat.

According to USTA president Russell Williams, at some point the United States Department of Agriculture started a program where they were going to identify every animal in agriculture using microchips.

"I'm going back a ways, but it was looking like we were going to have to do all the horses anyways," said Williams. "So, we started looking around at microchip options and then, of course, they dropped the USDA program, but the USTA stayed with it and it looked like a good way to identify. And what we came up with I think everybody was pretty happy with.

"So, I do like microchips and I think they are the best form of identification we've come up with. I don't think we need both."

As they did in the past, the USTA still includes their required form of identification – currently the chip – as part of their registration fee, but if you also want to have your baby freeze branded at the same time, it will cost you the aforementioned $40.

Unlike countries such as Australia and New Zealand that will no longer offer the freeze brand as an option, the USTA still does for that fee, which compensates their technicians for their additional time and effort as well as the expenses for supplies, including liquid nitrogen and dye.

If $40 a horse seems like a lot, it's considerably less than what's offered in Canada, where for one or two horses at the same location, you'd be paying a little over $102 (USD). The price North of the Border does decrease as the number of horses increase, but even at six or more in one location, it's still around $27 (USD) more per horse than in the U.S.

In 2021, about 10,000 horses were identified, approximately 8,000 of which were foals. Only 2,600 received a freeze brand and most of those were Amish, some of which are opposed to the chip due to their beliefs. Included in those 2,600 were 392 that were both branded and chipped. Nearly a quarter of those 392 came from Crawford Farms or Gural.

Michelle Crawford knows that everyone doesn't concur with the course that she and Gural have chosen. She also knows that there are some that don't care what happens to their horses after they're done with them.

"I know many of them myself," Crawford said. "I've been told, stop, it's a waste of time, you can't bridge the gap, the water's going to seep through. I take a lot of criticism, too, for how I feel. Not everybody shares my overzealous opinion of saving the horse world. They don't want to pay for it. They want the calls to stop. They don't want to pay the quarantine bills. They don't want to pay shoeing and all the vet [work] that might come from something that was sick from the pen.

"There's no other way to track these things. You're making it so easy for them to go and slip under the radar. Why would we do that after all the work that's been done?"

The Standardbred Retirement Foundation alone rescued 733 horses out of kill pens in 2021, primarily using their freeze brands.

"I can see the issue of the kill pens and being able to quickly identify a horse and notify previous owners or breeders," said Gural. "I assume the technology of the chip works, but I can see where if you're in a kill pen, then what do you do? They may not let you walk in there with a reader."

"I've rescued a lot of horses out of the kill pens. If any horse I bred ever ends up in a kill pen, I will rescue the horse. I would hope most people would."

In addition to Gural and Crawford, Hall of Famers David Miller, Dave Palone and Brian Sears also "Stand for the Brand", and Miller and Palone did harness racing public service announcements supporting their choice. The most recent PSA released last week featured Crawford with trainer Tony Alagna.

"It's important to me that people know that even though we're a big operation, it's very important to us that the horses that we've come in contact with end up in a good place," said Alagna. "My mom owns two horses herself and one she bought was a yearling filly that's 2 this year and she spent the money to make sure that her horses that she owns have a freeze brand. That's not something that she had to do, but she wanted to do it, and I think that's the way."

"I'm not saying get rid of the chips, I'm just saying every extra layer of protection to protect the horses that do so much for us [is important]."

Williams, president and chief executive officer of Hanover Shoe Farms, has always been a strong supporter of equine aftercare and continues to put his money where his mouth is.

"I get horses out of the killer pens all year long because I get a lot of those calls," said Williams. "There are Hanover bred in there. There are ones that I've bred in there and I get them out."

But this hot-button topic isn't just about aftercare. It's also about doing business on a daily basis.

Freeze brands on occasion could be difficult to read completely, but what's the alternative if you can't find the chip?

Alagna and Olive Branch Farm owner Chris Coyle have both had chip issues increasing their resolve to support the inclusion of the brand.

"I had gotten a horse in from somebody and I tried and tried and tried to microchip read this horse and we could not find it," said Alagna. "We had to get two different machines and the third machine picked it up and the fact of the matter was we took the same two machines that weren't working on that horse and they worked on other horses. So, I think it's far from an exact science as far as what the microchips are. And I'm not saying that they shouldn't have both, I just think it's something that the horses deserve for identification."

Coyle's facility is known in the business as a turnout farm to the stars having hosted the likes of Atlanta, Foiled Again, Jujubee, Lou's Pearlman and Party Girl Hill, just to name drop a few.

"A lot of these guys send their stakes horses to us for their winter vacation," said Coyle. "And we've had a couple of horses come that were not the right horse. Really, you can't blame anybody because without having one of these microchip readers and knowing how to use it properly, and checking every horse, things are going to happen like this. Whereas if they had the brand on their neck, with the four digits and a letter, a 3-year-old kid could tell that that's the right horse."

"I'm not complaining about the microchips, I think that's probably a good idea to have them in the horses, but what I want is to have the brands on them as well."

No one contacted for this story was anti-chip. Indeed, most could see their potential as technology continues to improve.

In a week, on March 11, 12 and 13, the USTA will hold its annual meetings.

A change has been proposed to Rule 7.06 which would require both microchips and freeze brands in order to race starting in 2023.

"If you're asking me, what do I like as Russell?," said Williams. "I like the chips, not the freeze brands. But as a director I think I have to do what's right for the membership. And I'm going to wait until the meeting to make up my mind about that."

Another change was also proposed to amend Article 1.01 (b) to add a new equestrian membership subsection.

If it passes, the fees from these new members could perhaps be put towards the $40 freeze brand fees, thus making them more economical.

"I think the $40 is being used as a cop-out instead of a way to make it happen," said Alagna. "I think if the breeders were able to say we'd love to do it, we're on board, but the $40 is an extra cost that we don't want to absorb, I think there's always a solution."

"And I think right now there's no better time in our industry to have some positive news and I think this is something that would be a great thing for the public to see that we're doing it."

Guatemalan driver Juan Franco making his mark at Hawthorne

by Neil Milbert

Juan Franco is a rarity among the Central Americans and South Americans who have pursued horse racing careers in the United States and Canada. Instead of making his mark as a jockey, the 44-year-old from Guatemala has found his niche driving harness horses.

What makes his success at Hawthorne Race Course even more remarkable is Franco hadn't even seen a harness race before he took the advice of his brother-in-law, Pedro Garcia, and came to now defunct Balmoral Park via California when he was in his early 20s. He didn't make his driving debut in a pari-mutuel race until May 13, 2016.

The only other Central American to make a name for himself in

Illinois

North American harness racing is a fellow Guatemalan, Gilbert Garcia-Herrera, a very successful trainer based at Yonkers Raceway who plans to retire this year after being involved in the sport since the early 1980s. A protégé of Joe Anderson, he began 2022 in 10th place on the all-time list of winning trainers in North America with more than 3,600 victories and before retiring from the sulky 12 years ago he had 1,821 wins as a driver.

"I know who he is but I have never met him or spoken to him," Franco said of Garcia-Herrera. "We come from the same town, Santa Rosa."

In Guatemala, there are no pari-mutuel racetracks, standardbred or thoroughbred.

As was the case with Garcia-Herrera, when Franco was growing up his equine experience was limited to riding quarter horses "just for fun" on his father's farm.

When he moved to California in the early 2000s he found work hot-walking thoroughbreds at now-defunct Hollywood Park, the same track where Garcia-Herrera got his start.

But by then Hollywood didn't have harness racing and Franco didn't hang around very long.

"I didn't know anyone there, and it was very hard to communicate," said Franco. "Then, I talked to my brother-in-law. He was working at Balmoral Park (in suburban Chicago) and we talked about jobs. He said that the harness horses are different horses than the thoroughbreds but they are similar and easy to work with. And here I would have a family relationship."

So, after spending about three months in California, Franco came to Balmoral and went to work for (trainer) Don Freese, cleaning stalls and grooming "and then Don taught me how to jog horses."

"After that, I worked for Brandon Simpson for a little bit and was like a second trainer to him," Franco said. "When he left for the East, I lost my job. I got a job with Homer Hochstetler and learned a lot from him. Homer left and I lost my job again."

But, again, Franco found work quickly, this time with Nelson Willis, a distinguished trainer on the Chicago circuit.

"I was working with young horses and breaking babies for him," said Franco. "One day Nelson said: 'Why don't you get a driver's license?' and I said, 'I don't know how.' 'No problem,' Nelson told me. 'I'll help you out.'"

Franco drove in his first qualifying race at Hawthorne in January, 2016. After graduating to pari-mutuel competition that spring at the reins of Control Tower, a horse he qualified for Willis, he recorded his first victory in his 10th drive, winning for Willis with Parklane Dragon, a 25-1 longshot.

His first major accomplishment was winning that year's Dave Magee series for 3- and 4-year-old fillies with Ryans Mistress for trainer Roshun Trigg, taking the first leg by 1 ¼ lengths (at odds of 27-1), the second by 1 ¾ lengths and the third by 2 ¾ lengths.

"Juan worked for me (as an assistant) up until he started catch driving," Willis said. "If he'd have kept driving while he was so closely associated with me it would have been a conflict of interest."

"Everyone likes him. As a man, he's a 10. And, away from the track, he's a very, very good family man."

Encouraged by Willis and with the blessings of Illinois Harness Horsemen's Association president Marty Engel and executive director Tony Somone, Franco ran for the organization's board of directors four years ago. He was elected and has served ever since.

"I have horses for Marty and I told him that Juan would be very good for the backside because he speaks Spanish and most of the people working there are Spanish-speaking," Willis said. "Juan is a hard worker; everyone respects him; and he does a great job of communicating with the people on the backstretch."

Franco's driving opportunities in Illinois have been limited because the cessation of racing at Balmoral and its sister track, Maywood Park, following their 2015 meetings left dual-purpose Hawthorne as the state's only pari-mutuel harness track.

This year the problem was exacerbated by the decision of corporate overlord Churchill Downs, Inc. to close Arlington International Racecourse, one of the nation's premier thoroughbred tracks, at the end of its 2021 meeting and sell the property to the Chicago Bears of the National Football League for redevelopment.

Meanwhile, the new harness track/casino in Chicago's southwest suburbs that was authorized by the massive 2019 gambling expansion bill has yet to materialize.

As a consequence, this year the harness horses and thoroughbreds are time-sharing at Hawthorne. The first standardbred meeting began Jan. 7 and will end March 20 after which the thoroughbreds will take over the track until harness racing resumes with a July 1-Sept. 11 meeting.

Although perennial champion Casey Leonard, current leader Kyle Wilfong and accomplished veteran Mike Oosting are getting the majority of the better horses to drive at the current meeting, Franco nevertheless is doing relatively well. Going into tonight's (March 4) program in 126 outings he had 13 wins, 16 places and 23 shows for earnings of $140,441 and a career best UDRS of .235.

"He doesn't get the best horses but he gets a lot of checks," Willis said.

Indicative of Franco's popularity, one day last month when

Four Footed Fotos

Juan Franco has developed a reputation for having patience with horses.

entries were drawn in seven of the eight races eight different trainers had him listed as their driver.

"One of the main things I like about Juan is he's very patient with the horses and he drives them smartly," trainer Steve Searle said. "Also, when the race is over he always has a little bit of feedback. He tells me if he thinks something needs to be changed or something needs to be done. He's good to listen to."

Franco made Hawthorne history on Aug. 4, 2018 when he drove Walter White, a gelding trained by Jim Eaton, to a 3 ½-length triumph in 1:53.3, equaling the track record for an older trotter set by Dink Adoo on July 15, 2005.

The most lucrative and prestigious conquest of his career came in 2019 on Hawthorne's Night of Champions when he won the $100,000 Plum Peachy for 3-year-old filly pacers with Fox Valley Halsey in a three-horse photo finish clocked in 1:54.4.

"He'd bought a brand new helmet and paid $750 or something like that for it," recalled Willis, the trainer of Fox Valley Halsey. "Before the race I said to him: 'If you win this race I'll buy that helmet!'"

"It was muddier than hell that night and it was real close at the finish but he won it and I gladly paid for that helmet."

Franco deeply appreciates all of the support he has received in establishing himself in Illinois.

"I thank God that I met the right people," he said, "very good people who do things the right way."

"I also have a wonderful family — my beautiful wife, Heidi Hernandez; my 21-year-old son, Christian, who is playing professional soccer in Guatemala; my 19-year-old daughter, Jasmine; and my 15-year-old daughter, Natalia.

"We are able to watch Christian's games on Facebook. Last month our girls went to Guatemala on vacation and saw their brother play. Our youngest got very excited about soccer. Now, she wants to try out for her high school team."

While Franco has given no thought to leaving Illinois, he has done some driving in Indiana and Ohio and last year for the first time he went to the Oak Grove meeting in Kentucky for the first time "and enjoyed that a lot."

As for a favorite horse, Franco doesn't have one. "I'm driving a lot of good ones and it would be very hard to pick a favorite," he said. "I just love what I'm doing. Every time I get into the bike I say to the horse 'Let's go out and do it.'"

Faraldo on Gural: So much for transparency and integrity and hello to more bewildering hypocrisy

by Joe Faraldo

I just saw Jeff Gural's so called response to the USTA president's ask (full story here) for full disclosure regarding those drug tests the USTA helped pay for some years back that Jeff had requested the USTA to provide help with. The guardian of integrity, has steadfastly refused to turn over the results to anyone, including those who he asked to help pay for those tests, the accused and even regulators – regulators often criticized for not taking action against wrongdoers.

The simple ask back then and now was for those asserted positive tests, that went unrevealed to anyone, including the industry. Now we are told that there were no such positive tests. If this wasn't so scary, it would indeed be sheer comedy.

So was the entire industry purposely misled? Were people just outed in an alleged violation of the doping rules when no violations existed? Were others given a pass and allowed to participate even though they actually had positive tests? We have recently seen an admission made under oath by a person injecting PEDS then given a pass.

Well, so much for transparency and integrity and hello to more bewildering hypocrisy.

The response given, was made to deflect attention away from the request directed squarely at those past pronouncements of what we are now told were unfounded, non-existent, positive tests. As they say, the best defense is a good offense. Direct the focus of our attention and the president of the USTA curiously to the fact that the recent FBI probe has not one post-race positive test. But neither did Gural's.

Every lawyer following the existing criminal cases knows that the FBI has not one positive post-race test, or any Out of Competition positive tests, with possibly one exception, and no hair follicle positive tests, remember those. But the FBI never claimed to have any and that was not the question posed but the response given by Jeff.

How about answering those people that were maligned by what was done? How about revealing those tests results so the industry could know the truth? The further response that Joe and Russell should be careful of what the Fishman/Grasso list might disclose isn't going to cause me a sleepless night. For those who say enough now, I didn't make any request but I support its ultimate goal – the truth. I also guess the smear campaign that will follow to avoid the truth.

It troubles me that no one wants an independent Standardbred Racing Integrity Fund (SRIF) that was demanded after its announced creation. An SRIF, the SOA and PHHA has supported because it is independent of one or more persons carving out exceptions to investigations.

Not shocking that our industry is willing to believe that there were people who were cheating at the Meadowlands, though we are now being led to believe that that may not have been the case. It is a narrative we want to believe – anyone who is successful is a cheater. That is the false narrative the industry loves. It fulfills the unfounded belief, lacking only evidence of wrongdoing. That narrative builds handle and strikes at other track operators who are claimed not to care or the horsemen's leadership now said to be operating those tracks.

I have no idea what the Gural response does, but it is in line with letting an admitted doer race. The impetus, it seems to me, for the ask by Russell Williams was directed in many ways at the commissions since not one commission has taken the usual step, based on such an under oath admission, to order a Summary Suspension of someone injecting PEDS on race day.

The world is being turned upside down. People who admit such wrongdoing are not supposed to get off scot free and their conduct sanitized. Neither, Hall nor Cohen's testimonies were critical to the conviction of Seth Fishman. Neither is a heroic figure.

GRASSROOTS PERSPECTIVE

with CHRIS LOMON

Montana native Annie Stoebe relishing having a “boutique” barn of five trainees

by Chris Lomon

Annie Stoebe figured something had to be amiss when she crossed the wire on the night of Dec. 28, 2017 at The Meadowslands.

The tote board strongly suggested Uriel, a bay son of Explosive Matter, didn't have much of a shot to win the amateur race on a cold winter's night at the New Jersey oval.

Courtesy Annie Stoebe

Annie Stoebe with Mimi Ocean Hanover.

At 64-1, the bay gelding, bred by Joie De Vie Farm LLC, hadn't shown much in recent starts leading up to the dash, going off at a combined 197-1 in his previous three races.

Uriel's driver, who also happened to be her owner and trainer, went into the race with an open mind, realistic about her chances, but certainly not resigned to defeat.

"You never say never," said Stoebe. "Anything can happen once the race begins. That's how I looked at it."

When the field was sent on its way, she swiftly guided Uriel to the lead, a big one, in fact, the duo holding a 4  $\frac{3}{4}$ -length advantage after the opening quarter-mile, and three lengths clear at the half-mile marker.

Still unfettered on the front end, the pair had increased their lead to 5  $\frac{1}{2}$ -lengths at the stretch call.

Stoebe then waited for the sound, the one of a rival or rivals poised to make a late charge down the lane.

Instead, she heard nothing. The margin of victory was 7  $\frac{3}{4}$  lengths.

"There was no horse that could ever beat him off the gate. I ended up looking at his lines and every start in his career that he won, he was on the front. So, I knew I would get him to the front. There is an advantage to sitting behind a horse every day and understanding how to rate fractions. I was able to get to the front and kind of slam on the brakes. Thankfully, no one challenged me, and we were able to get the win. He was the type of horse that you couldn't knock him off his feet, but he would pull your arms off. It wasn't very fun sitting in a hole with him."

Her time with Uriel provided near daily lessons related to her craft. It's a relationship Stoebe remains grateful for, and one she worked tirelessly to develop.

"I had to learn a lot about that horse, to really devise a program that suited him. He was incredibly grabby, to the point you could hardly jog and train him. I switched him and did everything under saddle. He was a tie-up horse as well, and he would get stressed. I learned that if I rode him and trained him under saddle, his performance was night and day. He's helped shape me as a trainer."

These days, the Montana native's number of training starts has surpassed the amount of career drives she's had.

Last year, Stoebe went out on her own, and campaigned a pair of filly trotters, namely, Mimi Ocean Hanover, and Champagne Hanover.

"I was thrilled with how 2021 turned out, especially it being the first year where it was just me. One of my fillies, Mimi Ocean Hanover, won her first start in a Sires Stakes race at The Meadows. My other filly, Champagne Hanover, had a chip taken out of her knee. We knew pretty much her 2-year-old season was shot and that we would have to set our sights on her 3-year-old year. But she came back and won the last two starts of 2021."

Those victories came at Harrah's Philadelphia, the first a head score on Nov. 4 at odds of 18-1, followed by a 2  $\frac{1}{2}$ -length triumph two weeks later, in a personal-best 1:58.3.

The Hanover Shoe Farms-bred miss, a daughter of Bar Hopping, was a $140,000 purchase at the November 2020 Harrisburg Sale.

"Honestly, it was the biggest surprise I had the whole year, seeing Champagne Hanover come around. She just wanted to be a horse and it showed. She showed a lot of potential."

As did Mimi Ocean Hanover, who qualified in 1:57.2 at Pocono on Feb. 27.

"She went faster than the open trotters, on an off track. That's definitely a good way to start my season."

Now, with five horses in her barn, Stoebe has not only increased the number of horses under her tutelage, but her own profile as well.

It is the end result of a triactor of sorts: hard work, self-motivation, and an unabashed enthusiasm for the industry.

"I love doing what I do. I look forward to every day. Not every day is going to turn out as you hope it will, but that just makes you more determined and more committed to your horses."

As for yearly goals, Stoebe does set a few.

Her primary objective has nothing to do with personal numbers.

"I set goals for each horse. One of my owners and I actually sit down at the ending of the year and have a meeting. We discuss the goals we had set for the year, whether we achieved them and set new ones for his horses, the stable and everything as a whole. Each year, we try to get better stock, and see where the horses were lacking the previous year and try to make a gameplan to improve in those areas."

Coming up with a winning blueprint is nothing new for Stoebe, who started her racing career working for trainer Brett Bittle.

For the horsewoman who grew up on a farm near Great Falls (a city in Montana located near several waterfalls on the Missouri River) and was a fixture in the world of barrel racing, which earned her a rodeo scholarship to Texas college, the decision a handful of years ago to change course and pursue a career in harness racing was a road worth travelling.

Her roadmap for further success is based on achieving more with less.

"I'm very happy with having a small number of horses. I want to be able to have more of a boutique-esque type of barn. Instead of having big numbers, I can have a barn where each horse has its own program, go at their own speed, and I can take the time to do what they need, not what I want them to do."

Listening to her horses, said Stoebe, remains a cornerstone of her approach to training.

Keeping an open mind has also served her well.

"They all manage to teach to you something, you just have to be willing to listen to them. They do tell you. Unfortunately, it's not always good what they are telling you, but once you figure out how to speak their language, it makes both of our lives a lot easier."

Last year was a perfect example of that.

Stoebe is hoping the 2022 campaign is even more memorable than what her stable achieved in 2021.

"For me, just having two trotting fillies, the fact that they not only made the races, but both of them got a sub :59 mark... I felt that was a huge accomplishment. To get them to the races is one thing, but to see them both trot in under :59, that was a big goal for me. I didn't know if I would achieve that, even in June and July. It's nice when all the work pays off at the end of the day."

On this particular day, a rare day off, Stoebe decided to relax in her preferred way.

"Of course, I went to the barn today and then went on a trail ride," she said with a laugh. "What else do you do on your day off when you work with horses? In general, for us horsepeople, it's not a career, it's our life. Could I have a day off and go do something? Yes, I could. But I want to see how each horse is doing, make sure they get enough turn out, and make sure they're happy."

And yes, Stoebe is happy too. Very much so.

"I'm so happy that I made the decision to pursue a life in standardbred racing. My parents would love to have me back home, but they are also very proud of me. And that's a good feeling."

End of the French winter meeting approaches

by Thomas Hedlund

The $445,000 Prix de Paris over 4,150 meters (approximately 2.6 miles) was on Vincennes' Sunday (Feb. 27) race card and the strongest horses in Europe at this moment battled in spectacular fashion.

The 2021 winner, Etonnant, and runner up from the same year, Diable de Vauvert (Prince d'Espace), proved to be the toughest in the 2022 edition.

Etonnant couldn't defend himself during the race's last 50 meters after a tough trip in front of the field and last year's runner up got his revenge. Etonnant's driver Anthony Barrier opted for an optimistic tactic, letting Davidson du Pont advance for the lead a mile into the race. Several changes in front were made before the field turned into the second lap on Vincennes' big track and Etonnant was again seen in front with 1,900 meters to go.

Gerard Forni

Diable de Vauvert winning the $445,000 Prix de Paris on Feb. 27 at Vincennes.

Prix d'Amérique runner-up, Galius, took command of the field shortly thereafter and Etonnant could rest in the pocket while Diable de Vauvert got a perfect cover trip in second over. The attack from the latter horse was set in with 500 meters to go, but when Etonnant got his chance to leave the pocket, it seemed like he would be the winner. Diable de Vauvert fought back on the outside and claimed the victory in a Prix de Paris record mile rate of 1:58.

Leader Galius finished third and the Prix de Paris closed the Grand Prix-circuit for this season in Paris.

But there is still a big race remaining and on Vincennes' last card (Saturday March 5), the $265,000 Prix de Selection is scheduled. The race is open for 4-, 5- and 6-year-olds where the youngest competitors will have a 25 meters advance.

Philippe Allaire-trained Hohneck (fifth in Prix d'Amérique), together with stablemate 4-year-old Italiano Vero, are the most merited trotters in the field but they will both have to fight hard to beat Thierry Duvaldestin-trained Idao de Tillard, who has impressed a lot in Paris this winter.

An exciting closure of the winter meeting will face the racing fans of Paris.

The next big event in French harness racing will be when Cagnes-sur-Mer on the Riviera plays host to the Criterium de Vitesse event on March 13. The mile race in Cagnes-sur-Mer is many fans' vacation objective during the spring and the environment surrounding the track is something really special. A ticket for the Elitloppet at Solvalla is usually at stake and it's not a wild guess that the winner in Cagnes will get an invitation to Sweden. Solvalla has already invited its first horse for Elitloppet this year. Title defender Don Fanucci Zet (Hard Livin) is the first horse invited for the big mile race in Sweden in May.

Hennessey has a blast in booth

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

Wally Hennessey's career as a track announcer lasted only several minutes, but the experience will be a memory for a lifetime.

Hennessey fulfilled a dream Wednesday night (March 2) when he called the sixth race at Pompano Park, where the affable 65-year-old Prince Edward Island native has raced for decades and captured numerous driving titles. Hennessey was invited to the booth by Gabe Prewitt, Pompano's director of racing and regular track announcer.

"Gabe is a great friend," said Hennessey, who has won more than 11,000 races lifetime and leads the driver standings at Pompano Park. "I just had this in my mind for a long time about announcing a race. Before the meet started, and with this being our last season here, I told Gabe I had to get up there."

The opportunity arrived Wednesday because Hennessey was without a drive for four consecutive races on the card, enabling him to head to the announcer's booth. Hennessey decided to call the sixth race because it had the night's shortest field, six horses, and it provided the chance to watch several races from the booth before his call.

"I was able to go up there and get the lay of the land," Hennessey said. "And Gabe recommended that I do the post parade (prior to the sixth race) so I could get into the mode of announcing.

"Geez, I was nervous. I was afraid about freezing up when they said 'go.' I was afraid I might give only two calls for the whole race. But it went off very good, and the rush I got out of it was crazy. I'm still pumped about it (Thursday) morning, to be honest."

As the sixth-race field made its way toward the start, Hennessey paid tribute to all the track announcers that had called races at Pompano Park before him. He also interjected several phrases used by other announcers, such as Prewitt's "The starter calls," Vance Cameron's "Boom, just like that," and Joe Zambito's "You can circle the (number) three horse, this one is over."

Hennessey also tossed out his own one-liners, such as "It's going to make it easier for me, there are only five left now," when Skyway Poet went off stride behind the starting gate; "There's not very good vibes there," when Good Vibez made a break at the quarter; and "Shulda Hada Drink is looking to have a drink right now," when the race's favorite was about to be overtaken in the stretch by eventual winner Perfect Destiny.

"That's nothing I was thinking about saying, it just came off the cuff," Hennessey said. "It's hard to do. You're trying to concentrate, but you're also trying to do things. It's not as easy as it might seem. I have to give those guys a lot of credit. That's work.

"When I was calling it, you're not quite sure what you're going to say, but the words come. I tried to, which made it a little easier for me, use the driver as the reference before the horse. Once I gave the driver, I could look at the program and add the horse."

He then added with a laugh, "Believe me, I'd be no good doing the Derby."

Hennessey's trip to the booth was a one-time occurrence, although a very meaningful one, especially at The Pomp, which has meant so much to him and his career.

"All I've ever done is the horses," Hennessey said. "This is my life. And that is part of my life, the people I hang with, they've all been my friends, all those announcers.

"I'm so glad I did it. It was a blast. I'm still excited. But I won't get excited like that again because my announcing career is over. And, by the way, no racetracks have called me this morning looking for me."

$140,000 seller tops first Preferred Equine Online sale

Preferred Equine Online's inaugural mixed sale on Monday afternoon (Feb. 28) was deemed highly successful by all who participated.

Eighteen of the 22 lots offered in the auction sold for a total of $466,200 and were led by the 1:48.4 pacer Patrickthepiranha A, who was consigned by PEO as agent for Dr. David Avino and purchased for $140,000 by Anthony MacDonald's Thestable.ca (See full sale results here).

The 7-year-old Australian-bred pacer raced in the Preferred at the Meadowlands just last Saturday night, timed in 1:50.3 (:26.3) in a race that was won by American History.

The broodmares in the sale were led by the Muscle Hill daughter Angel Of The North, selling open, who brought $22,000. Also on the breeding end of the spectrum, a share in Muscle Hill sold for $100,000.

The lots not sold will continue to be listed on the Feb. 28 sale page under "make offer," with an asking price for each horse.

"I'm very pleased not only with the overall participation and the prices, but with how smoothly it all went off," said sale manager David Reid. "Customers told me time and again the online platform was easy to navigate and that they appreciated the site's privacy protections and professional look."

He added that after receiving feedback from customers, minor changes will be incorporated for the next sale to make the buyer experience even better.

"It was a perfect start to what we believe will become an industry standard in online auctions" he said. "It was well-promoted, well-attended, and activity from the time bidding opened was exceptional."

Preferred Equine Online's next sale will be held Monday, March 14. Entries are now being accepted at preferredequineonline.com.

James Witherite joins Hoof Beats as assistant editor

Current Hoof Beats contributor and ustrotting.com newsroom editor James Witherite has been named assistant editor of the magazine. He will join the Hoof Beats staff starting on April 1.

"We already have an excellent, existing relationship with James and know that his skills, knowledge and contacts will be a great addition to the Hoof Beats team," said USTA director of marketing and communications Dan Leary. "I actually met him before I started working for the USTA when he was calling races at Harrah's in Chester, PA, and have been impressed with all that he has accomplished in harness racing since then."

Witherite, who has 20 years of experience in many aspects of media and 15 years in a variety of roles in harness racing, has been working as a newsroom editor for the U.S. Trotting Association's website for more than three years and has written features and commentary for Hoof Beats during that time.

"I'm thrilled to be joining the USTA and Hoof Beats in a more substantial role," said Witherite. "After starting in print media about 20 years ago and expanding into broadcast and digital media in the time since, I'm looking forward to returning to print media in my new post alongside Kathy Parker and the entire Hoof Beats crew. As always, I'm grateful for the trust that industry participants have given me to amplify their voices and share their stories."

Among his extensive list of accomplishments in harness racing, during his time calling races at Harrah's from 2007-2013, Witherite also served as assistant track announcer at Rosecroft Raceway and Beulah Park.

Witherite went on to become the track announcer at Tioga Downs and Vernon Downs from 2014-2016, where he also served as on-air talent for simulcasts, wrote press releases, did handicapping for the program, and incorporated Twitter into the tracks' social media. From there, he spent a couple of years at The Meadowlands as oddsmaker where he not only did the morning line but also analysis for the program and website, as well as writing press releases.

Most recently, Witherite served as chart caller and program editor back at Harrah's Philadelphia.

In addition to his freelance work for the USTA newsroom and Hoof Beats, he has been a copy editor for and contributor to Standardbred Canada's website and has written for the Midwest Harness Report.

Champions return for 2022 MGM Borgata and Blue Chip Matchmaker

As spring approaches, MGM Yonkers Raceway launches its rich stakes schedule estimated at over $5 million. Anchoring the early-season offerings as the kick-off for the 2022 Grand Circuit is the 13th edition of the Blue Chip Matchmaker for older pacing mares and 34th MGM Borgata Series (formerly the George Morton Levy Memorial) for older male pacers.

A total of 80 horses were made eligible to the pair of events, with an even split for each. The 40 for the Blue Chip Matchmaker represents the highest total for the series in nearly a decade and a huge increase over the 22 made eligible in 2021.

"I am excited to kick off our MGM stakes races," said racing secretary Joe Frasure, who took over the position in the fall of 2021. "I was very happy to see the rise in Blue Chip Matchmaker nominations and we have a good group for the Borgata as well."

Both 2021 champions – This Is The Plan and Machnhope – were nominated and will be seeking encore performances. The former never finished worse than second in the five preliminary legs of the series last year and went wire to wire from post eight to capture the $514,000 Borgata final in a stakes record-equaling 1:50 4/5. Machnhope was a two-leg winner in 2021 before pulling off a mild 6-1 upset in 1:52 2/5 despite a first-over trip in the Matchmaker final.

The Borgata, which will be contested on six consecutive Mondays starting March 21, attracted a stellar group of talented half-milers. In addition to This Is The Plan, the all-time record-holder over a half-mile surface with a 1:47.3 clocking at MGM sister property Northfield Park, the series also includes Little Brown Jug winner Captain Barbossa and Breeders Crown winner and co-track record-holder American History, who shares the Yonkers distinction with fellow Borgata eligible Tattoo Artist and the now retired Theartofconfusion A.

The list of Borgata-eligible notables is long with stakes winners Leonidas A and None Better A, both confirmed lovers of the Yonkers oval, in the group. Whichwaytothebeach, who won the Reynolds over the surface in 2021, is one of seven returning 4-year-olds of the 40 entered.

The Blue Chip Matchmaker, also a five-leg series, begins on Friday, March 18 and includes not just reigning champion Machnhope but runner-up Blue Ivy and Alexa Skye, a four-leg winner in 2021 who finished fourth in the final. Racine Bell, a track record-holder on the half at Batavia and multiple open winner at Yonkers in 2021, is also signed on, along with last year's Jugette winner Scarlett Hanover.

The Matchmaker and Borgata finals, which already have $285,000 and $400,000 respectively in the kitty and figure to offer purses in excess of $350,000 and $500,000, are scheduled for Monday, April 25. There will also be a $100,000 consolation for the Borgata and $75,000 for the Matchmaker.

The first stakes race of the year at Yonkers actually takes place on March 8 when 3- and 4-year-olds will compete in the MGM Rewards Pacing Series. The boys division lured 39 horses while the fillies and mares division that starts one day later saw 32 horses nominate.

A complete list of horses eligible to the four stakes can be found here.

Live racing at Yonkers is offered from Monday to Friday with a 6:55 p.m. first-race post-time through April. Click here for a full-season look at the schedule.

Meadowlands driver approval process begins today

The Meadowlands' driver approval process begins this weekend as the driver colony begins to take shape for stakes season.

The drivers that will be required to apply to compete throughout the "Championship Meet" are those who made 200 starts and earned over $1 million at The Meadowlands during the 2021 stakes season from May 1 through November 20. They will be expected to race at The Meadowlands on every live card from March 4 through the end of stakes season; exceptions may be made for stakes at other tracks and approved personal absences.

Applications will be accepted starting April 18 for the month of May and the process for application and approval will continue each month. Those applications may be emailed to JSettlemoir@PlayMeadowlands.com between April 18 and 20.

Drivers coming from other circuits are welcome to participate in all stakes and overnights at The Meadowlands. They should contact Mr. Settlemoir at the above address and make him aware of their intention to drive. Those drivers will be required to abide by the same guidelines as those competing regularly at The Meadowlands.

STA launches Placement Liaison Program to link retiring racehorses with necessary resources

The Standardbred Transition Alliance (STA) has launched a new program to help ensure the safety of standardbred horses that are retiring from racing. Called the Placement Liaison Program (PLP), this initiative is fully endorsed by the United States Trotting Association (USTA) and is designed to streamline the process of placing retiring racehorses into quality aftercare programs.

The process is simple: the racehorse owner completes and submits three forms, which can be found on the STA website. An STA Liaison processes the paperwork on behalf of the owner and becomes the first point of contact for the transition process. The Liaison reaches out to STA accredited aftercare organizations to determine which would be a good fit for the retiring racehorse. The aftercare organization then takes the retired racehorse into their care with all paperwork in place and the rehoming process begins immediately.

"We are very excited about this new program, which is huge for the future of standardbreds," said Don Marean, chairman of USTA District 9, director of the Maine Farm Bureau Horse Council and the Maine Harness Horsemen's Association; and vice chair of the University of Maine (Orono) Board of Agriculture. "Having a point person an owner can reach out to who can physically walk them through the transition from racing is imperative to keep standardbreds from ending up in trouble or in a kill pen. By eliminating the possible middleman, retiring racehorses have a significantly better chance for a quality life after the track."

Jennifer Daniels, administrator for the Standardbred Transition Alliance, held various roles with the USTA before transitioning into standardbred aftercare in 2013. Having worked both in the front-facing side of the industry and in transitioning retired racehorses to a new career, she was uniquely positioned to help the STA identify both how to make the rehoming process easier and how to help ensure a retiring racehorse doesn't end up in a potentially perilous situation.

"Our main priority is to make sure each horse has everything it needs to enter an adoption program ready to find its second career," said Daniels. "In addressing that, we also designed a program that alleviates many of the time-consuming, administrative tasks accredited aftercare organizations must complete. Programs are often stretched thin by having to do everything from hands-on care to office work to fundraising efforts. The Placement Liaison Program will allow adoption programs to operate even more efficiently by preserving their time and energy for screening and interviewing adopters, training horses and conducting post adoption follow-ups.

"The STA looks forward to assisting the horses and our accredited aftercare organizations in truly changing the face of equine aftercare."

Nuclear Dragon sets North American dash record at Miami Valley

In what is believed to be a world record time, Nuclear Dragon (Jeremy Smith) scorched the Miami Valley track in a once around 5/8ths mile dash in 1:07 flat on Monday (Feb. 28). The quickest prior 5/8th mile dash on a 5/8th track belonged to Toatsmygoats (Tim Tetrick) with a 1:07.1 effort on May 27, 2018 at Harrah's Philadelphia.

The record performance came in the first division of the first leg of the Bill Dailey Memorial Medley. Leg 2 will be contested at the conventional one mile distance, with a $30,000 championship at 1-1/4 miles (2 laps) on tap Monday, March 14. The fields were comprised of horses that had not raced for a purse over $15,000 in their last three starts.

Although Nuclear Dragon had not been on the front end at any point in any of his previous eight starts, Smith pushed the gate away with the 10-year-old son of Nuclear Breeze and was in full command by the time the quarter was reached in :26.3. With Smith having no thoughts of grabbing any leather, he and Nuclear Dragon tacked on a second quarter in :27 before adding a final eighth mile in :13.2. The winner, owned by Tonya Nichols and trained by Jason Brewer, lengthened his lead to seven lengths at the finish over Captain Zamperini (Brett Miller) and Don't Judge A Book (Billy Mann).

The second Dailey Memorial dash was captured by Americanfirewater, also guided by Jeremy Smith. It is possible that the 1:07.4 clocking was the third fastest one lap dash in North American harness history. The 8-year-old son of American Ideal beat One Corona To Go (Kayne Kauffman) and Later Dudes (Chris Page) who made the outcome interesting in deep stretch. Trainer Ken Rucker co-owns Americanfirewater with The Panhellenic Stable Corporation.

The $30,000 open handicap trot on the card also produced a stellar performance. Pass The Vape (Dan Noble) employed a first over attack on frontrunning Jeffery P (Page) to triumph in 1:53. Longshot Country Girl Charm (LeWayne Miller) was next best with Pick Me Upper (Tony Hall) nabbing the show spot.

Andre Nared trains the 7-year-old son of Dejambro for owner Lionel Watiker. It was the 30th lifetime victory for Pass The Vape who has career earnings approaching $600,000.

The Tuesday (March 1) program at Miami Valley features first leg action in the Howard Beissinger Memorial Medley, which will follow the same format as the Dailey. Post time is 4:05 p.m.

Winners of Ray Paver Sr. Memorial at Miami Valley

The Ray Paver Sr. Memorial Series, for non-winners of four races or $40,000 lifetime, swung into action with two full divisions at Miami Valley Raceway on Wednesday (March 2). Boom Dynamite (Tony Hall) won the first $15,000 split; while Sly Little Fox (Brett Miller) was best in the second.

Boom Dynamite, a 4-year-old son of Broadway Hall, pushed his career earnings over $100,000 with the 1:56.3 half-length win over Orion's Star (Kayne Kauffman) and Real Diamonds K (Brandon Bates). The clocking was a lifetime best for the winner, co-owned by trainer Kim Dailey with partners Randy Leopard and Todd Woodruff. Boom Dynamite sat third along the pylons in the early going then launched a successful prolonged first-over attack just past the halfway point of the fray. He now has hit the board in seven out of eight 2022 starts, including three victories.

Sly Little Fox's 1:55 triumph for driver was also a lifetime best effort as the 4-year-old mare defeated Cheesy Hanover (Tyler Smith) and Heavenly Hope (Austin Hanners). A recent winner of a similar series at Hawthorne, Sly Little Fox has now won five of six on the season and pushed her 2022 earnings to $37,425 for owner Bambi Fox and trainer Mike Hollenbeck. Miller adeptly maneuvered the daughter of Swan For All through traffic from a second tier start to secure the lead early and coasted to a comfortable win from there.

Trotters in the Ray Paver Sr. Memorial, one of eight "Lebanon Legends" events featured from February through April, will gather again next Wednesday (March 9) for second round action featuring $17,500 purses. The top money earners will then chase a $25,000 championship purse on March 16.

UET suspends Russian Trotting Federation

In response to the current developments in Ukraine and in support of our guest member Ukraine the Union Européenne du Trot (UET, European Trotting Union) council has decided to suspend, with immediate effect, the participation of the representatives of the Russian Trotting Federation (CTA) in the work of the UET Commissions as well as the participation of Russian representatives in all competitions organized by the UET until a new decision is taken.

On March 12, at its meeting at the Cagnes-sur-Mer racecourse (France), the UET Board will discuss the possibility of submitting to the UET General Assembly the exclusion of the Russian Trotting Federation as a member of the UET.

Handle up, Dunn back with a bang at Big M

With winter's frigid grip starting to weaken on the Tri-State Area as the calendar marches its way toward spring, betting at The Meadowlands has picked up in a big way over the last two weeks, culminating last Saturday (Feb. 26) when the $3 million barrier was busted for the first time in 2022.

"Full fields, low takeouts, big pools and exciting finishes," said track chief operating officer and general manager Jason Settlemyer. "The whole night was a success in every way and watching our 'prime-time' races (six through nine) average over $300,000 per race during the winter meet was extremely encouraging for our sport. We continue to thank our fans worldwide for their loyal support of New Jersey racing on our mile track here at The Meadowlands."

The Big M faithful responded in a big way to its favorite wagers Saturday, the "Big 3" of the 20-cent Pick-5 and two 50-cent Pick-4s.

A total of $309,688 was put in play on the first race, $73,504 of that in the 20-cent Pick-5. Over the first five races, the handle was $1,178,159.

Then, in race six, a 2022-best $104,703 was wagered in the 50-cent Early Pick4, which served as the catalyst for the high single-race handle of the night at $352,929. Total action for those four races, aka "Prime Time", was $1,244,720, good for a per race average of $311,180.

The 50-cent Late Pick-4, which kicked off in the 10th race, had a pool of $86,869, and paved the way for total action on that race of $296,000, as $890,636 was pushed through the windows on the final four dashes of the night.

The two Pick-4s accounted for over $190,000 in total play, while the grand total of the three races (when you add in the Pick-5's race) was $958,617, an average of just under $320,000 per dash.

All-source handle for the Saturday night card was $3,310,483, an average per race of $254,652.

The Saturday (Feb. 19) prior, total wagering was $2.7 million to cap the biggest weekend of total play thus far this year at almost $5.67 million. Last weekend that total would undoubtedly have been surpassed, but Friday's races were canceled due to inclement weather.

GETTING IT DUNN: In his first appearance of 2022 at The Big M, three-time defending United States Harness Writers Association Driver of the Year Dexter Dunn showed no signs of rust after his lengthy vacation Saturday night, winning four times on the program.

Dunn scored with I'm A Big Deal ($15.20 to win in the fourth race), DA Delightful ($9.20 in the sixth), Monty Mono ($6.40 in the 11th) and Game Of Change ($33.20 in the 12th). Only Monty Mono went off as the post-time favorite.

Game Of Change capped a big night for Dunn's fans. Players who wagered $20 on all 11 of the native New Zealander's drives that night got back a whopping $638.

Yannick Gingras kept up his frantic early-season pace, registering a driving double, giving him at least two wins on all 13 Big M cards in 2022.

A GOOD WAY TO SURVIVE: One sharp bettor raked the pot in the 20-cent Survivor Pick-7 last Saturday, needing only the first six winners to cash in for $9,079.

LIVE RACING SCHEDULE: Racing at The Big M is conducted on a Friday-Saturday basis and has a first-race post time of 6:20 p.m.

The track's live "Racing from The Meadowlands" pregame show kicks off nightly at 5:47 p.m.

TUNE IN FOR TODD: Tonight (March 4) on the pregame show, driver Todd McCarthy will be Dave Little's guest on "In the Sully", which will get underway at approximately 5:50 p.m.

FREE PROGRAMS: Free past performances for every race of every Meadowlands program are available 48 hours before a given card. To access the no-cost official program pages, go to play-meadowlands.com.

- Race 1: 20-cent Pick-5
- Race 3: 20-cent Survivor Pick-7
- Race 6: 50-cent Early Pick-4 ($50,000 guaranteed pool)

Dragon Said, Jason Bartlett hot on a million dollar Monday at Yonkers

Dragon Said, who joined an exclusive club of sub-1:50 performers at Yonkers Raceway a year ago, romped on the front-end in Monday night's (Feb. 28) $39,000 open handicap pace at the Westchester half-mile oval.

Driven by Joe Bongiorno, Dragon Said went right to the top from post four and chopped out fractions of 27.1, 56, and 1:23.3, gaining separation on the rest of the field in that 27.3 third quarter. There was no catching Dragon Said from there, as he used a 27.4 final panel to slam the door on the 1:51.2 decision, defeating a closing-from-last Leonidas A and driver Austin Siegelman by 3 1/2 lengths. Speed Man N, steered by Jason Bartlett, held third after a pocket trip.

A 5-year-old Well Said gelding, Dragon Said is trained by Jenn Bongiorno for owner Robert Devine. This was Dragon Said's 14th career victory, and he has now pocketed $242,912. Dragon Said paid $4.80 to win and led a $13.40 exacta and a $23.20 trifecta.

While he had to settle for third in the open handicap, Bartlett did his share of posing for pictures on Monday, as he was the winning driver in half of the 12 races. He teamed with trainer Gareth Dowse to take the sixth with Kinnder Jackson, the ninth with Joesstar Of Mia A, and the nightcap with Jojo's Place. Bartlett's other victors were Runrunjimmydunn N (trained by Doug Dilloian Jr.), Shoreview (sent out by Tahnee Camilleri), and Cyclone Banner N (a Jeff Cullipher pupil).

Cyclone Banner N's 55-1 upset in the fifth dash was the key to the night's Pick 6 sequence going unsolved, and as a result, there will be a $6,166.72 carryover in that wager on Tuesday night (March 1). There was just one winning ticket in the Pick 5, with that lone sharp handicapper collecting a return of $15,836.50.

For the second time in less than a week on a racing program at Yonkers, wagering topped seven figures, ending at $1,006,005.70.

Mandatory safety vests required now in Ohio

Starting Tuesday (March 1), seated behind a horse on an Ohio racetrack is required to wear a safety vest.

The directive issued by the Ohio State Racing Commission in December states that safety vests must be worn when driving or warming up horses and must be worn under racing colors.

The Ohio Harness Horsemen's Association has arranged for discounts for members on two different safety vests certified for use in horse racing.

Limited size vests are still available from OHHA track reps. Discounts are available at Big Dees Tack and Vet Supply and by using the code OHA10 at Tipperary.com.

Anyone not wearing a safety vest will not be permitted on the track and will be fined. It is expected the inability to be on-track without a vest, and fines levied will make the purchase of a vest economical by comparison.
