Being Robbed Without Protest

Why breaking the culture of silence is essential to the survival of the sport.

by Dave Briggs

Horsepeople ask yourself this: If a fellow horseperson stole your truck while you watched, would you report it? Of course you would. Then riddle me this: Why do so few people report fellow horsepeople they have witnessed cheating?

It's a mind-boggler to be sure. After all, it's essentially the same thing. Those that cheat — using beards, loading horses up with performance enhancers, trying to gain an illegal edge in any way — are stealing from fellow horsepeople. To not report a person you have witnessed breaking the rules, or worse, is giving that person permission to steal from you — and everybody else — not just once, but repeatedly.

A key word in that last sentence is “witnessed”. I’ve seen the phrase “EVERYBODY knows...” so and so is a beard / cheater / bad person this week more times than I have in a year. The word “everybody” is invariably capitalized for emphasis to suggest this is a universal truth. It is not.

Suspicious results are obvious — off-the-charts winning percentage from a virtually unknown trainer; horses producing incredible drops in time or sudden, sustained, winning streaks from one barn to the next, etc. — but that does not constitute proof. Though, it's certainly a good place for professional investigators to start if knowledgeable insiders point them in the right direction and keep up the pressure to investigate.

The same goes for witnessing a trainer with a suspended license training his or her “former” horses that are listed under a beard’s name — or any number of other obvious infractions. Make the call. You can do it anonymously to the USTA (877-800-USTA (8782)) by contacting either T.C. Lane (ext. 3203) or Chip Hastings (ext. 3250).

It’s trite to borrow Homeland Security’s slogan, “If you see something, say something,” but the general sentiment is not a bad place to start.

I understand people worry about retribution and few people relish being a snitch. But too often, instead of doing what’s right, we err on the side of the least hassle while leaning on some old mind-your-own-business, brotherhood code of silence that, in the case of staying mum about the cheaters, is a detriment to us all.

Letting cheaters cheat not only undermines the integrity of a sport that relies on precious few gambling dollars, it perpetuates the problem. It is a particularly vicious cycle and why integrity is one of horse racing’s most pressing issues.

Honest horsepeople that feel the competition is rooked against them are subsequently tempted to cheat just to stay in the game. Bettors that feel the competition is rooked against them take their gambling money elsewhere. Owners that pour money into horses trained by honest trainers get frustrated that they can’t beat the cheaters and pull their money out (or, worse, start supporting the cheaters). Fewer owners means fewer horses being produced in the first place, which not only has a negative impact on the bottom line of breeders, but also leads to smaller fields which is a deterrent to betting. Lower handle for those jurisdictions without gaming revenue leads to lower purses. Even in jurisdictions where gaming does contribute to purses, low handle as a result of small fields and the loss of bettors is a problem because it’s a signal to the political masters that authorized the slots that horse racing is a dying game unable to stand on its own two feet and undeserving of continued support.

Thus, the downward spiral becomes a whirlpool that sucks us all under.

I appreciate the frustration of those that want to report wrongdoing, but decide against it because they don’t expect the racing commission or track in their jurisdiction to act. Clearly, most commissions could do a lot more to uphold the basic tenant of their existence — to defend the law and protect both the public and the horses from unscrupulous operators. Clearly, more tracks could devote more resources to investigations.

Yes, the more the industry relies on gaming dollars rather than the proceeds of pari-mutuel wagering decreases the incentive for both commissions and tracks to want to crack down on the rule-breakers. Be persistent and realistic. Just don't stop trying.

As for the trade press, please stop expecting it to say what you're afraid to say – particularly without facts. Please understand most racing writers do not have the time, resources and investigative powers to prove what is often difficult to prove, especially not being on the ground at farms and training centers with enough frequency. "EVERYBODY knows" is not proof. It is rumor. The press has a legal responsibility to print what it can prove. That does not absolve racing reporters from a critical role in the process, but the burden of proof should not rest with it alone.

If the industry is going to survive, horsepeople are going to need to speak up when they see something wrong. For a brief moment last Sunday, that's exactly what one horseperson did in a pointed letter to HRU accusing a fellow horseperson of being a beard. The letter writer subsequently requested the letter be removed fearing reprisals.

The letter may be gone, but that one act of speaking up, even for a brief moment, has kept the light on the alleged beard in question. It's a start, but more needs to be done; more people need to make the call to the proper authorities; more horsepeople need to insist on integrity from their colleagues.

Otherwise, horsepeople better get used to surrendering their wallets to the cheaters without protest – over and over again.

New Jersey betting exchange is good for harness racing, with some caveats

On May 10, New Jersey residents will be able to – for the first time – bet on horses via a betting exchange. The exchange, operated by British betting giant Betfair along with New Jersey's Darby Developments, is a non-traditional way to play (primarily) the win pools. While those outside New Jersey may bet to win on the three horse in the third next weekend, people on the exchange can bet at a locked-in price, like buying a stock on an exchange. As well, “layers” will be offering up prices on horses; essentially betting a horse to lose.

This form of betting might be new to North America, and it might sound a little strange, but it's not new to just about everyone else. It's been available in the UK since about the year 2000, and Australia's fixed odds and exchange market – established close to a decade ago – is booming.

What do we need to know about this form of wagering? Well, a lot of the story is good (really good), some of the story is not so good, and one part of it can be potentially not very good at all.

First up, the average age of a Betfair racing patron is the late 30's, whereas in horse racing it's about 20 years senior to that. The Betfair customer is mobile and app friendly, loves technology, and is a stats geek who's drawn to wagering for profit. As well, Betfair attracts those who trade the market, just like you'd trade a stock exchange. Selling a horse at 2-1 and buying him back at 3-1 is no different than picking up 100 shares of AAPL at $101 and selling them at $103.

This is very positive because these are exactly the types of players racing needs. Handicapping and wagering is a skill betting game, but racing does a poor job embracing it. Betfair, and exchanges, force racing to confront this problem, and offers it a new market to sell to, through a medium customers like. In the long-run, this not only involves hopefully increasing revenue from wagering, but selling nights out at the track, new horse ownership and building new fans, too.

What else is good is that exchanges are a form of fixed odds wagering. There are hundreds if not thousands of players in New Jersey who stopped betting, for example, at Freehold, or other small harness tracks because of odds that change after the bell. It's a complete scourge for the sport, and is a fierce attack on the name of the game – getting value for your wagers. Betting exchanges allow you to lock in a price and not be at the mercy of the late simulcast money. That means something.

For potential new customers, and old customers who have long left the game (along with those thinking of leaving), this is really big news.

What's not so great about the exchange is that when negotiating this deal they had to work with old-time horse racing. And much of old-time horse racing thinks people are still driving to the track in their Pintos. When I wrote a white paper on exchange wagering for the industry in Canada eight or 10 years ago (I have been betting and studying exchange betting since 1999), I said the following:

“The worst thing North American racing can do when approving an exchange is taking too much off a bet through takeout. Exchanges bring in new demographics (and attract poker players and others like them) precisely because they offer a low vigorish to the most price sensitive. Sabotaging this edge sabotages the exchange's number one selling point. When setting prices, racing needs to think like a pro-growth tech company, not like a 1950 racing monopoly, because it's not 1950 anymore."

Right on cue, New Jersey didn't disappoint. Worldwide, exchanges work with about five per cent commission. In fact, recently when Australia racing tried to raise prices to over eight per cent, it killed handle (and purse revenue) and they had to backtrack. What did New Jersey do? They passed it with 12 per cent takeout, yes, 12 per cent.

With only 20 per cent of wagering in the win pool, and a good deal of money coming from six to eight per cent signal fees, there is absolutely no reason to worry about cannibalization. New Jersey tracks and/or horsepeople should have never pushed for this high price. It's short-sighted and has a chance to handcuff any potential growth. Let's hope it doesn't.

There are a ton of great benefits from an exchange, along with some not-so-great things, like pricing. But, what can really throw a gasoline bomb into the fire is if those playing on the exchange from inside the sport are doing so illegally.

On an exchange, horses are bet to lose. If you're a trainer who has the eight post, plans to have the driver send the horse to the back and brush at the end, you have a pretty unique advantage. Betting the horse to lose is "free money", right? If you do that three or four times you can make a nice buck. Parties all around, pop the champagne.

Well, you'd best think twice. Betfair's back end, and its technology, has pretty much perfected catching people doing such things. Unlike the aforementioned 1950's when paper trails with betting were impossible, today it's all one big paper trail.

"Jockey Eddie O'Connell has been banned from horse racing for four years. Betfair, the world's leading betting exchange site, alerted the Turf Club about fixings in the horse racing, after they had two UK based 'lay' bets on O'Connell to finish outside the top three in his race."

"Matthew Hopkins, the former apprentice has been banned from racing for three years following a betting probe. He placed eight back bets and one lay bet on Betfair on December 21, 2012."

In Australia, harness trainer Justin Abbott (a blast from the past for Meadowlands fans and horsemen), was initially given five years (later chopped down to about a year) for laying his horses, i.e. betting them to lose. His profits were $97.55 on one horse and $235 on another.

Betfair's tech team is not a judge looking the other way when a leading driver drops a boot, or uses a whip too much, or lets his buddy pass up the inside. They mean business, even if you only made $97.55 on a bet.

Sure the headlines could be ugly, but if someone wants to test the system by nefariously defrauding customers, they probably have been doing it for years in the pari-mutuel pools, anyway. It's about time they're caught and sent away so the vast majority of honest trainers and drivers can go about their daily business, trying to earn a living.

Over the next few months, New Jersey's exchange will be humming. The sport is hopeful that new fans and bettors will be backing and laying, trading, and creating some buzz with the new medium. Despite some issues and potential bumps in the road, it deserves everyone in this sport's support. New ways to wager can create new fans, new horse owners, and, in time, create more revenue for a sport badly in need of it.

The Takter Factor

Dave Landry

Jimmy Takter

Jimmy Takter has won the Hambletonian four times, but he has not sent out a winning favorite in the 21st century.

His 2015 champ, Pinkman, was the second choice.

The year before, Trixton won, but stablemate Father Patrick was favored and broke at the start.

In 2010, Muscle Massive was 6-1 in a race in which Lucky Chucky was the favorite.

Takter's first Hambletonian winner, Malabar Man in 1997, was the favorite.

The Dancer-Takter connection

There are quite a few similarities between Jimmy Takter and Stanley Dancer:

- Both went into the Hall Of Fame at age 51.
- Both won the Hambletonian four times.
- Takter is the winningest trainer of all time in divisional titles; Dancer is the winningest trainer of all time in Horse of the Year titles (seven).
- Takter won the Hambletonian in 2010 when it went for $1.5 million – tied for the highest trotting purse. Dancer won the sport's first million-dollar trot in 1983 with Duenna in the Hambletonian that carried a purse of $1,080,000.

- Both Dancer and Takter had one of their four Hambletonian winners named HOY – Nevele Pride in 1968 for Dancer and Malabar Man in 1997 for Takter.

Trivia

Q. Can you name the last horse to set the earnings record for his age at two, three and four?

A. Albatross. In 1970, when he was two, he earned $183,540. He earned $558,009 in 1971 at age three. In 1972, at age four, he earned $459,921. He retired the fastest and the richest pacer ever. He was the first horse to win a combined $1 million over a two-year period and was twice voted the Horse of the Year.

North America Cup, remembering '84

The North America Cup is the richest pacing event on the calendar again this year. It began in 1984. Why that year?

Jack Kenney was the president of the Ontario Jockey Club at the time. "We have decided the North America Cup best reflects the true international flavor of our major harness racing event. The name symbolizes friendship and a keen rivalry between Canadian and American horsemen dating back to the early 1800s," Kenney said.

The previous three Horses Of The Year in America all had Canadian ownership at that time – and that doesn't even take into account the '83 Triple Crown winning Ralph Hanover. The list includes Cam Fella in 1982-'83 (owned by Norm Faulkner and Norm Clements), Fan Hanover (Dr Glen Brown) in 1981 and two-time Horse of the Year Niatross, who was bred and co-owned by Canadian born Elsie Berger.

The North America Cup replaced the Queen City Pace and actually was contested on a Monday (July 2) in year one.

Trivia II

Q. Who is the only member of the $2 million club to lose his/her first 20 starts?

A. Vintage Master.

And finally...

Four trainers have had the Horse Of The Year in their barn the same year they won the Hambletonian with a different horse. Who are the four?

1947 – Sep Palin had HOY Victory Song and Hambletonian winner Hoot Mon.

1966 – Frank Ervin had HOY Bret Hanover and Hambletonian winner Kerry Way.

1971 – Stanley Dancer had HOY Albatross and Hambletonian winner Super Bowl.

2012 – Linda Toscano had HOY Chapter Seven and Hambletonian winner Market Share.

Wanaka large in Celas Counsel final victory

Wanaka overcame post position 10 to win the $33,200 Celas Counsel Trotting Series final for three-year-old trotting fillies Thursday night (April 28) at Mohawk Racetrack.

New Image Media

Wanaka (Trevor Henry) won Thursday's Celas Counsel final at Mohawk out of post 10.

Trainer Paul Reid swept the second leg of the series and sent out a pair of starters, including the 4/5 favorite Flowers N Songs. However, Reid was not the only trainer to send out multiple starters, as John Bax sent out five trotting fillies.

Wanaka entered the final with a victory and third-place finish in the preliminary legs for trainer Shannon Henry.

The Bax trainees all pushed forward at the start looking for the front, while Flowers N Songs and driver Doug McNair dropped in seventh and Wanaka and driver Trevor Henry took back to find a seat in eighth.

After an opening quarter of :28.3, Bax trainee Hills Angel cleared to the front ahead of stablemate Moonlight Cocktail. The lead was short lived, as Treasurer Gifts K powered up from fifth to take the lead at the half in :58.2.

Flowers N Songs angled to the outside trotting down the backstretch and made the long first-over journey to take the lead just before reaching three-quarters in 1:27.4. Meanwhile, Henry and Wanaka shadowed the public's choice and got a second-over trip to the top of the lane.

In the stretch, Wanaka surged by Flowers N Songs to score a length-and-a-half victory in a career-best 1:56.1. Smash Hit grabbed third, while Moonlight Cocktail was fourth.

Following the race, Trevor Henry explained his winning strategy from post 10.

"I didn't really want to leave, there was a big entry to the inside of me and I knew there would be no favors," said Henry. "Doug's (McNair) filly I know (isn't) a big leaver, so I thought I would try and get to follow her and it just worked out."

Trevor noted that he was very confident in his filly, who was seven-and-three-quarter lengths off the lead at the half.

"I figured if I was at least six or eight lengths off at the half she would win."

A daughter of Manofmanymissions—Classic Belle, Wanaka now has five wins in 11 starts this season for owners Trevor Henry Stables Inc and 1035840 Ontario Inc. The sophomore trotting filly has only missed the board once this season after a third-place finish in two starts as a rookie.

With Ontario Sires Stakes season rapidly approaching, Wanaka is primed for a big season locally, but Trevor and the connections hope their filly can potentially tackle the Grand Circuit.

"She's got the Elegance and Casual Breeze if she's good enough," he said.

Wanaka's Celas Counsel victory pushes her career earnings over $68,000. She paid $5.90 to win.

Wiggle It, 17 others remain eligible to Confederation Cup

The countdown is on to the $225,000 (est) Confederation Cup for four-year-old pacers to be held May 15 at Flamboro Downs.

A total of 18 four-year-old pacers remain eligible to this year's Confederation Cup, including last year's U.S Horse of the Year Wiggle It Jiggle It. The George Teague stable superstar has picked up right where he left off last season, as he has posted four victories in five starts to begin his four-year-old season.

The possibility of a Horse of the Year competing in the Confederation Cup adds more buzz to an already exciting event planned at the Hamilton, ON oval.

Fans on track for Confederation Cup night will be able to enjoy an exhibit floor, featuring sampling stations and industry booths, live music, a t-shirt toss and a parachute drop (weather permitting).

Entertainment on the racing surface will also include a Miniature Race, a Racing Under Saddle Race and a Dachshund Dog Race. Meet and greets will follow each on track event.

Flamboro will once again play host to a canned food drive on Confederation Cup night. Fans and horseplayers are asked to bring a canned food item for the Good Shepherd Food Bank of Hamilton for the opportunity to win prizes.

The lead up to Confederation Cup night begins a week before with the eliminations (if necessary) on May 8. Elimination night lands on Mother's Day and a special buffet will be offered for the occasion. Also to coincide with Mother's Day, the winner of the Name The Foal contest will be announced.

Fans can enter and receive full details regarding the Name the Foal contest by clicking here.

Post time for Confederation Cup final night is 6 pm. For more details regarding all Flamboro Downs events, visit www.FlamboroDowns.com.

Thoroughbred trainer suspended five years in NY

Tom Precious reported in the April 25 edition of The Blood-Horse that "racing regulators in New York have slapped a five-year ban on trainer Jerome Palumbo in a case state officials began investigating more than four years ago.

"The New York State Gaming Commission, which met April 25, said Palumbo trained horses without a state license for a 15-month period dating back to 2009. Agency records show that one of the horses, Martha's Mandate, in 2010 had 'a pre-race TCO2 level of 37 millimoles per liter or more before it was administered its race-day furosemide.'

"NYSGC executive director Robert Williams recounted hearings, settlement talks, agreements and, finally in November 2015, a hearing officer recommending a $5,000 fine and a one-year suspension for Palumbo. The NYSGC, however, unanimously agreed to impose a five-year suspension and a $10,000 fine.

"Agency documents show Palumbo trained horses without a license from March 2009 to June 2010...

"State officials Monday evening explained that Palumbo "was working behind a 'beard' trainer named Neal Terracciano."

Muscle Hustle powerful in Tie Silk final

Trotters were in the spotlight Monday (April 25) at Mohawk Racetrack with the Tie Silk Series Final headlining the 10-race card.

A field of 10 three-year-old trotting colts and geldings clashed in the $32,200 final. The sophomore trotters not only had to deal with each other, but also rainy and windy conditions.

Eddie Green trainee Donicus, the 6-5 favorite, was aiming for a series sweep from post-five, but right to his inside was Per Henriksen trainee Muscle Hustle, the 8-5 second choice.

Henriksen opted to skip the second leg with Muscle Hustle after the son of Muscle Mass—Crown Laurel won a leg one division.

Donicus and Muscle Hustle trotted out quickly at the start with the Green trainee grabbing the lead and posting an opening-quarter of :27.2. Muscle Hustle and driver Randy Waples sat patiently in the two-hole, as the favorite posted fractions of :58.2 and 1:28.2.

Waples pulled on the right line to set up a stretch duel at the top of the lane. Muscle Hustle found top gear quickly and surged by to record a two-length victory in 1:56.2. Donicus' bid at a series sweep was denied, as he finished second.

Greg Peck trainee Merchandiser, who won a leg two division, finished third from post 10.

Muscle Hustle was making just his second start of 2016 and fifth overall Monday. The Henriksen trainee now has three career victories and over $33,000 earned for owners Ecurie Bergh Inc.

The clocking of 1:56.2 shaved nearly a second off Muscle Hustle's previous career-best. He paid $5.30 to win.

KY Commission announces new members

The Kentucky Horse Racing Commission has added 12 new members, including: Kentuckiana's Ken Jackson, Hall of Fame jockey Pat Day and Breeders' Cup director Bret Jones.

Positive changes as Hippodrome 3R opens Sunday

Opening day for Hippodrome 3R is May 1 and management at Quebec's only pari-mutuel harness racing track is ready to greet fans with some big, positive changes.

"From our new All-Star Spring Driver's Tournament with many of the best harness drivers in the world coming to 3R, to our redesigned website, we are ready for a very exciting race season," said 3R general manager Vincent Trudel.

The track opens with live racing on Sundays at 1:30 pm starting May 1 and then adding Tuesday night racing (post time 7:00 pm) beginning on May 24.

"In order to boost our simulcast signal, our track announcer, Guy Lafontaine, will be calling the races in both English and French, and we will have our changes, handicapping selections and other broadcast items in both languages, as is our website."

What Trudel is most excited about for the new season is the All-Star Driver's Tournament set for June 5.

"We have never had such a lineup of the best drivers in North America racing here at 3R," Trudel said. "Hall of Famer John Campbell, Tim Tetrick, Yannick Gingras, Jody Jamieson, Daniel Dube, Sylvain Filion and our own Denis St Pierre and Mario Charron. What a great tournament this will be. I am so grateful for these driver's taking the time from their busy schedules to come here to Trois-Rivieres."

The premier event of the season is the third annual revival of the Prix D'Ete for four-year-old pacers with a purse of $200,000. Set for Aug. 21, this year's Prix D'Ete is headlined by the nomination of the 2015 Harness Horse of the Year, Wiggle It Jiggleit.

"We are hoping that owner George Teague and Wiggle It Jiggleit have a strong and healthy season," said Trudel, "so that they will come here and race in the Prix D'Ete. The race has had many great horses compete in prior years and the racing fans in Quebec would love the opportunity to see this world champion race on our track."

Other stakes at 3R this season include the Lucien Bombardier Pace for two-year-old fillies on Sept. 11 and the very popular Quebec-Bred Series for two, three and four-year-old pacers. The Quebec-Bred Series takes place from May through September depending on age with preliminary round and finals in all divisions.

Woodlawn Drummond to Canadian Hall

Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame is pleased to announce its 2016 Legend Honorees to be feted at the President's Reception on May 18 in the Hall of Fame at Woodbine. The reception will also feature the official unveiling of the display boards for the 2015 inductees, as well as the introduction of the 2016 inductees.

Standardbred legend Woodlawn Drummond was bred by Clermont Veilleux of Drummondville, QC and raced under the ownership of Ecuries Drummond Stables. Woodlawn Drummond made a mark for herself in the mid-1960s. In 47 career starts, she posted 22 victories and earned $128,592.

The bay pacing mare, driven throughout her career by CHRHF member Keith Waples, raced at tracks in Ontario, Quebec and New York State from the age of two through her four-year-old year, often competing against and defeating the best colts of the time.

Woodlawn Drummond concluded her racing career after competing against the best older pacers in North America, including Bret Hanover (five times), Adios Vic and Cardigan Bay. She managed a solid third-place finish in Canada's oldest harness stakes event, the Canadian Pacing Derby at Greenwood Raceway, behind H A Meadowland and Timely Knight. Her year was highlighted by a win in the Canada Pace at Richelieu Park, and a second in the Ryan Memorial at Rideau Carleton for a record of 2-5-2 in 15 starts.
