No shock here: study suggests sport needs bettors more than fans

Attracting fans should come second to drawing bettors to harness racing.

by Brett Sturman

This week, the results of a study that gauged interest in sports betting was released, coinciding with the one-year anniversary of the repeal of the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act (PAPSA). The study (PDF available here) was conducted by sports betting analytics data provider The Action Network in tandem with market research company GlobalWebIndex, and the findings that I found most interesting were those that dealt with the relationship in sports between bettors and fans.

For 10 major sports, self-identified sports fans were asked for each one if they were interested in the sport, and if they would make a bet on the sport. From there, a ratio was calculated as a percentage of those who would make a bet on the sport compared to those interested in the sport. For nine of the 10 sports, ratios ranged from 73 per cent to 89 per cent, essentially meaning that betting interest was high relative to those who were interested in the sport to begin with. There was one sport though where betting on a sport outweighed interest in it. At 120 per cent you guessed it – the sport was horse racing.

In today's HRU

There're a few different ways one could interpret the results, especially that only 29 per cent of sports fans are interested in horse racing (on par with Major League Soccer and 2 per cent above E-sports). But the result is logical in that horse racing as the only sport predicated on betting has more fans interested in betting on the sport than necessarily following the sport.

The study doesn't state how it's defining horse racing, but let's safely assume that's referring strictly to thoroughbred racing and not harness racing. But if the study did include harness racing as its own sport, what would the hypothetical results look like?

I think there would be one glaring issue. It wouldn't be so much where harness racing ranks compared to other sports in popularity, but, more so, the ratio of those who bet harness racing compared to those who are interested in it. Unlike its thoroughbred counterpart, I'm willing to venture that the results would show more people are interested in harness racing than those who would bet on it. On the surface you may shrug and say big deal, what's the problem with that – but it's counterintuitive for a sport that exists for betting purposes.

To put it bluntly, what good does it do if people follow harness racing but don't actively engage it in the form of betting (or to another extent, owning).

The premise that harness racing has a disproportionate number of fans to bettors is based on a few things, some of which are anecdotal. For starters, a few years ago the United States Trotting Association (USTA) engaged with the social media consultancy firm Converseon with a serious investment to utilize social media to increase interest in harness racing. In his letter announcing the abandonment of the social media initiative nearly two years ago, then-USTA president Phil Langley addressed the reality that despite seemingly positive social media metrics, that "Unfortunately, no increase in wagering or attendance, or increased ownership of horses, is evident."

Along those lines, it's fair to say that there has become a dedicated harness racing social media following. But the amount of online chatter which can be actually quite engaging, doesn't equate to handle figures. With the exception of the Meadowlands, Woodbine and arguably a couple other tracks, handle across North America is often sub-par or worse.

As an example, Hoosier Park had a race last week where the win pool was $2,600 and the total race handle including all pools was $11,000. I'm using Hoosier as an example not to single any one track out, but rather because the track is emblematic of the issue that all of harness racing faces. This is a track that played host to the Breeders Crown the year before last and ended up getting a ton of good local coverage and national press throughout that process. It seems hard to believe that by all accounts a beautiful track that was able to gain exposure outside of normal harness racing circles and introduce itself to new people, doesn't handle more than it does. It's a problem that nearly all tracks have to deal with – how to convert those exposed to harness racing over to bettors.

This is something that this column has railed about repeatedly in the past, but it is relevant once again. The inability of would-be bettors to get easy access to race content is a major hindrance in converting fans to bettors, and this is undeniable. For instance, I've seen countless social media posts from casual thoroughbred players who now bet Pompano solely because of directly-provided links to free programs for various wagers each race night. Without this, these people may still be observers but would never be bettors.

Even people within the industry have trouble getting access to these types of things. I'm often baffled at how many times I see people directly within the sport make a social media post asking if someone has a program or if someone knows of a link to where they can watch a live race from. If it's this hard for people in the industry, imagine how hard it is for people brand new.

I get the times we live in where purses are driven by alternative gaming, and bettors aren't very relevant to the current racing model at most tracks. But it might not be that way forever, and at its core harness racing should still be viewed as a sport intertwined with gambling. As sports betting continues to expand and competition for harness racing continues to increase, new bettors need to be emphasized as much as new fans.

HANDICAPPING THE CONFED CUP

Tonight's Confederation Cup goes as race 10 as the main event on a Flamboro Downs card filled with Ontario Sires Stakes Gold and Grassroots races throughout the undercard. Trainer Ron Burke won this race last year with Filibuster Hanover and has two big chances this year. Going for a purse of $185,000 here's how I see the race:

DONE WELL rates as the 7-5 programmed favorite over the second morning line choice JIMMY FREIGHT at 3-1, but I'd look for the locally based and fan favorite Jimmy Freight to go off at something closer in the 2-1 range and is my pick to win the Confed Cup. Starting with 'Jimmy', he prepped as well as possible for his Confederation Cup elimination by chasing home Sintra at Woodbine two back, and then last week took on a fairly harsh trip when faced with post 8. In his elimination, he blasted and was caught very wide around the first turn with the tough Lather Up speeding directly to his inside. When it was all said and done he ended up having quite the adventurous trip and is now ultimately rewarded with a reversal of post position fortune. He'll have to deal with some obviously well-matched foes, but he'll get my slight edge. DONE WELL is likely to be close to odds-on in here and deservedly so. He coasted last week in his elimination and that 1:51:4 time was two full seconds quicker than the other elimination. This horse began his career with a ton of promise before being derailed with various injuries and ailments for Brian Brown – seems to be thriving now as a 4-year-old with Burke and is certain to be blasting when the gate lets them go. The other big horse is DORSODURO HANOVER who grinded his way to an elimination win in 1:53:4. He wasn't as flashy as the other elimination winner, but this is a game horse that consistently finds ways to win. He came from off the pace last week when starting from the same rail position – I wonder if Kakaley will employ that same strategy or may try to push harder early and take advantage of the post. GHOST DANCE was pretty game as a longshot last week and leaving, getting looped, making the lead and hanging in there until late. It was his first start of the year and first start going for trainer Gallucci and a case can be made that he'll be even stronger now. The second-tier starting slot should keep him close up with the action. AMERICAN HISTORY just hasn't fired yet in his two starts this year and is now clearly viewed as an outsider in this spot. THE DOWNTOWN BUS has the misfortune of drawing outside of DONE WELL which means he'll have to do it coming from a long way back; another that moves to longshot status.

Picks: Jimmy Freight, Done Well, Dorsoduro Hanover

Confederation Cup set for tonight at Flamboro Downs

Race will also kick off the Facebook Live series of broadcasts.

by Mark McKelvie / Woodbine communications

The eyes of harness racing will be locked on Flamboro Downs tonight for the 41st edition of the Confederation Cup.

The $188,500 event is the highlight of an 11-race card with $538,551 in purses up for grabs. The field for this year's Confederation Cup is arguably the deepest since the race became an event for 4-year-olds in 2015.

Trainer Ron Burke has won three of the last four editions of the Confederation Cup and enters with a strong one-two punch of eliminations winners Done Well and Dorsoduro Hanover.

Done Well (PP5, Dexter Dunn) turned many heads with a stunning 1:51.4 elimination victory over a 'sloppy' track that was listed two-seconds off. The gelded son of Well Said is one for two this season and sports career numbers of eight wins and nearly $500,000 in earnings over 23 starts.

Dorsoduro Hanover (PP1, Matt Kakaley) won a wild and much-talked-about second elimination for the Burke brigade. The gelded son of Somebeachsomewhere is the richest horse in this year's event with over $1.3 million in career earnings.

The list of accomplishments for Dorsoduro Hanover includes victories in the Breeders Crown, Adios Pennsylvania Sires Stakes Championship and a Dan Patch award as the 2018 sophomore pacing colt of the year.

The field for the Confederation Cup also includes O'Brien Award winner Jimmy Freight (PP2, Louis Philippe Roy). The Richard Moreau trainee overcame a post-eight starting spot in his elimination to make the final with a fourth-place finish.

Jimmy Freight was last year's Ontario Sires Stakes Super Final champion, is an 18-time winner with over $1 million in career earnings and earned the 2018 O'Brien Award as Canada's 3-year-old pacing colt of the year.

Tonight's Confederation Cup undercard is the start of the 2019 Ontario Sires Stakes (OSS) season with a trio of Gold divisions for 3-year-old trotting colts and geldings and five Grassroots divisions for 3-year-old pacing colts and geldings scheduled.

Fans attending the Confederation Cup will have an opportunity to win a share of a racehorse. Flamboro Downs is once again teaming with TheStable.ca to giveaway five shares of a racehorse. The track will cover the training expenses of those five shares for the remainder of 2019.

Tonight's 41st Confederation Cup at Flamboro Downs has drawn a strong field of 4-year-old pacers.

START OF FACEBOOK LIVE SERIES

If you can't make it to Flamboro, race fans are reminded that the Confederation Cup will be broadcast live on Facebook beginning at 9:30 p.m. (ET).

The one-hour broadcast, part of a three-race series sponsored by the Central Ontario Standardbred Association (COSA), will cover the $188,500 Confederation Cup in race 10 along with the 9th race which is a $23,150 OSS Grassroots division for 3-year-old filly pacers.

Mark McKelvie and Greg Blanchard will be on the desk, while Jaimi MacDonald will provide paddock coverage during the show which will be aired via the Flamboro Downs, Grand River Raceway and The Raceway at Western Fair District Facebook pages and streamed over the Standardbred Canada website. The next stop in the series will be the $157,000 Camluck Classic on Friday, May 31 at The Raceway with the final show covering the $250,000 (Est) Battle Of Waterloo on Monday, August 5 at Grand River.

Confed Cup runneth over for Purnel and Libby

Purnel and Libby Jones are part-owners of three Ron Burke-trained horses in tonight's $188,500 Confederation Cup final at Flamboro Downs.

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

When Purnel Jones Jr. and his wife Libby were looking to partner with other people to buy horses several years ago, Jones called renowned owner Mark Weaver for advice. Instead, Jones ended up with an invitation. Life has not been the same since.

Purnel and Libby, who at the time were recently retired after selling their regional oil-and-gas business, were asked if they wanted to join the ownership groups involved with horses trained by Ron Burke, harness racing's leading conditioner for the past 10 years in a row. Burke Racing and Weaver, with his long-time racing colleague Mike Bruscemi, are two-time winners of the sport's Owner of the Year Award.

"The first thing I thought of when we were fortunate enough to retire was how I could get back into the business," said Purnel, who followed his father into the sport and had a license to train and drive horses before stepping away from racing to focus on business.

"I called Mark Weaver, who I've known for about 10 years, to ask him to point me in the right direction. He said there was a spot opening up in the ownership group and that I was welcomed if I wanted to get in. It was a no-brainer for me. My goodness gracious, you can't beat those guys. They're smart. It's not by accident that Burke and Weaver are so successful, that I can say."

In 2018, the Joneses were among the owners of Dorsoduro Hanover and Warrawee Ubeaut, who both were Breeders Crown champions and divisional Dan Patch Award honorees, as well as a third Breeders Crown winner, Percy Bluechip, and stakes-winners Baron Remy and This Is The Plan.

"I can't even imagine having a year like that again," Purnel said. "You talk about fun and traveling to the races, it was fantastic. I'm hoping for continued success, but to hope for that (kind of success again) is a little excessive. But you can't rule out anything with Ronnie. He has a great eye for the horses."

Tonight, the Joneses will watch three of their horses compete in the $188,500 Confederation Cup for 4-year-old pacers at Flamboro Downs. Dorsoduro Hanover and Done Well were elimination winners last weekend. Those two Burke trainees are joined by stablemate This Is The Plan in the nine-horse field.

Done Well and driver Dexter Dunn, who captured their elim in 1:51.4 over a sloppy surface, is the 7-5 morning-line favorite from post five while Dorsoduro Hanover, with regular driver Matt Kakaley, is the 5-2 second choice from post one. Dorsoduro Hanover won his elimination, also over a sloppy track, in 1:53.4.

Mark Hall / USTA

Dorsoduro Hanover (Matt Kakaley) is one of three horses in tonight's Confederation Cup final trained by Ron Burke and owned, in part, by Purnel Jones Jr. and his wife, Libby.

The other owners on Done Well are Burke Racing, Weaver Bruscemi, J&T Silva, and Wingfield Brothers. The group owning Dorsoduro Hanover is the same, with the exception of Wingfield Five rather than Wingfield Brothers. This Is The Plan, who finished fifth in his elimination and starts from post eight, is owned by Burke Racing, Weaver Bruscemi, J&T Silva-Purnel & Libby, and Larry Karr.

"I thought Done Well was off the hook," Purnel said. "I don't know how much the track changed between the time he raced and Dorsoduro Hanover raced, but you certainly can't be disappointed with (Dorsoduro Hanover's) race either. He's as tough as nails.

"We're all excited to see what happens."

Among the Burke trio's competition is Jimmy Freight, who earned the O'Brien Award in Canada for last year's best 3-year-old male pacer. He finished fourth in the elimination won by Dorsoduro Hanover after starting from post eight, a spot that has produced only four winners in 185 pacing races this year.

Jimmy Freight and driver Louis Philippe Roy will start Sunday from post two. He is 3-1 on the morning line.

"I wasn't that much excited when I saw the draw for the elims, being in my mind in the toughest division and starting from the far outside, but one more time Jimmy didn't disappoint," Roy said. "I'm a little more excited about the draw for the final, I think we're among the three or four horses with the best shot to win.

"I haven't seen much difference with (Jimmy Freight) between (ages) 3 and 4. He was and still is the perfect horse on the track, you can do whatever you want with him, smart and perfectly gaited."

Harness racing's Yankee connection

by Bob Heyden

The sports of baseball and harness racing has long been intertwined, with stars in each patronizing the other sport. But there seems to be an even deeper connection with standardbred racing and the Yankees, as in New York Yankees. Let's take a look at the bond between the two.

Charlie "King Kong" Keller played for the NY Yankees and the Detroit Tigers during his 12 year career-from 1939-1952 (he was in the military in 1944). He hit .286 for his career with 189 home runs. A harness racing advocate, he started Yankeeland Farms in 1955.

In 1944, the filly Yankee Maid won the Hambletonian, but the baseball Yankees were just 83-71 finishing third, six games out of first place. (all sports suffered in attendance during the Depression and WWII. From 1931-1945-the Yankees did not draw one million in any season! But, when the war ended, the 1946 season saw 2.2 million plus rush thru the turnstiles at Yankee Stadium)

In 1968, Master Yankee got the last check (5th money) in the Hambletonian while Mickey Mantle drew his final checks from the Yankees in his last — and 18th — season with the team.

In 1970, Fresh Yankee, bred by Charlie Keller and sold for $900 as a yearling, was named Horse of the Year. She defeated Nevele Pride in his next to last career start the year prior in his third straight HOY season. On the baseball side, a very 'fresh' Yankee named Thurman Munson was named "Rookie Of The Year" hitting .302 and paving the way for a stellar decade with the Bronx Bombers, which included an MVP trophy in 1976.

In 1973, Imperial Yankee raced in the Hambletonian but didn't get any money. The Yankee baseball team had a similar fate going 80-82 and missing the playoffs.

In 1975, Yankee Bambino missed by a nose to Bonefish in the Hambletonian. The original "Yankee Bambino" — Babe Ruth — led the league in home runs 12 times, hit three homers in a single World Series game TWICE (1926, 1928), and retired with 714 homers, in addition to 1,221 innings pitched over his incomparable career.

In 1977, No No Yankee wins the first ever Woodrow Wilson and remains undefeated. NO NO Yankee —prior to Reggie Jackson that is — had ever hit a World Series home run on four consecutive swings, (three in Game 6) against four different pitchers as the Yankees downed the LA Dodges four games to two.

In 1978, Brilliant Yankee didn't get a check in the Hambletonian, but a brilliant Yankee named Graig Nettles almost singlehandedly brought the Yankees back into the World Series with his outstanding glove work at third base in the World Series as the Yankees rallied back from an 0-2 deficit to take four straight.

In 1980, the baseball Yanks went 103-59 but lost to the Royals and failed to advance to the World Series. It was Dick Howser's one and only season at the helm. The harness racing side saw Smokin Yankee nail down 2YOCT honors, But he too was something of a one-hit wonder-failing to do any serious damage at three (He was fifth as the favorite in the 1981 Hambletonian first heat, then eighth in the next).

In 1981, Defiant Yankee won the Dexter Cup valued at over $230G. On the baseball side, a soon-to-be "Defiant Yankee" — Dave Winfield — begins his 10-year run with the Yankees and appears in the World Series for the one and only time with the Yanks that year, necessitating the nickname from owner George Steinbrenner, "Mr. May."

In 1983, T V Yankee was second and sixth in the Hambletonian as Tommy Haughton tried to do what had never been done — win the Hambletonian back-to-back while in his 20s. He captured it the previous year with Speed Bowl at age 25. Don Mattingly, the "T V YANKEE" of the 1980s got his baseball career going in 1983 hitting .286. He would lead the league in hitting the following year (1984) and be MVP the year after that (1985).

In 1994, Federal Yankee from the first crop of Valley Victory, was fifth, giving Valley Victory three of the five checks in his first try at it (Victory Dream first, Smasher fourth). The Yankees were heading to the post-season that year before a strike in August halted and discontinued the season, canceling the World Series for the only time. It was also the year Yankee Cashmere won the Breeders Crown. The baseball Yankees were stocking up with some serious talent that was on the verge of breakthrough come 1994. Derek Jeter, Jorge Posada, Andy Pettite and Mariano Rivera were all about to enter the big time and change the course of the sport for the next decade.

In 1996, George Steinbrenner "The Boss" was able to see his Yankees win the World Series for the first time in 18 year. He did this the very same month that Personal Banner, his prized filly, ended Moni Maker's long winning streak and was able to upend her in the Breeders Crown the very same month he was able to unveil the world champion flag at Yankee Stadium for the first time in nearly two decades.

In 1998, one of the greatest ever Hambletonian winners, Muscles Yankee, dominated and gave John Campbell his record fifth driving win in the classic. No wonder Campbell was throwing out the first ball at Yankee Stadium that August — the greatest driver of our time, one of the greatest trotters and possibly the greatest ever team in baseball history. The 1998 Yankees went 114-48 during the regular season, 11-2 in the playoffs to become the first team to ever win 125 games in a single season. Bernie Williams led the league in batting at .339. They swept the San Diego Padres in the World Series.

In 2000, Yankee Paco won the Hambletonian the same year of the Subway Series —Yankees / Mets, won by the Bronx Bombers 4 games to 1.

In 2003, Yankee Cruiser (sire of Sweet Lou) won the North America Cup. Speaking of Sweet Lou, he was named for the personable Lou Piniella, who batted .291 for his career, was known for his coming to the plate and being serenaded with "LOUUUUU", and who had a period of six years — 1976-1981 — where he had an incredible 145 at bats in the post season. Most of his time was with the Yankees, although he started his career with the Orioles in 1964, which made him both a teammate of Brooks Robinson and Don Mattingly.

In 2004, the Yankees had a 3-0 lead over the Red Sox only to see it disappear and then to watch the Red Sox go on and win the World Series. Any guesses on the name of the 3YOCT who won the Breeders Crown that year? YANKEE SLIDE at 39-1 with Brain Sears. (N Y Yank won the Peter Haughton also).

In 2005, Strong Yankee won the Yonkers Trot, a three-heat Kentucky Futurity and the Breeders Crown. The baseball Yankees were not able to make the World Series. That would still be four years off.

In 2006, Yankee Skyscaper won the $900,000 Metro. It was still prime time on the baseball side, as Alex Rodriguez has a 54 HR 156 RBI season — and Jeter-Rivera-Williams et all were once again knocking on the door for it all.

In 2007, Blue York Yank won the Peter Haughton. On the baseball side, the days were winding down for the old Yankee Stadium

In, 2012 APERFECTYANKEE wins the Peter Haughton (Jim Oscarsson), and then came back as a sophomore and earned good money in the Hambletonian — third and then fourth in the final. On that baseball team was the only player to ever be unanimously voted into the Hall Of Fame, Mariano Rivera (0.70 post season ERA), and possibly the next unanimous Hall Of Famer as well — Derek Jeter — whose name comes up this winter for the Hall Of Fame vote. Two Perfect Yankees if there ever was a pair? Stay tuned!

P.S. Who was the only Major League Baseball player (well over 19,000 have played) whose last name started with Y A N K? George Yankowsky.

He played in 1942 and in 1949 had 13 big league at bats, 2 hits 2 RBI. He played for the Philadelphia A's and the Chicago White Sox. In both of those years, the Yankees went to the World Series, losing 4-1 in 1942 and winning 4-1 in 1949.

Tia Shafer – outrider

by Victoria M. Howard

Harness racing can be very dangerous at times. At full speed, the horse average anywhere from 30-35 miles per hour. One of the most dangerous, yet underrated jobs in the sport is that of an outrider.

An outrider is responsible for ensuring the safety of all horse racing participants (both human and equine) during training and live racing.

They are responsible for opening and closing the races each day and clearing equine traffic when necessary. Outriders catch loose horses as quickly as possible, minimizing the chance of injury, and also help drivers who are having trouble with unruly and difficult horses.

Recently at Miami Valley Gaming, a standardbred got loose after a horse broke stride causing a chain reaction and knocking the driver off. The frightened horse ended up in a pond. Although the outrider immediately jumped in to save the horse, the animal began to panic and worked his way to the middle of the pond where he drowned.

This is a rare occasion for whenever a situation occurs for an outrider to assist a troubled or loose horse, the end result is usually a happy one.

Tia Shafer, the outrider at Mohegan Sun Casino at Pocono Downs is not only dedicated to her job, but is an all-around horsewoman. Shafer has worked full-time at The Isle of Capri in Pompano Beach, FL; Running Aces in Minnesota and is currently at Pocono Downs in Wilkes Barres, PA.

As soon as you meet Shafer, her infectious smile and bright blue eyes makes you feel like you've known her forever. She also has that way with horses.

Although she wasn't brought up around them, Shafer was always horse crazy. Her dream of actually working around the four-legged magnificent creatures came true in 2007.

"That year I rode backup for the outrider at Pompano and did so for two years before I was hired full-time," she said.

Courtesy Tia Shafer

Outrider Tia Shafer in action.

"My family wasn't involved with horses, but got me riding lessons when I was young. In my early 20s, I was stabled with several barrel horses at a standardbred farm, which is how I got my start in the business.

"I did not have any special training to be an outrider. I began my riding career on show jumpers then switched over to barrel racing. I believe my background made me the confident rider I am today. I also feel that helping out as a groom in the barn allowed me to fully understand how the equipment is supposed to be applied and gave me insight into how it works."

Shafer currently has three horses in her stable. All three are off-the-track thoroughbreds (OTTBs) she re-trained for their second careers as outriding ponies.

"Red is 16 years old and my main guy. I've owned him since 2009 and he has helped me develop into the outrider and trainer I am today.

"I adopted Hollywood from New Vocations in 2013. He is 15 years old and the bravest horse I've ever had the pleasure of riding. He has never once questioned what I have asked of him.

"And last but not least is Sal, who is the youngster. I adopted him after his last start at Gulfstream Park in January 2017. He has never put me in a bad situation on the track and always tries his hardest to compensate for any situations that may arise."

Shafer said she loves her career, but it can be tiring at times.

"My day starts out arriving at the barn no later than 7 a.m.

to feed my boys. I fill their hay bags and pull off their bandages before turning them out together for the day. I arrive back at the barn two hours before post time and bring them in to feed and saddle up whoever is on duty that night. I don't give them a heavy warm-up for they work hard enough at night. I walk them the mile up to the race paddock where they wait to start work.

"They all wear a magnetic blanket for about 45 minutes before saddling up. This helps warm up their back.

"At Mohegan Sun I do not lead post parade, so I watch the horses go on the track and keep an eye out for any that may cause problems for their drivers. I watch all the horses and double check their lines, bridles, and other equipment during the post parade, then ensure they all get turned to the gate. I communicate with the starter to keep him informed if I have a situation where two horses need to be turned, so he's aware what I'm trying to accomplish."

What is the most dangerous situation Shafer has encountered as an outrider?

"Twice in my career I was almost hit by the starting gate. Although it was completely accidental, it was utterly terrifying. Also, being pulled out of the saddle by a loose horse also nears the top of the list. This is where my amazing boys stepped in and saved the day.

"I don't think outriders get enough credit. Most trainers, drivers and owners honestly have no idea how much care and effort an outrider puts out to ensure their horse gets the safest and fairest race possible.

"The horses we choose to work with take years to develop into the mounts we trust with every life on the racetrack — human or equine. They are not easily replaceable and are literally a part of our family."

As far as advice for anyone thinking of becoming an outrider, Shafer said, "Watch closely: watch the races, watch the horses and workouts in the morning. Try and pick out any possible troubled horse and learn to read a horse's body language. And, of course, have a team of horses you completely trust to take care of you and everyone else on the track."

A special thank you to all the outriders who do a wonderful job protecting the drivers and horses. You are indeed heroes.

Unbelievable. I have said from his first baby race that this was the fastest trotter I have ever seen. His 1:51.2 performance in the NJSS Friday at the Meadowlands was nothing short of spectacular. Bob "Hollywood " Heyden really made me smile. He said that the colt reminded him of Self Possessed who's speed was a generation ahead of his time. "Baby Trainer" Marcus Melander has done an excellent job with this colt as he was a bit of a rogue last year to say the least. Brian Sears said that Greenshoe "had gears most horses don't have." At this point he is in a class by himself.

Qualify your betting public

by Frank Cotolo

A long time ago on a chilly morning in Cypress, CA, trotters and pacers lined up for morning qualifiers. Horsemen, mostly trainers, dragged themselves around the grandstand area and eventually settled with their hot coffees in a seat overlooking the finish line. One, maybe two people representing the betting public, sat next to one another with coffees and notepads.

For the betting public, qualifiers are still non-events. Even though attending the qualifiers is free for everyone, only a few serious bettors ever show up.

Not much has changed in nearly 40 years. If you think the live audiences at harness racetracks have diminished when pari-mutuels are in progress, you should see how the few have been reduced to zero at qualifying sessions.

Does anyone in any track administration ever think there could be a way to make qualifying sessions appealing to the betting public, as well as to potential bettors?

I think not.

Then, let us not look outside the box but beyond, like outside the cardboard factory itself; what about using qualifying sessions as a promotional tool?

As a test run, spring is the perfect time for making qualifying sessions a public appeal. So, spring is here. Let us say the track announces a weekly event called (as a suggestion) "Saturday In Spring."

Before we consider what the event may entail, let us look ahead at working on making the event title go viral in your area (because you are looking for local attendance). This way, you can generate the question "What is it?" to be shuffled about the neighborhoods. Start with signs and leaflets on track that only read: "Saturday In Spring." Give them absolute exposure; place leaflets on car windows in the track parking lot; insert leaflets in the programs you sell; have concession stands offer a leaflet to every patron.

However, during the bait period, never tell anyone just what it means.

What does it mean? Every Saturday in spring hold qualifying races on Saturday mornings. Festoon the apron to the public with a county fair atmosphere. Be creative; you can do this very cheaply. Perhaps you can get some local bakeries and coffee shops to maintain a weekly kiosk where they may sell (at half price or less) products. If you have a relationship with a local radio and/or television station (and by now you should because they can play a role in many promotions), have it or them send over one of their sports journalists to wander around, get noticed and talk. There are as many possibilities as there are prospects you can dig up to adorn the apron.

The track has to have its own kiosk, too. Have it manned by your public-relations person or the track handicapper or any such personality on the payroll. This person will give away free betting vouchers — redeemable only by attending a racing program at the track.

Check the track's archive for past giveaway items that were not given away. You can hand them out free. Remember this: anyone walking in public while wearing a piece of clothing with the track name printed on it is a walking billboard, a moving advertisement.

Free coupons and savings offers should also be available at any kiosks (for instance, coffee shop kiosks give coupons for beverages and menu items when purchased at the location).

Here's more about promoting the event.

A press release (for what's left of the print media) should go to local newspapers, commercial and freebee, ad-oriented publications.

On your track's website, post boxes, like ads, that, at first just read "Saturday In Spring," and then amend them when you have all the details on the featured events.

Also, write pre-scheduled tweets for Twitter (schedule one an hour through Tweet Deck (which comes with your Twitter account and is used to book certain times for tweets to appear). Again, well ahead of the events beginning, just tweet the title of the event. Then, when you are prepared with the details, schedule tweets with details — but keep each tweet short, changing the features on each as you schedule them. Accompany tweets with "@" forwards to area organizations and, of course, to commercial participants.

If you wish to employ more features in the events, go ahead and think of some. Perhaps for people who wander in but have never come to the track, you can have your public relation person or people answer questions about the qualifying events, while also giving away free betting coupons.

For potentially new bettors, you could have more valuable coupons available. There need be nothing fancy about any of the coupons you give away; print them from office computers but brand them so counterfeiting them is not an issue. Be sure to get all of the information you can about potential patrons and add them to your email list.

The Real Life Ventures and Adventures of Trey and Batman

by Trey Nosrac

My friend from Silicon Valley eased into my Prius on a sunny Monday morning.

He also eased into his latest idea to bring technology to harness racing by asking a question: "Did Trey have a winning ticket in the Kentucky Derby?"

"I did not. My shillings backed a horse named Improbable, who finished fourth. This keeps my record perfect. I never picked the winner in a Run for the Roses. How about you, watch and wager?"

"Watched, didn't wager. Let me ask you something else, were you able to follow your horse during the race?"

I gave an iffy waffle of my hand, "Yes and no. NBC started with a head-on shot of the starting gate, used an overhead view from the interior of the track, then they panned outside, then inside, then overhead. The multiple angles make seeing the race much better than it used to be, but with so many horses, with the rain and the mud, I lost track of my horse a few times."

"Did you notice the interference from the favorite during the race?"

"No. What are you getting at?"

"I have an idea. One of those technology plans that I promised to share with you. You may think it is crazy, but it's free, simple, optional, and would be greatly appreciated by people like me who have trouble following a horse in a race."

I fluttered my hand on my heart, "You had me at free and simple."

He explained, "People are curious. It is in our nature to try to take in and absorb everything. We want details. However, our senses are limited in both sensitivity and spatial capacity."

I paused and replied slowly, "You go along talking and acting like a normal person, like a regular human being, then, blammo, out of the blue, you shift into another gear and drop in a sentence like Spock on the brig of the Enterprise… spatial capacity, really?"

He shook his head, "Sorry, the instant the words flew out of my mouth I realized how pretentious they sounded."

I shook a scolding finger, "Pretentious… another word over the line. Just speak slangy English using incomplete sentences peppered with cuss words — like most Americans."

He smiled and toned things down, "I have watched plenty of races over the past year. I've watched your horse race, watched your gambling selections, my gambling selections, and big stakes races. I find the viewing experience disconcerting."

"Disconcerting?"

He nodded, "I asked myself why I can't enjoy the race."

"Asking questions to yourself is disconcerting."

He smiled. "I know why I do not enjoy watching and I have a remedy that is quite brilliant."

"Now you have shifted from pretentious to pompous."

"Trey, the average horserace is what, a minute, maybe two? Think of all the information viewers need to process in that short amount of time. Where is my horse? What is the pace? Who is the leader? Is a horse moving up or back? Is the horse fluid? What were the final odds when the gate folded? Obviously, racetracks try to help with graphics and announcers, however, they often just add to the clutter. Each time they change camera angles, viewers need to refocus and recalibrate. Tight shots are more exciting but you lose sight of many in the field. With wide pans, you lose excitement and with overhead shots, you lose the saddle pads. Split screen presentations make the viewer decide. For a person like me, watching horse races is a jangling, frustrating experience."

I nodded, "Yeah, there is a lot of bitching about racetracks keeping the same old ways of showing races but it's not an easy sport to show on a screen."

"Horseraces are fast, intense, bursts of action. This leads to problems for viewers."

"So, what is your solution?" I asked.

"Imagine that you have made your wager just like the one you made on Improbable. Now imagine the horses are behind the gate, and the race begins."

"That's not a solution."

He spoke with his index finger in the air, "The difference is, a few minutes earlier, on the screen of your video log-in you tapped a simple button - FPM (low). FPM will reset the frames per minute and the instant the race begins, you will see the race in slower motion. If you did not tap the FPM activation button, the race will stream as usual. "

I asked, "The wagering remains the same?"

"Everything is the same, however, a two-minute race that is VIEWED over four or five minutes is a much different, and in my opinion, a much more enjoyable experience. I see many benefits to this slowed presentation but the main one is that our capacity for perceiving data is increased. A very fast, somewhat chaotic event is easier to digest when slowed down."

After a nanosecond of thinking, I saw the possibilities and endorsed the idea, "Like the interference in the Derby, if half the people were watching the live Kentucky Derby race in slow motion more of us would have seen what happened. The way it is now, most of us did not realize anything happened until they had a chance to view the replay in slow motion."

He responded, "Exactly, technologically the ability to slow down the feed is not rocket science. This slower viewing option should already be available in horse racing. Who cares if you don't learn who crossed the finish line first a few minutes later than real time? For all intents and purposes, the race is still a live event. The wagering does not change. In slow motion, and there could be a variety of speed options, the viewer gets more action and more understanding. And anyone who wants to watch as usual is free to do so."

"My money would last about two minutes longer."

"Trey, that's not a joke. Viewers would get more product for their money. In entertainment, slow motion is a tool we use regularly to create tension. Will the hero get out before the explosion? Exciting points in films and television are in slow motion because in the viewer's mind, slowed motion ramps up the stakes, making it more enjoyable when the climactic moment arrives. It's a blink of an eye in real time when a horse rallies from off the pace and tries to catch the leaders. At a slower speed, this closing run is stretched out, and stretching out drama is entertainment gold."

I climbed onboard by saying, "And when I try to explain the nuances of harness horse racing to a neophyte, I would have more time, and maybe even pause the race to explain something…I mean this slowing the picture down could be very educational."

He punched me on the shoulder and said, "Damn straight pal, horse junkies like you could explain the races using words like spatial and pretentious."

Greenshoe impresses in 1:51.2 in NJSS at the Meadowlands

Let the Hambletonian hype begin.

Greenshoe began his 2019 season by sending a message to the rest of the 3-year-old trotters seeking to win harness racing's greatest prize on the first Saturday in August: He is a force to be reckoned with after putting on a dazzling display in taking his division of the New Jersey Sire Stakes at the Meadowlands Friday night in 1:51.2. The only horse to go faster on the trot this year was 2018 Hambletonian champ Atlanta, who went 1:50.4 a week ago Monday at Miami Valley.

"His manners were good," said Brian Sears, who drove the Marcus Melander trainee. "We were happy with him. He was a little high strung while scoring before the race, but then he came back to me. He relaxed after that. I think he's starting to get it."

During his 2-year-old season, the son of Father Patrick—Designed To Be, won half of his four starts despite going off stride in each and every one of them. Sears handled Greenshoe carefully at the start Friday, as in 2018, he went off stride three times before the start of his races.

There was none of that on this night.

Greenshoe sat a four-hole for the first five-eighths before vacating the rail and going after leader Sheena's Boy, who hit the half in :56.2 and three-quarters in 1:24.1 on an open lead. "I took a peek and saw they were going a little bit," said Sears.

Michael Lisa

Greenshoe (Brian Sears) posted a monster victory in his New Jersey Sires Stakes test on Friday at the Meadowlands and now is the early favorite for the Hambletonian.

"When I tipped him, he went up there."

The 2018 NJSS champion quickly got himself into contention and was charging after the leader coming toward the top of the stretch. Sears barely moved a muscle as Greenshoe, who paid $3.00 as the post-time choice, rolled by his over-matched foes during a final quarter of :26.2 to score by 3½ widening lengths while lowering his previous lifetime best by two-and-one-fifth seconds. Sheena's Boy held second with Battenberg third.

"He's a natural," said Sears. "He's got some gears that most horses don't have."

In the other NJSS division for sophomore male trotters, Soul Strong scored in 1:53 at odds of 15-1 for trainer Ake Svanstedt and driver Yannick Gingras.

Evident Beauty scored in the first of two 3-year-old filly trots for trainer Nifty Norman and driver Dave Miller in 1:53.3 as the 8-5 favorite. The Lucas Wallin-trained Queen Of Trixs took the other division in 1:55.4 for driver Andy McCarthy at odds of 6-1.

A LITTLE MORE: Gingras and McCarthy both recorded driving triples on the program... The 20-cent Can-Am Pick-4 took in $47,911 in wagers, and those who had the winning combination of 2-2-4-3 collected $67.15 for a ticket that included three favorites… One bettor in Ontario was the only player to hold a winning ticket in the 20-cent Survivor Pick-10 and walked away with $14,085.04 for lasting eight legs… All-source handle on the 13-race card was $2,500,166.

Horse of the Year king McWicked wins 2019 debut in 1:49.4

The SBOA Stakes finals and a season debut victory by McWicked highlighted a busy Fireworks and Family Fun Night on Saturday at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

Reigning Horse of the Year McWicked made a statement in his season debut by winning the $34,000 preferred in 1:49.4. The Casie Coleman trainee came first up on the far turn from mid-pack and used the entire length of the stretch to wear down Sintra for a thrilling victory.

Sintra made a second-quarter move to the top and led by the half in :55.2. The Stephanie Jamieson trainee and driver Jody Jamieson created separation on their rivals by pacing a :27.3 third-quarter.

McWicked was more than four lengths from Sintra turning for home and delivered a stunning performance in the lane to track down and pace by Sintra in the final strides for a victory of just over a length.

Sunny Dee (Trevor Henry) remained perfect in 2019 with an easy score in her SBOA final.

McWicked season debut victory snapped Sintra's win streak at seven. P L Jackson finished third, while American Virgin was fourth.

Now eight, McWicked is back to defend his Canadian and American Horse of the Year title. He won 12 of 19 starts and earned $1.6 million last season to bring his career earnings to over $4 million for owner Ed James' S S G Stables.

Better Single finished third, while Village Joules was fourth.

Sunny Dee is now undefeated in seven career starts for owner/breeders Robert McIntosh Stables Inc, C S X Stables and Al McIntosh Holdings Inc. Her career earnings now sit at $135,645.

A $2 win ticket on Sunny Dee returned $3.30.

Richard 'Nifty' Norman trainee Haveoneforme delivered another powerful performance to win the $164,290 final for 3-year-old trotting fillies. Driver Paul MacDonell had the daughter of Kadabra—All Filled Up placed mid-pack and sat second-over turning for home.

Bright Eyes M, who came first-up, claimed the lead at the top of the lane and trotted home strong in attempt to hold the lead. However, Haveoneforme was too much and stormed by in the final sixteenth to win by a length and a quarter in 1:56.1.

Mattys Smilin finished third, while Presto Change O was fourth.

Haveoneforme has now won five of seven starts in her first season on the track. The SBOA final victory increased her earnings to $118,742 for owners Enzed Racing Stable Inc, Mel Hartman and Little E LLC.

Saturday evening's card kicked off the 2019

Roy led all drivers with 141 wins, which was 17 more than nearest rival Sylvain Filion. Moreau finished the Winter/Spring meet with 119 wins, 59 more than runner-up Rod Boyd.

Live racing resumes Monday evening at Woodbine Mohawk Park. Post time is 7:10 p.m.

Muscle M Up (Muscle Hill—Fashion Athena), who paid $7.80 to win, is a perfect two-for-two in 2019. He sports lifetime earnings of $87,972 for Knutsson Trotting Inc. of Del Ray Beach, FL.

In the $35,000 2nd leg of the Rainbow Blue, Andrew McCarthy sat the pocket with Caviart Ally behind front-runner and betting favorite Kissin In The Sand through the middle fractions and came home in :25.4 to post a head victory of Youaremycandygirl in 1:49.2. Don't Think Twice A was third and Kissin In The Sand faded to fourth, two lengths behind the winner.

It was the second win of 2019 in three starts for Caviart Ally, trained by Brett Pelling for Caviart Farms of Vienna, VA. The daughter of Bettor's Delight—Allamerican Cool has earned $38,750 this year and $1,191,051 lifetime for the Hanover Shoe Farms product.

Firedbylindie, Jazzy Fashion, Millie's Possesion, Antonia win PASS events at The Meadows

Four divisions of the Meadow Bright for 3-year-old

PASS trotting fillies were the feature races on the 14 race Meadows Saturday afternoon card. Each division carried a purse of $42,600 with three prohibitive favorites going down to defeat.

Firedbylindie started off the upsets winning the first division in 1:54 for Matt Kakaley defeating the 1-5 favorite Asiago. The favorite moved to the front past the quarter for Yannick Gingras but was no match for the winner in the stretch eventually fading to fourth. Matter Of Fact and Magical Beliefs followed the winner home. Firedbylindie is a daughter of Explosive Matter trained by Ron Burke for Burke Racing Stable LLC, Weaver Bruscemi LLC and Phillip Collura. Firedbylindie paid $15.80 to her backers.

Division two saw 3-5 favorite Sonnet Grace make a break in the first turn taking herself out of contention and opening the door for Jazzy Fashion and David Miller to secure the win in 1:54.1. Jazzy Fashion is a daughter of Donato Hanover owned by Fashion Farms LLC of New Hope, PA and trained by Jim Campbell. Nomo Volo finished second for Jeff Gregory with Grimmie Hanover and Dave Palone rounding out the trifecta.

Fashion Farms and Jim Campbell were not done yet as their undefeated homebred Possess The Will filly Millie's Possesion captured the third division of the Meadow Bright. The only favorite to win a division, Millie's Possesion is now 3 for 3 lifetime capturing her division in a lifetime best 1:54. The winning filly driven by Dexter Dunn held off Personal Paradise by a neck with Southwind Casha finishing third. Millie's Possesion paid $2.80 to win.

The fourth and final division saw the 1-2 favorite American Kronos make a break going to the three quarters allowing Dexter Dunn and Antonia to upset the field. The second winner for Dexter Dunn and stallion Donato Hanover scored in 1:54.3 over Swizzle Sticks and Fade Into You. Trained by Nifty Norman, Antonia paid a healthy $28.20 to her backers.

On the undercard were four divisions of the PA Stallion Series for the sophomore diagonal gaited fillies. Joplin opened the day's festivities with an upset win in the first race for Christen and Jim Pantaleano stopping the timer in 1:56.2. Favorite Can't Touch It made a break in deep stretch while not threatening the winner and finished 3rd before being disqualified to 4th place.

The second division of the Stallion Series went to Dawn Of Glory for Yannick Gingras and trainer Julie Miller in 1:57.4. The winner sat a two-hole journey before collaring the front running favorite Altercation by a head at the wire.

Next up was a win for Keystone Abbey and Aaron Merriman for trainer Chris Beaver. The Cantab Hall filly led every step of the way scoring in 1:56.4 by a head over favorite Fraulein Blucher.

Yannick Gingras returned to the winner's circle in the fourth and final division of the Stallion Series with the Steve LeBlanc trained Spring In Paris.

Racing resumes Monday with a 1:05 p.m. post. The live schedule changes this week with live racing Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and a special Friday night program starting at 5:00 p.m. with the 3-year-old C&G trotters back in action in the Currier and Ives Stake.

Six win Friday for McNair

Driver Doug McNair kicked off his weekend in style by winning six-races on Friday night (May 17) at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

The Guelph, ON resident drove in 10 of the 11 races contested and found the winner's circle in more than half of his appearances.

McNair's most notable victory of his six came behind 6-year-old pacing mare Seaswift Joy N ($2.90) in the $30,000 fillies and mares preferred handicap. It was the second win in as many starts locally for the Tony Alagna trainee.

The regular visits to the winner's circle for McNair began in the second-race with 3-year-old pacing filly Sports Flix ($11.60), who is trained by Gregg McNair. The father-son duo teamed up to win the fourth-race with sophomore pacing filly Swift Ally ($6.30).

McNair's victory with Swift Ally started a stretch of three-consecutive wins in the middle of the card, as he picked up victories with 6-year-old pacer Santanna Tony ($27.60) for trainer Pat Shepherd and 3-year-old pacing filly Deb ($7.20) for trainer James 'Friday' Dean.

Following his fifth win of the night with Seaswift Joy N in the ninth-race, McNair collected his sixth and final victory with Rod Boyd trained 4-year-old pacing mare Dragon Lady Art ($4.90) in the 10th race.

McNair now has 54 wins and earnings of just under $900,000 in 439 starts this season.

McNair and James MacDonald will both be competing at the upcoming World Driving Championship in Sweden.

Amal Hall and Quincy Blue Chip win EBC elims at Vernon Downs

Amal Hall (Jason Bartlett) and Quincy Blue Chip (Jim Morrill Jr.) won their Empire Breeders Classic (EBC) trotting fillies elimination races at Vernon Downs on Friday (May 17). Both races were for a purse of $12,500.

In the first division Amal Hall ($4.30) went to the front and led to a first quarter of :27.2. Conway Kellyanne (Charlie Norris) then took over control and led to a half of :58.1 and to three-quarters in 1:27.2.

Amal Hall, who is trained by Julie Miller for owners GTY Stable, Andy Miller Stable, and Dumain Heaven Farm, popped out of the pocket in the stretch and blew by to win in 1:56.4. Conway Kellyanne hung on for second. Pilgrims Lass (Mike Simons) finished third.

Amal Hall is a 3-year-old filly by Credit Winner. It was her first win in 2019. She now owns four career victories.

In the second division, With Out A Doubt (Tyler Buter) charged out to the lead and led the way to a first quarter of :28.3.

Quincy Blue Chip ($5.70), who is owned by Blue Chip Bloodstock Inc. and trained by Gareth Dowse, took over the lead on the backstretch. She led them to the half in :58. As she hit the three-quarter mark in 1:26.2, she would be joined by Winndevie (Trond Smedshammer) as they made the turn for home. Quincy Blue Chip shook lose in mid-stretch and held off a late charge by second place finisher Sweet Chapter (Matt Kakaley) to win in 1:54.3. Winndevie held on for third.

Quincy Blue Chip is a 3-year-old filly by Chapter Seven. It was her second win in 2019. She now has reached the winner's circle six times in her career.

Here are the qualifiers for the EBC Final for 3-year-old trotting fillies on Memorial Day (May 27): Amal Hall, Conway Kellyanne, Pilgrims Lass, Sensibility, Quincy Blue Chip, Sweet Chapter, Winndevie, With Out A Doubt, and Gobi Princess. Always A Prince equals track record at Harrah's Hoosier Park

Always A Prince and driver Trace Tetrick turned in a dominant performance to deliver as the heavy favorite in the featured event of the evening, the $20,000 open pace, at Harrah's Hoosier Park Racing & Casino on Friday, May 17. Stopping the timer in 1:48.1, Always A Prince established a new lifetime best in just the third start of his 4-year-old campaign and equaled the track record for older pacing geldings at Harrah's Hoosier Park in the process. It was also the fastest mile of the 2019 season through the first 33 nights of racing.

The 1:48.1 clocking equaled the mark previously established by Split The House and Brett Miller in the $421,00 Breeders Crown open pace at Hoosier Park in October of 2017. Always A Prince also holds the track record for 3-year-old pacing geldings with a 1:48.3 score in stakes action last season.

In a race marred by scratches, Always A Prince coasted off the gate from post four while a host of others left aggressively for the front. Docdor Friskie and Brandon Bates won the early battle for position and led the field to the first quarter in a snappy :26.3 with Endeavor and Mike Oosting opting for a pocket trip. Tetrick wouldn't wait long and gave Always A Prince his marching orders as the field straightened away down the backside. Always A Prince quickly took command just before the half in :54.2 and never looked back.

Hitting the three-quarters in 1:22, Always A Prince was on top by two and his lead was ever-increasing. Fan of Terror and John DeLong, who won the open pace last week, were the first to take aim but were no match for the leader. Utilizing a :26.1 final panel, Always A Prince powered home to finish three lengths to the good and was well in hand at the wire. Fan of Terror rallied gamely to finish second while Docdor Friskie held on for third. As the heavy betting favorite, Always A Prince returned $3.00 to his backers at the betting windows.

"I can't say that I am surprised, but I was not expecting a 1:48 mile tonight," trainer Tyler George said after the victory. "He has that kind of speed and that was a nice field of horses but I didn't think he would have to go that much tonight. He's a great horse and does what he has to do."

Unraced as a 2-year-old, Always A Prince made up for lost times last season—bankrolling $492,875 in purse earnings and securing Indiana's 2018 Pacer of the Year title. Owned by Carl and Melanie Atley, the gelded son of Always A Virgin—Glorious Princess recorded his 20th lifetime win from 25 trips behind the gate.

"We haven't figured out where we are going next," George said. "We will probably try to get another start here. He's got the Battle of Lake Erie but we'll see how it goes."

The win with Always A Prince was one of three winners on the card for Hoosier Park's leading driver Trace Tetrick. Tetrick also scored with fan-favorite and world champion Freaky Feet Pete in the last race on the program. Staging his customary late rally in the lane, Freaky Feet Pete surged past his rivals to stop the timer in 1:49.4 and record his second consecutive victory.

Indiana Sire Stakes Champions were out in full force on the evening's 14-race card as Indiana's 2018 champion 2-year-old pacing colt, Egomania, also found the winner's circle in the first start of his 3-year-old campaign. Driven by John DeLong and trained by Brian Brown, Egomania came storming home to stop the timer in 1:50.3 to establish a new lifetime best.

Hannelore Hanover impressive in 2019 qualifier debut

Hannelore Hanover is back! The 2017 Dan Patch Horse of the Year and career winner of $2.8 million made her 2019 debut an impressive winning one over current "Road to the Hambletonian" list topper Gimpanzee (Sears) during Saturday morning qualifiers at the Meadowlands.

Settled in fifth through the early poles, Hannelore had advanced to third via a few breakers by the 1:25.4 third panel, fanned wide and engaged the leading Gimpanzee then prevailed on the wire in 1:53 with a sub-:27 final quarter under her own power. Super Schissel (Scott Zeron) was right in between the top pair in third. Ron Burke trains Hannelore Hanover for his interests as Burke Racing, Weaver Bruscemi, Frank Baldachino and J&T Silva and Joe Bongiorno picked up the drive this morning.

Beautiful Sin was ultra-impressive this morning, not only beating a field of quality male rivals but doing so authoritatively. Driver Tim Tetrick moved the Muscle Hill lass first over from fourth as they passed the :59.2 half and brushed past the leader Gerry (Marcus Melander) through the :29.1 third panel, leaving the boys behind with a :27 close to the 1:55.3 mile. Gerry stayed on for second while White Tiger (Sears) was a rated third. Lennart Agren's S R F Stable owns Beautiful Sin who at $480,000 was the highest priced yearling of 2017 and Per Engblom trains.

Trainer Domenico Cecere brought a string of Lindy Farms' 3-year-old trotting colts in for their first foray of the new season and drove the Chapter Seven colt Refi to a front-stepping 1:56.2 / :28.2 win under wraps over stablemate Signor Cardin (Brian Sears). Wing Suit (Zeron) was comfortably third. Refi is owned by Lindy Farms and Bob Rudolph.

Sophomore pacing colts came around next and a pair of trainer Tony Alagna's Captaintreacherous colts finished 1-2 with Captain McKee (Tetrick) prevailing from the pocket in 1:52.3 / :27.1 over mile-cutter Captain Cash (Andy McCarthy) with Magic Joe Lindy (Zeron) third. Brittany Farms, Marvin Katz, Brad Grant and Captain Trevor Racing own the winner.

Another round of Captains swept the first three spots in the next race with Latissimus Hanover (Tetrick) leading throughout under restraint and holding Captain Ahab (McCarthy) and Shipshape (Matt Krueger) at bay in 1:51.1 / :28.1. Trainer Ray Schnittker owns Latissimus Hanover with Mary Kinsey Arnold and Ted Gewertz.

Tall Drink Hanover (McCarthy) completed the "Captain sweep" for the sophomore pacers, winning handily in 1:51.4 / :27.1 under complete wraps. Key West (Tetrick) was a good second. Alagna trains both and owns the winner as Alagna Racing along with Marvin Katz and Riverview Racing (Stephanie & Myron Bell).

Western Joe was pacing out of his skin through a :26.1 end to a 1:50.1 mile Saturday morning, looking like he's ready to roll after this, his third qualifier. He tracked Shnitzledosomethin (Tetrick) throughout and roared past that rival under some Zeron rousing in the stretch. Chris Choate trains the 2018 Sam McKee Memorial winner for Anthony Ruggeri and Joe Tosies.

Coughlin fundraiser at Fair Winds Farm

On Wednesday (May 15), the Standardbred Breeders and Owners Association of New Jersey (SBOANJ) and TrotPAC sponsored a successful fundraiser for New Jersey Assembly Speaker Craig Coughlin. The event was held at Fair Winds Farm and Hogan Equine Clinic to support his 2019 campaign.

Assembly Speaker Coughlin was greeted by directors from the SBOANJ, TrotPAC trustees, and many horsepeople. Mark Mullen led a tour of his Fair Winds Farm breeding facility, while Patricia M. Hogan, VMD gave him a behind the scenes look at Hogan Equine Clinic.

The Meadowlands general manager Jason Settlemoir and Freehold Raceway's general manager Howard Burno and director of racing Karen Fagliarone were on hand to answer the Speaker's questions about the New Jersey tracks improvements since the appropriations were awarded.

Drivers Yannick Gingras, Andy Miller, and Hall of Famers David Miller and John Campbell, among others, also took time to discuss the standardbred industry with him. This was his first visit to any New Jersey equine facility, and Speaker Coughlin was able to mingle with the many horsepeople and equine industry supporters in attendance before leaving the function.

New Jersey horseman's lobbyist AJ Sabath answered questions and explained how the appropriations would be awarded in the future. He also expressed the importance of our industry providing proof that the funding received has indeed bolstered New Jersey racing.

TrotPAC would like to thank everyone for their contributions and all of those who were able to attend. It is extremely important that we, as an industry, continue to support the various legislators that will be involved with the annual renewal of our appropriation.
