Tiny-yet-progressive Hanover Raceway rewarded with strong handle

The small Ontario track has embraced an HD signal, a low-takeout Pick 4 and young tech savants Tony Elliott and Ryan Clements to help it start its 2020 season with a bang.

While the Woodbine Entertainment Group was getting some major buzz from Racing Night Live on TSN (full story here), they weren't the only ones getting air time this past week. Hanover Raceway was generating some buzz of their own, and their efforts to improve their product showed at the windows.

On the surface, $67,000 in handle generated on their opening card last Saturday might not seem like much, but consider that last year with fans in attendance every Saturday night, Hanover averaged about $26,000 bet per card. Last Saturday (June 6) was the first card with no on-track wagering, and the $67,000 represented the track's biggest handle day since 1991. They followed that up with another good wagering day yesterday, handling just over Hanover's new management team brought a fresh approach and embraced every available useful form of technology they could find. Tony Elliott, in his maiden season as assistant to the new general manager Steve Fitzsimmons, explained some of the new features.

"In my job interview with Steve, I said there were two things that we needed to bring to the track: the first was a live HD feed shown on multiple platforms (including races shown live on Facebook) and the second was a low takeout Pick 4," Elliott said. "We got both of those done now, so I'm pretty happy."

Moving to a 2 p.m. post time, where they were the only harness track racing didn't hurt, either, and they also attracted some star power. Leading Mohawk Park driver Doug McNair showed up to drive on both of the first two Saturdays at Hanover and his reasoning was simple. "I always liked going up there and I haven't had the chance the past few years," he said. "The 2 p.m. post time attracted me for sure."

Hanover also partnered with Ryan Clements of Farm Games fame, who has brought serious innovation to the sport with his app-based Catch Driver and Off and Pacing games, as he is promoting the Pick 4 both at Hanover and Clinton Raceways.

"We've been developing a partnership with Hanover Raceway for a few years now and honestly, I just love small track, summer time racing," Clements said. "There is nothing better than bringing the family, pulling out the lawn chairs and enjoying a day of racing under the sun. When my friend Steve Fitzsimmons was appointed as the general manager this year, I knew he'd be willing to think outside the box and bring improvements to the product in any way he could. This made our partnership a no-brainer, as we are always pushing the envelope and trying to push the sport that I love into the future."

Elliott and Clements also teamed up to produce this document in Clements blog "The Bit" was released on Friday afternoon which detailed trainer and driver comments for the horses racing in the Pick 4 sequence.

"Ryan and I have talked about this for a long time, about how we'd like to promote a Pick 4 pool," Elliott said. "We wanted to dive into it as deeply as we could and one of the things we wanted to do was get driver and trainer comments from everybody. Anyone can read a program, but we thought these comments were very important – especially considering the layoff. Our goal was to have bettors provided with more information about this Pick 4 than any other Pick 4 in history.”

He used the analogy of sports bettors getting inundated with information to the point where they feel confident that they know everything there is to know about teams which then promotes wagering. “You need wagering to get wagering,” Elliott said. “We proved ourselves in week one with the $67K handle, so now we are adding the low takeout Pick 4 and we are going for the big boys.”

There aren’t many bigger in Ontario than Tommy “Hammer” Massis, recent winner of $1.17 million through HPI Bet on a Six Up wager on races from Hong Kong, and it certainly won’t hurt getting his endorsement. Massis and Clements teamed up on a Friday night podcast to talk about the Pick 4, which drew $2,940 in bets in its first go yesterday, which was close to 50 per cent over the $2,000 guarantee. “I’m in to support any track that understands that lowering takeout is good and promotes wagering,” Massis said. “If we don’t support it, why would any other track lower theirs?”

Ryan Willis, another local bettor who has been known to both bet and cash big, also threw his support behind the new bet for the same reason. “It’s nice to see new wagering options and initiatives priced well at the smaller tracks in Ontario,” he said. “I mainly bet these types of horizontal wagers and I really like it.”

It’s clear that Hanover Raceway’s management team – in cooperation with some local big players – are leaving no stone unturned in getting both eyes on their product and betting on their racing and it appears it’s a case of so far, so good this early in their 2020 season.

Hoosier Park set to open Tuesday after three-month COVID-19 shutdown

Eighty-two days after Harrah's Hoosier Park was supposed to open its 2020, Tuesday's opening program attracted 180 horses to the entry box and yielded a 14-race card.

by James Platz

In the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, the world is learning to adapt to a new reality. The harness racing community has also adapted, and on Tuesday (June 16), Indiana horsemen will return to action at Harrah's Hoosier Park 82 days after the 2020 meet was first slated to kick off. In the nearly three months between, a great deal has changed, but the excitement for a new season is as strong as ever.

"It's just been a long time. Three months, it seems longer than that, actually. We are ready to go and we had a good response at the entry box. There seems to be a lot of excitement," said Rick Moore, Hoosier Park's general manager of racing. "The qualifiers have gone well. Everyone has adhered to the safety protocols. Now it's time to raise the curtain. We will do that Tuesday night. We were expected to do that back at the end of March, but it wasn't meant to be. Now, we'll raise that curtain and put on a good show for the rest of the country."

Hoosier Park will conduct a 111-day meet, down from the 160 days first scheduled before the racing shutdown. Moore said daily purses would be down roughly 20 per cent from last year. With casino revenue accounting for 85 per cent of purses and only two and one-half months of revenue banked before the state closed casino operations in mid-March, the initial approach is a conservative one. Tuesday's card attracted 180 horses to the entry box and yielded a 14-race card. Wednesday's program will feature 14 races, with 10 of the events offering nine or more starters. Spectators are restricted until the July 4 weekend as part of Governor Eric Holcomb's "Back on Track Indiana" plan. It is new territory for Moore and his team.

"I've never put on a spectator-free race meet before, and I guess we'll do that for a while. Not having people in the building will be very strange," Moore said. "This is a whole new world and a new normal. You adapt and you go forward. I am just thankful that we are in a position that we can start the race meet. Everything is a little bit different at this time, but the good news is that racing is back Tuesday and horsemen are going to start earning money."

To prepare for the meet and give trainers the opportunity to have horses ready for competition, the track hosted four qualifiers each week leading up to opening. Up to 90 horses could participate in a qualifying day, providing trainers flexibility as they put the finishing touches on trotters and pacers soon to line up behind the starting gate.

Owners had been resigned to the fact that they, like spectators, could not see horses racing in person until July 4. It was a particularly painful pill to swallow after the announcement casinos at Hoosier Park and Indiana Grand would reopen Monday morning, June 15 at half capacity. Due to the casino's proximity to Hoosier Park's apron and racing surface, slots players had more access than those invested in the industry. Late Friday, however, the Indiana Horse Racing Commission issued new guidelines at both tracks for licensed owners and trainers. Part of the statement reads:

"After receiving input from Indiana's horsemen, and holding additional meetings with racetrack management, the following provisions are being provided to accommodate owners' wishes to watch their horse race on race day. Beginning Monday, June 15, 2020 up to two owners per horse will be allowed on the racetrack backside, subject to the provisions of the reopening plan including (but not limited to) daily temperature checks., displayed license requirements, wearing the color-coded wristband, and mask usage.

To gain limited access to the apron at Indiana Grand, licensed owners with horses racing that day should park near the Jockey's Quarters and enter the apron by using the nearest gate to that building. To gain limited access to the apron at Hoosier Park, licensed owners with horses racing that day should park near the grandstand paddock and enter the apron using the gate nearest to this location.

Upon accessing the apron, licensed owners should proceed to the area designated by the racetrack to watch only the race that their horse is in. Owners allowed on the apron are also subject to the same reopening provisions as noted in the first paragraph above.

As previously mentioned, there is a limit of two owners per horse allowed. If an owner's horse wins a race, the owner(s) may accompany the rest of the party to the winner's circle. Owners must leave the apron after the completion of the race their horse is in. Example: If an owner has a horse in the first and third race, the owners must leave in between races. No individuals will be allowed to congregate in the designated areas."

The fact remains, like other venues in North America, the return to racing at Hoosier Park is different. It must be different for the benefit of all. More protocols have been added, all done with safety at the forefront.

"We are taking every safety precaution we can think of. We have worked with the governor's office, the racing commission and the Indiana Standardbred Association. When people come in, the first thing they are going to have to do is have their temperature taken. Assuming that it is within the normal boundaries, they will get a wristband for that day," said Moore. "If they don't have a mask, we'll give them a mask, and they'll be on their way. We do insist that they wear a mask at all times while in public, which is different, but necessary in this day and age. The virus has not gone away; I think we all know that. We have to take every precaution to make sure we don't transmit it to one another."

Moore also explained that once Hoosier Park opens to spectators, social distancing would be a priority, with mutuel clerks spaced at every other terminal, no buffet as a dining option, and guests seated at every other table in the Homestretch Steakhouse and clubhouse dining.

Nominations to the stakes that make up Hoosier Park's Championship Meet are strong, and Moore is excited for a season that includes a second stint as host of the Breeders Crown. He said Hoosier Park is planning big things for the fall card headlined by the Caesars Trotting Classic, billing it as a Breeders Crown preview. The Dan Patch Stakes, less than two months away, will also be a focal point.

"The response on nominations has been phenomenal this year. We want to make the Caesars Trotting Classic into a huge stakes night. We're going to blow that night out," he said. "I'm also expecting we'll have a tremendous Dan Patch this year."

Indiana horsemen have waited three months for a chance to get the 2020 season underway, all the while adapting to the new normal created by the pandemic. The wait is finally over.

A grey winner in the midnight sun

by Thomas Hedlund

The $110,000 Norrbottens Stora Pris in Boden, Sweden is a true highlight for harness racing fans in summertime every year, but as previously announced, due to COVID-19, the public still has to stay at home watching races on devices or television instead of visiting racetracks in Sweden.

The midnight sun paints the racetrack of Boden in spectacular colors at this time of the year and Norrbottens Stora Pris is a race – literally held during daylight around midnight close to the Arctic Circle – that many trainers and owners aim at after the Elitloppet weekend.

On Friday May 29, the day before Solvalla's great weekend, a grey horse named Antonio Tabac (Crazed) won an overnight mile race at a smaller track in Sweden in 1:51.4, which gave a clue about the trotter's ability. That ability was also shown two seasons ago, when he something of a rookie of the year in Sweden. His comeback in higher-staked races began on Saturday night, in Boden and Norrbottens Stora Pris.

Finnish driver Mika Forss was entrusted behind Jörgen Westholm's trainee and one great attribute that Antonio Tabac has developed throughout the years is his ability to leave quickly behind the gate. So the tactics were simple: send Antonio Tabac to the front and try to stay there as long as possible.

And this time, horses such as Makethemark, Milliondollarrhyme and Mindyourvalue W.F. were out of chance to touch the leader Antonio Tabac, who easily sprinted to safe win in a mile rate of 1:54.2.

Makethemark held strongly as the runner up from position first over and Dreamoko finished best of all horses to third place after a trip deep down in the field.

Top trotters are missing in Norway

The $68,500 Oslo Grand Prix over 1.3 miles is a true product of the COVID-19 situation in 2020. The field of 10 horses is not a bad one, but not close to the standard fans are used to when Oslo's biggest summer meeting is on the schedule.

The purse has been reduced and now the Oslo Grand Prix seems more or less like a normal gold division race for the elite in northern Europe.

Anyway, the race will be held today (June 14) and Finnish star Elian Web had big luck once again when the draw was held. Elian Web started from post one behind the gate in Elitloppet elimination two weeks ago and had no problems in defending the lead in that race. So there are many reasons thinking that Jorma Kontio will send the son of Like A Prayer to front position even in this race.

Italian-bred Vitruvio makes his first start for trainer Björn Goop and the duo is considered as a hot threat regarding winning the prestigious race.

Moilanen hit 7,000

One of Finland's best drivers of all time, Ari Moilanen, 58, reached a great milestone on Thursday evening in his home country. Moilanen became the third driver in Finland to record 7,000 career wins. Only Jorma Kontio, with over 11,000 wins, and Antti Teivanen, with 7,939 victories, have more.

Moilanen began in the sulky in 1978 and had to wait until 1981 before his first victory came. His best year at the tracks was 2001, when he visited the winner's circle on 304 occasions.

A candid conversation with trainer Brett Pelling

by Murray Brown

Brett Pelling came from the small town of Matura with a population of 2,000 on the South Eastern portion of the South Island of New Zealand.

Matura is perhaps best known as the birthplace of harness racing's first millionaire Cardigan Bay.

Pelling was a neighbor of Davey Todd who trained "Cardy" as Stanley Dancer referred to the pacer.

Brett was raised by his grandparents.

His grandad loved horse racing and followed it with a passion.

He remembers the day when Cardigan Bay returned to his native town and all 2,000 residents turned out to see him perform an exhibition on the town's 3/8ths of a mile track.

At the age of 16, Pelling left New Zealand for Australia where he moved in with his mother and his step father Brian.

Brett credits Brian with most of his early lessons in horsemanship. Soon after, Brian left for America to pursue his trade in harness racing.

Young Brett was left behind to take care of the property and to work in the stable.

He also secured a job with Parramatta Livestock, who flew horses to and from Down Under to America. After several such journeys, Brett decided that he liked what little he had seen of America and decided to stay.

He reminisces about a journey he took with a nine-horse rig destined for the Cow Palace in San Francisco. The driver, the stereotype of the U.S. cowboy, has remained embedded in Brett's mind ever since. He looked and acted tough. All of a sudden, the cowboy spat out a black viscous fluid into a cup at his side. "Holy s - - -," Brett thought to himself. "This bloke drinks oil."

Dave Landry

Trainer Brett Pelling has come a long way from the small town of Matura (pop. 2,000) on the South Eastern portion of the South Island of New Zealand.

Brett started working for Brian in 1977. He lived in a tack room at Bay Meadows racetrack, where he met and befriended Ross Croghan and Paul Jessop.

Then Brian moved to Chicago, but he sent horses back to California and Brett ran that stable.

Brett was with Brian for eight years before going to work for Ross Croghan.

Croghan was in California, but wanted to move his stable to Florida because of the lack of racing dates out west.

They left with 26 head and landed at Pompano Park where they ended up selling all of them — most at a decent profit.

They did the same thing the next year and sold all of them but two.

After a few years, Croghan told Brett "You're too good to work for me. You need to go to New Jersey and The Meadowlands where the big boys play."

California racing was having a real rough go of it. Marge Everett was never a great fan of harness racing and succeeded in getting rid of it at Hollywood Park. Bay

Meadows and Santa Anita had previously stopped racing standardbreds. For some time, harness racing appeared to have found a new and fairly successful home at Los Alamitos in Orange County. Then an impasse between management and the horsemen's association developed. It ended up going to court and the horsemen won, but in the end they lost.

Instead of gracefully accepting the decision of the courts, the ownership of Los Al, simply closed the track to harness racing.

About the same time, Brett Pelling arrived in New Jersey.

He started with two head, but because of the dire California situation, horsemen from there were shipping horses for him to race in New Jersey.

"We seemed to be going to JFK every other week to pick up horses," Brett said.

He had 20 of them claimed and ended the season with 40 head in his stable.

He would race all his horses with white overchecks so his clients in California could easily identify them.

His right hand man through all of the great years was Nifty Norman, who went on to do great things in his own stable after Brett left for Australia.

Among Brett's first good horses, and those which he credits for bringing further attention to him were Viewfield Prince – a horse he owned himself that earned around $300,000 and allowed Brett to make a down payment on his home – the wonderful grey mare White Ruffles and Tax Credit.

As history shows, success breeds success. Owners started coming in droves to his stable.

The most horses he ever had in the stable was 90.

"I hated it," Brett said. "I'm a hands on, anal type of guy. I like to have everything under my thumb and be in control. I admire a guy like Ronnie Burke. I don't know how he is able to do what he does.

"I can honestly say that I've never worked to acquire a single horse. Any horses or owners that have come to my stable came to me, not the other way around.

"For me, the perfect size of a stable is 27. That's what I have now. They fill one barn. It suits me perfectly.

"The first well known horse I got to train was Resonator. Thus began my association with Myron Bell and Brittany Farms. Silky Stallone and several other good ones quickly followed.

"I loved working for them and was grateful for the good horses and trust put into our operation.

"Through the years I've acquired what I believe to be an unfair reputation as being aloof or unapproachable. I don't consider myself unfriendly. I'm just an intense guy, who is often immersed in thought. Saying that though, I do believe that I've mellowed somewhat.

"I've been extremely lucky to have Nifty (Norman) and Noel (Daley) working with me through the years. Not only are they outstanding horsemen, but they are both very outgoing and friendly, while I've tended to have been more reserved."

Let's talk about some of your horses. Who are the three best?

1. Rocknroll Hanover

"He had everything, especially great strength. If there would have been anything you might want to criticize about him, you'd have to tell me what it is. As close to perfection as I've had. His loss to the breed was incalculable."

2. Western Ideal

"Just a wonderful horse. His battles with Dragon Again were epic. I'm surprised they are rarely mentioned when speaking about the great races in the history of our sport."

3. Papi Rob Hanover

"He's not there, yet. But to this point in his career, he is at least as good as any that I've ever had. Last year, he was just a big super endowed kid. This year he has graduated to manhood. The cessation of racing has really caused problems with his schedule. The way it looks right now, his first major race will be the Meadowlands Pace."

You've had an incredible bunch of owners through the years. Let's talk about some of them.

Dave McDuffee

"He's a great friend. A great thinker on all aspects who does his homework before and at the sales. In the end he puts his total trust in me. He never second guesses."

Bob Glazer (AKA Peter Pan)

"He was one of the greatest owners the sport has ever had. He was totally immersed in racing and truly loved it. He was a huge help to me when we had his horses. He would do all the things I hate to do but are necessary. He'd enter the horses. He knew all the requirements. I don't believe he ever got over the fiasco at The Meadows where The Panderosa tested positive to four nanograms of morphine in his system. That is about as small a reading as it is capable of being found. What almost nobody remembers is there were eight other hometown trainers who came up with similar readings of morphine at the time. Some of them had never even had the smallest offense on their records. If that wasn't environmental contamination, then there is no such thing. The local trainers got time served. They gave me nine months. Of course I appealed, but the time and money involved were substantial."

"I truly believe that Bob Glazer never recovered from it and that has to be a primary reason he is no longer in the business."

"Unfortunately, it's now 20 years later and the same thing could easily happen again today."

Brittany Farms

"They gave me my first chance at a high level. They sent me minor league stakes horses and we were fortunate to develop them to a point where they turned out better than expected."

The Katz Brothers

"Terrific guys and awesome people, especially Alan, who has become a dear friend. They stuck with me through thick and thin. They've been in the game for a long, long time and know both the highs and lows. They are extremely knowledgeable and love everything about the business. Whenever my bills are sent out, invariably their check is the first to arrive. In all the years that I've had horses with and for them only once did anybody else's check beat theirs. I kidded Alan about that."

Clay Horner

"A beautiful man. Highly intelligent and enthusiastic. He is very understanding and can take bad news as well as good. He has a great understanding of the business and its people. He and his and my buddy, John Fielding, are among the best of human beings."

David Brooks

"One of a kind. Most people would say that he was a horrific person and they'd probably be right. In relative terms, I got along with him pretty well, but it was only because he thought that he needed me more than I needed him. I also held the upper hand as far as getting paid was concerned. At all times, the value of his horses was far greater than the amount of money that he owed me. I'd tell him 'David, okay, what are you going to do? Your choice is to pay me or I'm going to turn out all of your horses'."

"When he was on trial, the FBI interviewed me in Australia and then flew me over to testify on the sources of his money for the payments he made to me. Funny enough at his trial, he seemed quite happy to see me."

You Down Under guys have had an incredible influence on harness racing here in North America. Many people say it traces to Ross Croghan. You would undoubtedly say it traces to Brian Pelling. But the names are just so prominent, Brett Pelling, Noel Daley, Nifty Norman, Chris Ryder, Tony O'Sullivan, Mark Harder, Ross Wolfenden, Aaron Lambert,

Paul Jessop and undoubtedly some others that I've neglected. You've now got two of the top 10 drivers here in Andy McCarthy and Dexter Dunn. It's hard to find a race card where you don't see a bunch of "N" and "A" horses racing. Why is this so?

"Of course working hard is a factor, but not the only one. Almost all of them were very good horsemen to begin with. They adapted well to American racing, but also brought a good amount of knowledge that they had learned in Australia and New Zealand. Added to what they learned here, it made for an excellent combination of skills."

You made reference to the Scandinavian guys also having a great influence here. You jokingly said they are great horsemen, but the areas most of them seem to have some commonality are in stubbornness, arrogance and ignorance, but they also excel in determination. They indeed have and continue to be at or near the top of the trotting game here. You also mention that in the time that you left for Australia and returned, the trotting breed has undergone an almost complete transition. There has been far more change in trotters than with pacers. They are more athletic, smarter, better gaited and much easier to train. You are now the trainer of When Doves Cry. You said that it's as though she comes from a different breed from the trotters that you previously knew. I think the reason can be summed up mostly in two words. They are "Valley Victory". Do you agree?

"I'm sure that's a big part of it, probably the biggest part. In addition to the speed and grit that Valley Victory contributed through the Muscles Yankee branch, there's also the good sense and intelligence that comes from the branch from Cantab Hall and his sons. Then there's the strength that you get when you combine them with the outcross to them in Andover Hall and Donato Hanover, mostly on the female end."

Why are you not in the Living Hall of Fame in Goshen?

"You are asking the wrong guy. I'm not even sure how the process works. If not me, then certainly someone from Down Under. There have been several Europeans inducted, but not a single Aussie or Kiwi."

"Speaking only for me and I believe without any arrogance I think my achievements are worthy."

"Horses trained by me have earned in excess of $90 million, not the $60 million that the USTA carries. If anybody there cares enough, I can show them the error in their numbers."

"I've been the leading trainer at The Meadowlands 10 different years."

"My horses have won four Little Brown Jugs, four Meadowlands Paces, three North American Cups, I've trained 20 millionaires, the winners of nine Triple Crown Races and 11 Breeders Crowns."

"Something I was most proud of was having five stallions in the top 20 for five years after I left."

Tell us about your move to Australia and then your return to America.

"There were several reasons. My work here was getting to be repetitive. I suppose many would call it burn out. That might have been a small part of it, but far from the main reason. We wanted our children to get to know their grandparents. We also felt that we were moving them to a better society. That was both true and untrue. Most of all, we felt that we were moving them to an area where they would have the chance of securing a better education. That most definitely was not true. Down there it was more of a laissez faire system. Here it is more competitive. I believe strongly that competition is a very good thing. It brings out the best in us."

"The two kids had moved back here. Their grandparents had passed away. Frankly, I missed it. It wasn't a hard decision to come back."

"My one huge disappointment when I returned was except for Dave McDuffee and Alan Katz, most of the people for whom I had previously trained and did well – for some of them exceptionally well – walked right by me as though as though I no longer existed. From several, not so much as a 'Hello' or 'How are you doing?' I was deeply hurt."

"One exception, though, was Frank Antonacci, for whom I'd never trained. Frank had picked up on my mood and came to me and said that if I bought a yearling count him in for half of it. That's a gesture for which I will be eternally grateful."

How's Life for Brett Pelling today?

"I'm back doing what I think I do best. I'm 62 years old, but thankfully the fire still burns in me. I've got my ideal sized stable. I'm lucky enough to have several very good horses in it and a terrific bunch of owners."

"I still wake up each morning eager to do what I do. I think I'm in a very good place."

Some of the greatest fathers in harness racing history

by Bob Heyden

In honor of Father's Day, here's a closer look at just some of the greatest standardbred fathers in harness racing history:

1. Stars Pride. Right off the bat we have three records that have not been bettered in the last half century — all by Stars Pride.

He produced four straight Triple Crown winners:

1964 — Ayres
1968 — Nevele Pride
1969 — Lindys Pride
1972 — Super Bowl

Stars Pride also produced 10 Kentucky Futurity winners and eight Hambletonian winners.

All this from a $2,750 yearling that finished second to Lusty Song in the 1950 Hambletonian, earned $140,969 lifetime and posted a world record mark of 1:57.1 while racing from 1949 to 1952.

2. Cam Fella. He retired the winningest money winner in history among pacers with $2.041 million. From his first crop he sired Camtastic ($2,117,615) and from his last crop he produced Eternal Camnation ($3,748,574 — still the high water mark for female pacers 16 years after she retired). In between he became the only stallion to send out four straight Meadowlands Pace winners: 1991 — Precious Bunny (who like dad established an earnings record but his was for one season); 1992 — Carlsbad Cam in Rod Allen's one and only Pace appearance; 1993 — Presidential Ball and 1994 — Cams Card Shark.

3. Adios. Born Jan. 3, 1940 he lived until 1965. That quarter century brought seven world records on the track and a legendary career out of it.

Bought for $2,000 as a yearling and later resold for $21,000 to Del Miller, he was later sold again to Hanover

Shoe Farms' Lawrence Sheppard for $500,000 — or four times higher than any other horse to that point in history. Miller bought back a one-third share in the super stallion who had a bio that looked something like this:

Adios' son Bret Hanover sold for a sales-topping $50,000 in the fall of 1963 and went on to become the first and only pacer to be named Horse of the Year three straight times (1964-1965-1966). This came after his son Adios Butler won twice in a row from 1960-1961.

Adios sired the winner of the Jug five straight years from 1958-1962:

1958 — Shadow Wave
1959 — Adios Butler
1960 — Bullet Hanover
1961 — Adios Don
1962 — Lehigh Hanover

He finished 1-2-3 in the 1959 and 1961 editions of the Messenger:

1959 — Adios Butler - Meadow Al - Adios Oregon
1961 — Adios Don - Henry T Adios - Lang Hanover

No female pacers has won the Messenger or Cane Pace since 1960 when Adios' daughter Countess Adios captured both.

His son Adios Boy was the first 2:00 2-year-old. His son Adios Harry the first 1:55 race winner.

Born one year before WWII started, his last son or daughter to win a race was 12-year-old Rocky Adios at Freehold in 1975 — a year before the Meadowlands opened its doors.

No wonder Adios' book is called BIG DADDY.

June 22 marks the 55th anniversary of his passing.

4. A number of the sport's greatest stallions competed between 1991 and 1992.

Camluck raced from 1990-1992 and time trialed at the Red Mile in 1:48.4 in 1992.

He banked $1,003,260 lifetime. He is currently sport's leading sire of all time with progeny earnings just shy of $225 million, just a few dollars ahead of another fantastic sire that is due to pass him on the leaderboard: Bettors Delight. Camluck sired the Jug winner at age 25 when his son Michaels Power won it in 2012.

Artsplace raced from 1990-1992, was a world record setter at 2 and HOY at 4. He banked $3,085,083 lifetime and was undefeated for trainer Bob McIntosh in 1992.

He had Meadowlands Pace-winning Dream Away from his first crop in 1997 of 3YOs, and he did something that year not since done: He was the leading winning pacing sire despite his oldest being only 3 – $8,917,716. His own sire, Abercrombie, was second that year and Abercrombie is second behind Artsplace on the all-time list, too. Artsplace currently ranks fourth all-time with total progeny earnings of more than $168 million and Abercrombie is fifth with more than $156 million.

Presidential Ball is still the richest single season horse of all time not to be named HOY ($2.222 million in 1993). Staying Together was HOY of the year for '93. Presidential Ball sired the sport's second filly millionaires, Cathedra Dot Com, in 2001.

Western Hanover. Competed in 1991-1992. He banked $2,541,647 lifetime and was a nose from winning the Triple Crown.

He began his sire career after 1992 and his first crop arrived the same time as Artsplace's first crop. Western had a Triple Crown winner, Western Dreamer, from his very first offering. From 1999-2011, Western Hanover was either first or second every year on the pacing sire's list and he currently ranks third all-time with total progeny earnings of more than $210 million.

Artsplace and Western passed away in consecutive years of 2006-2007. Yet, Artsplace's Sportswriter (2009-2010) won the Metro and then the North America Cup and in 2009 guess who was Pacer Of The Year? Western Hanover's Well Said.

Discussing brand names with Bruce Riegler

Possibly nobody had a better view of brand name horses in the 1980s and '90s like Bruce Riegler. Now 66, the son of Hall Of Famer Gene Riegler was the one who was teaching a lot of the early lessons to names such as Western Hanover, Artsplace, Life Sign, Troublemaker, Three Diamonds and later Western Ideal. Some just initially, some all the way through, but always with an eye on developing them correctly.

"We didn't have contests with each other training them down," Bruce said referring to his brother, Alan, and their father. "There was plenty of time for that later on. Putting a foundation on them was what mattered and that is what we did.

"Dad always wanted his horses on GO. If they were tired, we'd back off. He always had a good eye in picking out horses. George (Segal) believed in him and it worked well. We trained horses so they wouldn't know where the end of the mile was."

Let's start with the outstanding Three Diamonds, the outstanding pacing filly of 1981 and 1982. She banked $233,489 at 2 and then $502,270 as a sophomore finishing 25-for-31 in her brilliant career that resulted in total earnings of $735,759.

"When she baby raced, I would not have said world champion," Bruce said "The first impression of her was Plain Jane. She was athletic – you couldn't fault her there at all. She was very good early but not overly so. Early on in competitive racing, she was the best. I would just sit with her and move to the top and she was dominant (9-for-10 at 2 with one loss on a sloppy track). Everywhere she went, I did too.

"It was funny, I always liked Three Diamonds. Dad liked a filly named Obedient and my brother liked Rhythm Hanover."

At 3, Three Diamonds hadn't lost a thing, Bruce said.

"She grew some from 2 to 3, but needed to dealing with the sophomore fillies. It can be a different story at 3. But she was her old self. She had a small patch of bad racing – and I remember the night it turned back around. The song Eye Of The Tiger was popular then, and it was playing. She had that look. Her eyes were flaming and she was ready to go. She never lost again and showed she was the world champion she was. As a broodmare, she had the outstanding Life Sign. She also had Threefold, who was a good one. Dad had three outstanding fillies who had great horses. You know how it goes with top race mares. Seldom do they ever have great ones. But Leah Almahurst had Western Ideal and Stienmas Place had Put On A Show."

Worldly Woman was a good one, but not in the category of the others, Bruce said.

"No, and boy was she a tough filly to get going. She was with this inexperienced trainer early on – a big guy near 275 lbs– and she was nuts. She'd just as soon knock you down and charge at you. She liked women and took to my wife Diane. She'd eat grain out of her hand. But for the guys, one time it took five of us to hitch her and 40 feet later we were all on the ground. I believe that the cream always comes to the top. After a lot of trial and error, she came around and we were best buddies. I was the only one who drove her at 3. A big red filly who had ability."

Bruce said Western Hanover was, "A super athletic colt. Smart. I'd step out onto the track to jog and he'd look both ways first then go. Whatever you had to do, no problem. I remember when dad was warming him up at Garden State Park for the Governor's Cup (1991) and was buzzing him around with a :27 final quarter in the race bike for a 2:04 mile. Most would think this was too fast to warm up... but Western loved it and came back and jogged.

"He looked like a sports car. Greatest athlete. Quick speed.

Dad was so excited about him early on... Art Zubrod at Brittany...told us to pick up this colt, Western Hanover. It seems he jumped the fence six feet high – twice. He knew where to go. Smart.”

Western Hanover raced for Gene Riegle at 2-3 and William Fahy did most of the driving on the super colt by No Nukes.

Bruce said Artsplace was, “Great gaited. He bumped a knee a little right front, but was a talented colt for sure. I remember the night he won at 2 in the Breeders Crown at Pompano Park. It was so windy they had to turn the infield fountain off because it was blowing all the water onto the track. He was so dominant. Dad wound up winning the Governor’s Cup three straight years (1990-1992). We had good success with the Abercrombies. Life Sign came two crops later. I wasn’t surprised to see how well he did on the track.”

Artsplace at 2 had a record of 15 11-3-0 $1,180,271 and was voted top freshman with a 277-30 edge over Die Laughing who was favored over him in the Breeders Crown. At 4, he was the undefeated HOY with a trainer change to Bob McIntosh.

Troublemaker, the first sophomore Breeders Crown winner in 1984, was, “Very nice right from the start,” Bruce said. “An athlete for sure. We wound up racing him a long time. Billy O’Donnell got along with him better than anyone. That happens. I’ve always felt that from the top of the stretch home, nobody has ever been better than Billy O’Donnell.”

Bruce said Western Ideal “At 2 was a big awkward colt who got a little better in each start. He had that bad injury nearly slicing a tendon at 2 and if we weren’t right there and if it hadn’t happened at Lexington I don’t think he would have made it. Rood & Riddle was there. Dad thought he would have loved The Red Mile, but it wound up okay for him because he needed the time to mature and his 3YO season he wouldn’t have been ready for the top colts. The injury healed well, and he came back fabulous. He filled out well.”

Western Ideal won $1,445,422 and was the first ever horse to win every time in 1:50 flat or faster in 2000 as he was named Older Pacer Of The Year.

Western Ideal was called “My greatest sire of all” by Brittany’s George Segal. He had the 2005 HOY Rocknroll Hanover in his first crop, along with American Ideal and Cabrini Hanover – the three richest sophomores of 2005.

Bruce remembers Western Ideal’s dam, Leah Almahurst, as, “a daisy cutter. She was gaited a little different. Not a great filly, but had her moments.”

Life Sign raced 1992-1993, earned $1,912,454 and gave Gene Riegle his first Jug in 1993.

“He was a little bigger and stronger than the others,” Bruce said. “Not a typical Abercrombie. Quick but not real quick. First up was his game. Remember when he won the Jug first up – look at the horses he was doing it against: Presidential Ball and Riyadh. Momentum was his game. If he took a bad step or two somewhere in a race, it would take him a bit to recover and that would likely cost him the race. But once he got rolling watch out.”

ALTERNATIVE ACTIONS

with FRANK COTOLO

Release the Quinellas

by Frank CotoLO

What is the reason for racetracks abandoning the Quinella? It seems absurd to me. I happen to think the Quinella is one of the best ideas ever created in the library of exotic wagers.

There are pari-mutuel tracks still offering the wager, but I cannot find it available at any North American harness raceway. Why? Last I heard on the subject, the Quinella is “unpopular with bettors.” Why? The general opinion, though I have not seen any data on the subject, is because it pays so little—and what’s exotic about that?

I should not assume all readers of Alternative Actions (AA) are acquainted with a Quinella bet, so, briefly: a Quinella is sort of an instant exacta box. That is, you bet on two horses to come in first and or second, but not in the exact (or exacta) order. With a Quinella you cash as long as your pair finishes first and second either way. There are other ways of playing Quinellas, but let’s look at its basics, using only a pair of horses. A bettor likes the 1 and the 8. The 1 wins and the 8 comes in second — the bettor cashes. The win comes in with the 8 on top and the 1 finishes second — the bettor cashes.

Generally, Quinellas pay half of what an exacta pays. Some players see that as a penalty for being able to cash without calling an exact finish. There is, though, nothing unfair about that, is there? I do not recall any experience in all of my years playing pari-mutuel races when a bettor complained about cashing any wager, no less one that paid around half of another wager. Indeed, Quinellas have just gotten bad press, being the little brother of the almighty exacta.

For decades, the Quinella and exacta had a base price of $2 each. Professional and novice bettors played them. In fact, I knew cunning players that found ways to sensationalize on specific incidents when a Quinella paid more than a cold exacta, a situation that may occur when a short-priced horse wins and a longshot finishes second. The Quinella may pay much more than half of the exacta. But all in all, there is no documentation of tears accompanying a person cashing a Quinella.

These days, exactas have lower base prices than ever. Tracks offer 50-cent and $1 exactas. Of course the lower the base the lower the payoff, but no one seems to complain about that. Why? Because bettors like one thing more than mostly any other thing and that is cashing bets.

This is one reason I urge tracks to “Release the Quinellas!”

PROMO PROSE

That’s just one promotional cry a track could use in a campaign centered on bringing back the Quinella. There is no reason to give a reason where the Quinella has been or to add any explanation for its return. The promotion is all about the greatness of its return.

“Quinellas — two bets for the price of one that could have you cashing twice as much.”

As for the price of one Quinella, there is a way to elevate its status to a premium wager — make ‘em pay more to get more.

Without comparing the 2020 Quinella to the Quinella’s $2 grandfather, make the base price, for instance, $5. Then, a winning $5 Quinella would always pay more than a $2 exacta, while always paying a lot more than a 50-cent or dollar exacta.

Promoting Quinellas as a new, fresh idea is not a scam, because its incarnation is new; and for many fans, after all, it is a fresh idea. I understand that even as a new, fresh wager, the Quinella cannot compete with the huge payoffs of carryover “Pick” wagers or humungous Hi-5 pots, but it is important to emphasize that Quinellas translate into cashing more tickets.

The psychological impact of cashing tickets is a positive reinforcement for bettors. The act itself keeps bettors happy, even when facing a losing session. Track administrations need to understand and take advantage of content bettors. These are the players that stay happy because they are playing and they are happily playing because they cash tickets. And what type of exotic bet other than a Quinella is more likely to produce a cashable ticket?

Create specific programs where the track emphasizes the new bet — like a Profit Quinella Night. And how about while there is no on-track attendance, the promo is: “You’re stuck at home, so play QUARANTINE QUINELLAS” ... and so on. The $5 Quinella base price is a gift; it’s a delicious alternative to how most players attempt to hit any other exotic wager.

The $5 Quinella is a two-way, one-way wager, so to speak; one $5 bet that, even if you always played the top two race favorites, would reward players two ways: first, they would cash a ticket; second, they would not have the often humiliating experience of ripping a ticket to shreds.

Sis Arnold – outrider

by Victoria M. Howard

When it comes to Sis Arnold, the apple didn't fall far from the tree. Her grandfather, horseman Floyd Arnold, got the ball rolling when he began training and driving standardbreds, mainly in Iowa. His son, Mike, (Sis's father) followed his footsteps running a stable in Kentucky and Chicago. Her mother, Lois, owned and operated a tack shop at Louisville Downs. And the beat goes on.

Today, Sis is the outrider at Hoosier Park in Indiana.

What enticed this woman to become an outrider?

It started in 1991 when her father's wife, Jill Arnold, needed help outriding at Sportsman's Park. Sis filled in and that was the beginning of a happy, yet busy, life-long career. Since that day, Sis has graced the tracks of Balmoral Park, Maywood Park, Hawthorne, Arlington, Sportsman's Park and presently Hoosier Park with her dauntless talent as one of the sport's best outriders.

"I love them all, but probably Maywood Park (is my favorite) because we had a little room inside the paddock where all the horsemen could hang out. We watched television, ate food there on Friday nights, and, of course, watched the races," she said, laughing. "It was a great time."

Sis not only outrides but also trains and has worked for some of the best in the business, such as Tony Morgan, Homer Hochstetler, Donna Lee, Jamie Macomber, Jeff

Courtesy Sis Arnold

Cullipher and Ken Rucker.

An outrider looks like a fun and easy job. You get paid for riding a beautiful horse, dressing up in appropriate attire and getting to watch all the races. But, in fact, it is difficult, nerve-wracking, and can be quite dangerous. These accomplished riders selflessly risk their life night after night, not only when the weather is sunny and warm, but in snow, sleet, rain, and bone-chilling temperatures.

"I remember one night at Balmoral Park when the lights went out and it was complete darkness. A horse broke stride in a race and four other horses crashed," Sis said. "That was one of the worst nights in my career.

"Another time at Maywood Park a horse got loose and was running towards the horses racing. That was by far one of my scariest."

There are certain horses that need the outrider's assistance in post parade. I asked Sis why some do and some don't.

"They are just like people. Human athletes get anxious before they perform — horses are the same way. They get nervous, have an adrenalin rush and become confused. Then there are those that just aren't that smart. They're no different than people," Sis said, laughing.

An outrider is only as good as her horse. Sis has not one, not two, not three, but four talented sidekicks.

"My oldest is Black who I consider the best of the bunch. Second in charge is Brownie, then comes Boss, my big eater, and last but not least is Billy the newcomer, who is learning the ropes," she said.

An outrider is a God-given talent and something that cannot be learned at school. It is usually self-taught by veteran outriders, as was the case with Sis.

"Jill Arnold, my step-mother, was my mentor, but before that I worked with thoroughbreds for about six years and learned a lot from old timers like Gene Ford.

"Gene was a tough old bird and the first to let me ride his pony horse. He was a great horseman who would take on all the bad acting horses."

So if it's not glamorous, you don't get rich doing it, and can be hazardous, why does Sis do it?

"I do it because I like a challenge. I never know how or what is going to come out of that paddock, or how the race is going to go," she said.

"Yes, you don't make much money, but I enjoy breaking new horses — trying to make them into something.

"The races today are going so fast that anything can and does happen in a blink of the eye. Sadly, outriders don't get the glory trainers and drivers do. In fact, nobody even knows there's an outrider out there until something bad happens.

"An outrider can never let her/his guard down, even for a second. It's all about when you are needed you have seconds to be a 'hero or a zero."

Outriders are the sport's unsung heroes. They are very important and deserve recognition and praise. They are responsible for ensuring the safety of all horse racing participants (both human and equine) during training and racing, catching loose horses as quickly as possible, and assisting drivers who are having trouble with their difficult horses.

Here's to Sis Arnold and all outriders. We thank you for your time, hard work and dedication.

HRU FOAL OF THE WEEK

Joe Di Nicola

This Deweycheatumnhowe colt out of Cherry Lane, seen with his owner and breeder Joe Di Nicola, was foaled on May 2 in New Jersey. The colt, who is also owned by Christine Di Nicola, is the fourth foal out of Cherry Lane, a daughter of Lindy Lane—Keystone Scarlett. Cherry Lane's first foal, a Crazy gelding named Cherry Cola, earned $31,072. Cherry Lane's most recent foal is the third of hers sired by 2008 Hambletonian winner Deweycheatumnhowe.

Stimulated

by Trey Nosrac

Morning sunlight slid across his front porch. Our 10-foot personal space between white rattan rocking chairs served as an awkward reminder of these troubled times.

I cleared my throat and spoke the line I had rehearsed, “David, you gotta take me off your payroll. These days, a personal driver is the poster child for non-essential personnel.”

He gave a dismissive wave, “Your salary does not even make the top 100 things on my mind.” He flipped his thumb over his shoulder and said, “My mom is number one, over 80, and heart surgery last year.”

“Paying me is silly, I’ll be glad to ride around and annoy you for nothing.”

He smiled and said, “Money gets less and less important every day.”

“Yeah, you might have made the one per cent club for nothing.”

“You scared?” he asked.

I let out a sigh. “Sure, the friggin Corona thing sticks in Trey’s head as I’m wandering around my crib in a ratty bathrobe like a third rate Lebowsky while a fruit basket full of garbage pops into my brain — like did I wash my hands when I twisted off the cap off the last Labatt’s, or how come I didn’t smell that rotten banana sitting on the sink where I self-cut my hair so it looks like Michael Keaton in Beetlejuice?”

He scrunched up his face and said, “That sentence was a fruit basket full of poor grammar, third person, mixed metaphors, exaggeration, pathos, profanity, and references to fictional characters.”

I shrugged, “Not having baseball is killing me.”

“Racing?”

“I’m just glad it’s crawling back, it’s in my DNA. To me, racing has a leg up on other sports.”

He replied, “A little normalcy in the sporting world would go a long way for morale. I’m afraid everyone will be hyper nervous. A single outbreak will be one too many, and things could snowball. The public almost has to factor in that more bad stuff will happen. It’s a complicated balancing act.”

“I’ll tell you something weird, I got skin in the racing game, a training bill for horse ready to qualify, a yearling going to the sale and one just born. But so far, I’m surprisingly calm. A lifetime of rough racing waters has been good practice for viral Armageddon. Every day I’m just glad not to wake up dead.”

“You’re a member of a hearty bunch,” he said.

“Horse racing people are ridiculously optimistic and pessimistic at the same time. We are dreamers where most of the dreams don’t come true.”

David took a sip of his coffee and said, “My problem is that I hate not being able to DO anything. So, in addition to giving yourself bad haircuts, how are you killing time?”

“Mailing strange little checks, and since you don’t even have the good sense to downsize me, I may send out a few more.”

“Did you get a stimulus check?” he asked.

“Yeah, that money had to go.”

“Go where?” he asked.

“Loose grease always goes to good places, that is one of Trey’s rules.”

“What does that mean?”

“Anytime an unexpected, unearned windfall of cash lands in my lap, it’s going right back out the door. I believe that bad karma will visit if I don’t spend any money that falls from the sky. The stimulus check fell into this category. I still don’t know why I got the dang money.”

He nodded and said, “Stimulation isn’t one of your problems.”

“Exactly. Hell, my problem has always been over-stimulation. Unplanned money falling into my lap is rare. It’s also tricky. I treat the cash as carefully as a newborn baby.”

He cocked his head and said, "I'm still a little confused."

"Say that I hit a tri for more than a hundred; the best part of winning that cash is always the next few days. I take my girl to a real nice, family-run restaurant, order off the top of the menu, and leave a big tip. If I have any cash left over, I go to my corner breakfast joint the next morning and pick up the tab for the whole place and sneak out the door. My favorite part of a big score is splashing the money around."

"Who are the beneficiaries of your stimulus?" he asked.

"People that might depend on me, especially during virus times."

"A potted plant shouldn't depend on you."

"True, all my flowers are plastic, but I still have the occasional casualty. The virus shows us how fragile everything is and how much we need each other. Everybody has a list of stuff that can disappear in a heartbeat."

He said, "Want to share your list?"

"Public radio, public television, and little local outfits. I subscribe to stuff just because they needed a push, magazines, newspapers, struggling artists. You can find places all day long."

"Anonymously?"

"Always. The karma doesn't work if you run your mouth. Just send a note that says, thanks for what you do, and ask them to keep things confidential."

"Horse racing?"

"I have a few websites and podcasts that are sort of obscure. The light stays on because they love the sport, or the niche, or the passion. That includes a few good harness racing websites, or the people at Trot and Pace Marketing who video the fairs and qualifiers and post them, or the backstretch ministries, or horse rescue outfits. Slipping a few bucks of karma money to unsuspecting places always makes me smile like a monkey who woke up in a banana tree."

He nodded. "That's good medicine, we all should do it, and it shouldn't take a cataclysmic event."

"Not good medicine... good karma."

Pocono qualifiers signal racing's return; first pari-mutuel card June 20

After a 95-day absence due to the virus pandemic, the trotters and pacers were again in competition over the famed red 5/8-mile oval at The Downs at Mohegan Sun Pocono on Saturday (June 13), with 16 qualifying races restarting the season.

Coming out red hot was trainer Gilbert Garcia-Herrera, who won with half of the 10 horses he started. Perennial Pocono driving champion George Napolitano Jr. guided four of the five Garcia-Herrera charges to victory – and he was second driving another Garcia-Herrera horse in the one other triumph for the sharp barn.

The most impressive winning equine of the day was one who had just been acquired by his connections seven days before. The 6-year-old American Ideal gelding Uffizi, a three-quarter brother to $1.6 million-winning world champion Artspeak, came uncovered from fifth for driver

Billy Carter, brushed to the lead after pacing his third quarter in :27.3, and went on to a 1:53 victory, justifying the faith in the well-bred pacer shown by trainer Neal Ehrhart and owner Jonathan Lapp Jr.

Pocono will be holding qualifiers this week at 10 a.m. on Tuesday (2-year-olds) and Wednesday (all ages of horses).

The 2020 pari-mutuel season, interrupted after 12 cards by health restrictions, will resume a week from today (June 20). Pocono will race on Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. as it reopens, forming an afternoon seven-day bloc with the horsemen's association's "sister track," Harrah's Philadelphia, which will race on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Sunday at 12:40 p.m.

Sophomore fillies featured in Ohio Sires Stakes action at Scioto

The Ohio Sires Stakes (OHSS) started off with a bang Friday night (June 12) as McMarkle Sparkle and driver Brett Miller cruised to a new Scioto Downs track record clocking of 1:50.1 for 3-year-old pacing fillies in the first of two $50,000 contests for state-bred sophomore pacing fillies.

Leaving the gate at odds of 7-5, McMarkle Sparkle overtook the leading 3-2 Beautiful Beach (Aaron Merriman), who began tiring quickly at the 1:22.4 three-quarter marker, leaving 15-1 rival Artful Dancer (Danny Noble) in a cloud of dust as she scored her first victory of the season.

Penpaperpaige (Tyler Smith) got up for third as the 4-1 choice. McMarkle Sparkle is trained by Jim Arledge, Jr. for owners/breeders Laura L. and Paul R. Baker. The brown McArdele—It's Ladies Nite filly now has $138,826 in career earnings.

PJ's Legacy, who captured the $75,000 Consolation for 2-year-old pacing fillies in 2019, swept to a 1:52 front-stepping triumph in the second OHSS pacing division for driver Ryan Stahl as the 2-5 choice. Trained by Brian Brown for Brown, Hutchinson, Ridder and Kantrowitz, the bay daughter by Big Bad John out of Walstan's Lady bested a fast-closing 2-1 Ellagator (Ronnie Wrenn, Jr.) by a head, with 10-1 longshot Hoochie Girl (Kayne Kauffman) getting up for third. Bred by Kentuckian Walter Fister, PJ's Legacy now has $153,170 in her bankroll.

Kikimora, the 8-5 favorite, continued her winning ways by taking the first of three $40,000 OHSS trotting events in 1:54.1, scoring for driver Aaron Merriman by three-quarters of a length over 3-5 A Fancy Face (Chris Page). Trained by co-owner Chris Beaver for co-owner/breeder Sandra Burnett, the daughter of Triumphant Caviar, out of the Chip Chip Hooray mare Nessa Rose, captured the $300,000 Championship for 2-year-old filly trotters last season and now has $231,516 in her career coffers. Lima Gold (Ronnie Wrenn, Jr.) picked up third-place money at odds of 9-1.

Guinevere Hall was much the best, capturing the second trotting division in 1:55 and racing on the front end nearly every step of the way with Peter Wrenn driving for his wife, trainer Melanie Wrenn. The daughter of Cash Hall out of Garbo Hall, who was bred by Alan J. Leavitt of Kentucky, picked up her fourth career win in her 2020 debut as the 6-5 choice. Uncle Peters Love (Brett Miller) was second at 2-1, with 14-1 Compass Rose DC third for Trace Tetrack. Guinevere Hall now has $151,181 in her lifetime bankroll.

Globetrotting, who was making her seasonal debut for trainer Jason McGinnis and Thestableglobetrotting, did not disappoint her backers as the 4-5 favorite, using front-end tactics to emerge triumphant in 1:55.1. Trace Tetrack was in the sulky behind the big brown daughter of Manofmanymissions—Celebrity Deville, who was bred by Steiner Stock Farm, as she picked up her fifth career victory and upped her career earnings to $171,582. Tootie (Brett Miller) was second at 3-1 with 5-1 Hometown Honey (Tyler Smith) notching third-place honors.

Three-year-old fillies will battle in OHSS Leg 2 on June 27 at Northfield Park. Foals are eligible to the rich Ohio Sires Stakes program based on their breeding, as their sire must be registered with the Ohio State Racing Commission (OSRC) during year of conception.

NYSS revised 2020 schedule is released

The New York Sire Stakes (NYSS) has released the complete and revised schedule for the 2020 racing season. Two-year-olds will begin with filly pacers on July 4 at Vernon Downs. As previously announced, 3-year-old events get underway June 21 at Tioga Downs. A full schedule can be found at: nysirestakes.com.

All dates are pending New York State Gaming Commission approval at the individual raceways and are subject to alterations as racing, operating and regulatory conditions change. The NYSS will notify horseman as soon as possible if any changes occur.

"It's an exciting step to release the revised schedule for our 2020 season," said Kelly Young, executive director of the Agriculture and New York State Horse Breeding Development Fund. "We appreciate the patience of all our participants as we worked through many uncertainties and continue to address challenges as they emerge. We understand there are still many things that could change over the next few months, but this schedule reflects the best information we have at this time. We will continue to work with the state's racetracks to stay as close to this schedule as possible if changes are necessary or if a track cannot accommodate an event."

The NYSS would like to thank the management and staff at each track for their cooperation and assistance in developing this schedule. The NYSS is a partnership between the state, the horsemen and the raceways and we were inspired to see the collaborative spirit among all involved to help solidify the 2020 calendar.

Changes for the upcoming season have been approved by the Trustees of the Fund to address the shortfall in revenue due to the extended track closures. The NYSS and Excelsior

NYSS and Excelsior A & B legs will be raced the same day. However, the SS Finals will only be for eligible Sire Stakes horses and the EXC Final will only be for eligible Excelsior A horses. The Empire Breeders Classic (EBC) events require separate staking payments.

**Dates subject to New York State Gaming Commission approval. This schedule is subject to change. Any changes in racing dates or locations will be posted at www.nysirestakes.com. Check back during the season to ensure the most up-to-date schedule. Refer to individual tracks for draw schedules and COVID racing requirements.****

Series will host five legs for each of the age, gait and sex divisions. Purses for each leg will be maintained at a level very similar to last year.

Excelsior purses remain the same for both the A and B levels ($15,000 and $6,000 plus starting fees, respectively) with no Excelsior events raced at Goshen Historic Track this year.

NYSS Finals on the Night of Champions, Excelsior Finals and County Fair Finals purses will remain at their previously announced levels of $225,000, $50,000 and $10,000, respectively, per division. There will be no Sire Stakes Consolation events this year.

An update on the County Fair schedule is slated to be announced in the coming week. The first racing date is slated for July 9 and the Finals are still planned for the Labor Day weekend. The publication of the County Fair Racing Schedule booklet has been delayed as dates and procedures are confirmed with participating fairs, but will be available in print and digital form as soon as details are finalized.

Graduate Series begins at Tioga tonight

Tioga Downs will play host to the first Grand Circuit stakes of the 2020 season when the first trotting leg of the Graduate Series comes to town tonight (June 14).

Thirteen declarations split into two $50,000 divisions carded as races 11 and 12 on the 15-race extravaganza.

Gimpanzee (Brian Sears) will face five rivals as he makes the Graduate his first start of his 4-year-old campaign for trainer Marcus Melander and Swedish owners Courant, Inc. and SRF Stable. The son of Chapter Seven closed out his sophomore season powerfully with wins in the Yonkers Trot, NYSS Final and Breeders Crown to vault past $1 million in 2019 earnings.

The second split will feature trotting "Girl Power" as top mares Grand Swan and Pure Chance invade to the Empire State with powerful mid-west resumes.

Melander and Sears team up again to send out Grand

Swan, who cashed in for over $400,000 by dominating the Indiana program last year for owners Never Too Late Stable, Grand Swan Racing, Soulsby and Weisenberg.

Pure Chance (Aaron Merriman) parlayed multiple wins in the Ohio Sires Stakes program with a few Grand Circuit scores into nearly a quarter million dollars in earnings for trainer Chris Beaver who shares ownership with Steven Zeelandar.

Tioga will host the first leg of the Graduate Series for pacers on a card that includes the $175,000e Roll With Joe Open Pace and the opening leg of the 2020 New York Sires Stake for 3-year-old trotting fillies.

The Graduate Series moves to The Meadowlands for leg #2 for the trotters on June 27, leg #2 for pacers on July 4 and both $250,000 finals on July 11 at The Meadowlands on Meadowlands Pace elimination night.

The live racing schedule at Tioga throughout the month of June is Sunday and Monday with a 4 p.m. post time.

Help identify this horse for SRF

The Standardbred Retirement Foundation, (SRF) is asking for information to help identify this horse, and the names of anyone who may have any connection to him recently.

This horse is a gelding, about 17 hands tall, all bay except for a few white hairs on his head. He is about 13 years old, has a roman nose, and a scarred hoof and coronet band. His tattoo was adulterated, either burned or cut out.

There is a scar on his right hind leg, as well as the remains of his tattoo after receiving medical care. SRF found this standardbred tagged to ship for slaughter in Pennsylvania just last week. A DNA test will be conducted, but it will take time to perform. This is a cruel act. All information and help is appreciated for this animal.

If you have any information, your identity will be kept confidential. Please call Tammy, (609) 738-3255, or email SRFHorsesandkids@gmail.com.

Chrome shines in feature; Pick-6 pays $39K at Big M

Southwind Chrome needed every inch of the stretch to take the Friday night feature at the Meadowlands, which made one simulcast player in Canada very happy, as he or she walked away with the only winning 20-cent Pick-6 ticket, which was worth $39,243.

The Jeff Cullipher-trained Southwind Chrome, no stranger to the Meadowlands winner's circle having won two straight at the mile track in December, was the figure horse in the preferred for trotters off a superb second-place finish to Manchego one week ago, when the super mare went the fastest trotting mile of the year in the sport of 1:50.3.

Despite that, it was the Ron Burke-schooled Mission Accepted who was sent to the gate as the even-money public choice, and driver Yannick Gingras had that one on the lead at the half in :54.3. At that point, Scott Zeron moved Southwind Chrome out of the six-hole and started to make his way toward the leader.

"It looked in the program like all of the inside horses would be leaving the gate," said Zeron. "So I opted to race from off the pace. First up from sixth is no easy trip but he really toughed it out."

Zeron and 'Chrome' were just a length-and-a-quarter behind the leader at three-quarters after making steady progress around the far turn, setting the stage for a cutthroat stretch duel.

Through the lane, it looked like Southwind Chrome poked a head in front at the eighth pole before Mission Accepted came back determinedly to get a slight edge with a 16th to go only to have Southwind Chrome have one final surge right before the wire to prevail by a nose in 1:51.

"That would be a good explanation [of what happened through the stretch]," said Zeron. "He really battled. Jeff [Cullipher] is aiming him for the [July 4] Cutler. His form is impeccable right now."

A 5-year-old son of Chapter Seven—Counter Pointe, Southwind Chrome returned $4.60 as the 6-5 second choice for owners Pollack Racing and Jeff Cullipher. He now has 12 wins from 35 lifetime starts and earnings of $218,960.

The giant Pick-6 payout started from a modest $6,843 carryover and was keyed in the first leg by a longshot as the Eric Abbatiello-trained and driven Broadway Bruiser left the gate quickly in the fourth race, worked out a pocket trip and then charged through the inside late to record a 40-1 upset. The middle four legs of the wager were won by 'haveable' horses, whose odds were 5-1, 2-1, 2-1 and 1-2, respectively.

A LITTLE MORE: A formful night of racing saw seven favorites click on the 13-race program. Overall, 10 races were won by horses whose odds were 2-1 or less... Ten different drivers visited the winner's circle with Gingras leading the way with three victories while Tim Tetrick scored twice... Wagering at the Big M remained remarkably consistent as a total of $2,650,358 was pushed through the windows, upping the streak of programs with wagering of at least $2.5 million to 10... Racing resumes Saturday at 7:15 p.m.

So Much More and MacDonald strike in mares preferred

So Much More and driver James MacDonald flipped the script this week to capture Friday's $32,000 mares preferred at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

A field of eight older pacing mares clashed in the feature race with all eyes on last week's dominant winner Boadicea, who was sent off as the 1-5 favorite.

Boadicea got front-end respect after surging out to the lead, posting fractions of :27.1, :55.4 and 1:23.3. So Much More, who finished second last week, started a first-up bid from fifth racing into the far turn.

In the stretch, Boadicea couldn't repeat last week's performance when trying to kick clear. So Much More continued to grind away and wore down the leader to power by late for the victory. Kendall Seelster came through for a runner-up finish, while Boadicea settled for third. Sylph Hanover was fourth.

"She just surprises me every time she races," said MacDonald of So Much More. "Boadicea is such a good mare, (I) just hoped to work out a trip and give her a good race down the lane. She overcame a bad trip and is all guts."

A 4-year-old, So Much More has been putting together a strong campaign, now holding a record of five wins and eight top-three finishes in 11 starts this season. Friday's victory pushes her over $100,000 for the season.

So Much More is trained by Don Beatson, who shares ownership with Ken Beatson and Cole England. She is now a 24-time winner in her career with $353,730 in earnings.

A $2 win ticket on So Much More returned $9.20.

MacDonald's victory with So Much More gave him three for the evening and eight overall this week at Mohawk Park. The former World Driving champion noted that momentum is a big factor in success.

"Any driver will say the same thing, when you're hot you're hot and when you're cold, you're ice cold."

Music video filmed at Woodbine supports racehorse after care

Thursday night, Canadian country duo The Reklaws debuted a special music video for their hit single, "Where I'm From" on national television in Canada.

The Reklaws partnered with Woodbine Entertainment to record a new video for the acoustic version of "Where I'm From" at Woodbine Racetrack and a local breeding farm which aired on TSN as part of the premiere of Racing Night Live.

The video will help raise funds and awareness for the racehorse aftercare programs LongRun Thoroughbred Retirement Society and Ontario Standardbred Adoption Society. The fund-raising campaign was launched with a $2,500 donation to each of the aftercare organizations by Woodbine Entertainment CEO, Jim Lawson.

3-year-old colts smoke in OHSS action at Northfield

Yanks Dugout took a front-end journey to capture the first of two $50,000 Ohio Sires Stakes (OHSS) for 3-year-old trotting sires on Saturday evening (June 13) at MGM Northfield Park. Driven by Kurt Sugg, the dark brown gelded son of Triumphant Caviar was much the best as the 6-5 choice and recorded a new life mark of 1:54.1 with his seventh career victories in as many tries this year.

Trained by Edward Miller, Yanks Dugout upped his career earnings to $46,333 for owners Ivan and Duke Sugg of Dreshler, OH, who also bred the gelding. Wading Boots (Chris Page) was second best at 7-5, one and a quarter lengths behind the winner, with 5-1 Expect The Sweep third for Aaron Merriman.

Yanks Dugout is the fourth foal out of the prolific Muscles Yankee mare Yansky 3, 1:57f ($122,127) and has half-siblings in Yanks Ball Girl (by Majestic Son) 4, 1:57f ($60,722); Fashion Can Do It (by Cantab Hall) 3, 1:58.1f ($30,030); and Yanks DJ (by Dejarbro) 2, Q2:04.3f ($5,509).

In the second $50,000 OHSS division for trotters Action Uncle set a new Northfield Park track record for 3-year-old trotters of 1:53.2 with a perfect steer from driver Brett Miller. Trained by Virgil Morgan, Jr., the son of Uncle Peter left the gate at 1-2 odds and upped his career earnings to $256,075 for owners Carl Howard, Joyce McClelland and Larry Wills. Action Uncle finished well ahead of second-place finisher 9-5 It's Academic (Chris Page) with Buxton (Danny Noble) putting in a game performance to be third. Bred by Kenneth Sommer, Action Uncle is the first foal out of the Broadway Hall mare Action-Broadway 4, 1:52.3 ($1,102,073).

Haggard got up in the final strides for driver Ryan Stahl and trainer Scott Cox to capture the first $50,000 OHSS test for 3-year-old pacers in a new career clocking of 1:53. The large black gelding by Big Bad John was bred by Spring Haven Farm and is owned by Parent Racing Stable of Whitehouse, OH. Haggard, who finished half a length in front of 2-1 Mr Wiggle It (Ronnie Wrenn, Jr.), left the gate at 5-1 odds, while 16-1 longshot Epic Ace (Danny Noble) got up for third.

Haggard now has $36,475 in his coffers from four wins in six career starts. He is the eighth foal out of the unraced Dragon Again mare Tura Hanover and is a full brother to Angry Shelby p, 3, 1:54.1f ($62,530) and a half-brother to: Town Temptress (by Artiscape) p, 5, 1:51.3 ($305,008); All Turain (by Tell All) p, 4, 1:52.2h ($127,138); and Tural Lural Lural (by The Panderosa) p, 4, 1:53.1f ($124,259), etc.

Sandra Burnett's homebred bay gelding Ocean Rock demolished his competition in 1:50.2 in the second $50,000 OHSS contest for sophomore sidewinders. Driven by Danny Noble for trainer Christi Noble, the son of Rockin Amadeus cruised to victory after leading at every pole as the 1-2 choice. Standford Court (Ronnie Wrenn, Jr.) was second at 7-2 with 4-1 Can Be Perfect (Tyler Smith) getting up for third. Ocean Rock now sports a bankroll of $187,377 lifetime. He is the first foal out of the On The Attack mare Ocean Pearl p, 5, 1:53.2f ($143,637). Three-year-old colts return to battle in OHSS Leg 2 on June 26 at Scioto Downs.

Moore rules with Saturday grand slam at Mohawk

O'Brien Award winner Century Farroh and Pepsi North America Cup eligible Tattoo Artist led the way as part of a four-win night for trainer Dr. Ian Moore on Saturday at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

The Moore barn sent out four starters and all four came back winners.

Century Farroh and driver Sylvain Filion made the top in the second-quarter of the $36,000 preferred. The 4-year-old got sensible fractions and sprinted home in :26.4 to hold off Wheels On Fire and Matticulous GB by a neck.

A Grand Circuit winner last season, Century Farroh was making his second start of the season and had to leave from the outside post-nine in a field 10, leaving him parked for the opening three-eighths. He overtook the lead from Matticulous GB, who gave a serious push in the lane, while Wheels On Fire sat behind the lead pair and charged home on the outside to finish second.

A son of Mach Three—Beachy Girl, Century Farroh is now a 17-time winner with over $800,000 earned for owners Ratchford Stable NS. The Ontario Sires Stakes (OSS) graduate won 12 of 16 last year, helping him earn the O'Brien Award as Canada's three-year-old colt pacer of the year.

Century Farroh, who finished second in his season debut, was the public's top-choice and returned $4.90 to win.

The preferred victory was the second of the night for Moore and kicked-off a natural hat-trick.

Sophomores Denali Seelster and Tattoo Artist followed up their stablemate with victories. Both are eligible to the Pepsi North America Cup.

Sent off at odds of 17-1, Tattoo Artist ($37.90) and driver Bob McClure blasted from post-nine and never looked back to win by six lengths in a career-best 1:50. The son of Hes Watching—Stylish Artist was last year's OSS Super Final champion and was making his second start of the season. He now has six wins and $254,325 in career earnings for Frank Cameron and Let It Ride Stables Inc.

Denali Seelster ($7.50) also took care of business on the front-end, scoring in 1:51.1 with Filion in the sulky. The son of Sunshine Beach—Demi Seelster was also making his second start of the season and is now a three-time winner. His career earnings are $121,220 for Ratchford Stables NS.

The first win of the evening for Moore came from five-year-old Casimir Richie P ($5, Astronomical—Casimir Hugs), who posted a 1:49.3 victory for driver Doug McNair. A rare 5-year-old in Moore's barn, Casimir Richie P was second in his season debut a week ago and now has 17 career wins to go with $287,553 in earnings for Moore and Michael Goldberg.

Live racing resumes Monday evening at Woodbine Mohawk Park. Post time is 7 p.m.
