Walner filly Wall To Wall, from the Preferred consignment, topped the second session with a bid of $525,000 from Nancy Takter.

(*Editor's note: Due to a software problem after Wednesday's sale session ended we are unable to bring you the stats pages for the sale at this time. All the pertinent numbers are in this story and, if possible, we will publish 2nd and 3rd night statistics in the Friday, Oct. 8 issue.)

The Lexington Selected Yearling Sale remained on a torrid, record pace through its second session held Wednesday (Oct. 6) at the Fasig-Tipton sales pavilion.

The sale set records for second-session gross ($17,927,000), average ($84,164) and six-figure yearlings (61) and has also established new two-day standards for gross ($36,467,000), average ($111,180) and $100,000+ yearlings (130).

"It was a very consistent marketplace both nights and to come in here tonight and average $85,000 over 213 horses, it's a testament to the breeders again and the quality of the horses that are here," said the sale's co-manager David Reid.

"We've said it before, the depth of our catalogue with the sire power and the maternal power I think that's why you're seeing these results. It's deep and strong. We have more to offer the rest of the week. It's really exciting and gratifying, on behalf of the whole entire staff. We're looking forward to it.

"We're at $36 million in gross. In 2019, through two nights we were at $31 million. We sold a few more horses tonight, but the average... we're averaging, for the two nights, $111,000 for 328 horses. That's healthy."

The second session in 2020 produced a gross of $11,171,000 and an average of $61,718 for 181 yearlings sold. The 2019 second session produced a gross of $13,068,000 and an average of $75,103 for 181 yearlings sold.

The previous record for the second session gross and average was set in 2018 when it grossed $13,651,000 and averaged $83,748.

Sixty-one yearlings sold for at least $100,000 on Wednesday, compared to 31, 40 and 36 that hit six-figures in 2020, 2019 and 2018, respectively, during the second session.

LYONS SERENITY p,2,1:52-'21 ($181,842)

This recent winner of the $200,000 Kentuckiana was sold by Preferred Equine in last year's 4th session at Lexington Selected for $35,000. Preferred sells more stakes winners than any other consignor — and they come from every session and in every price range. Find yours today!

PREFERRED EQUINE MARKETING

SHOWING 8:30 A.M. BARNS 1 & 2
VIDEOS & PEDIGREE UPDATES

Through two days, this year's auction has seen 328 yearlings sold for a total gross of $36,467,000 and an average of $111,180. In 2020, the two-day total for gross was $26,408,000 and the average was $88,321 for 299 sold. In 2019, the two-day gross was $31,274,000 and the average was $107,103.

The median through two days is $80,000. It was $65,000 through two days in 2020, $75,000 through two days in 2019 and $85,000 through the first two sessions in 2018.

This year, 130 yearlings have sold for $100,000 or more through two sessions up from 91 in 2020 and 108 in 2019.

Wednesday's session, which started at 3 p.m., ended around 10:15 p.m.

In 2020, the nighttime session that started at 7 p.m. ended around 12:20 a.m.

Kentuckiana's Bob Brady said the sale, through two nights has, "just been fantastic" with consistent results throughout the second session. He said opening night had, "big highs with a 25 per cent increase in the average... and there's a lot of prices in the $100,000 range and up. I'm actually happier (with the second session) than I was opening day because there's more of a level market. It's been good, the enthusiasm has been great. I definitely think that the news about the Kentucky program has really helped spur the market because people know they have a lot of options to get out and to make money."

Kentuckiana, the second leading consignor by gross sales on night two ($2,443,000) and third overall through two nights ($4,305,000) is selling a lot of Father Patrick yearlings this year.

"I think people realized that this is the crop he had after Greenshoe's 2-year-old year and they all bred back to Father Patrick," Brady said. "A lot of high-quality mares went back to him, so this group of yearlings is actually as good or better than the first-year crop and I think the buyers recognize that and they are giving a fair dollar for them. We're happy."

PACING FILLIES REMAIN STRONG

Overall, Brady said he is surprised with the strength of the pacing fillies, which averaged $109,515 through two sessions and rank only behind trotting fillies in average ($129,191) through two nights.

"They have been tremendously strong," Brady said of the pacing fillies. "So, if I'm surprised, I'm surprised by that. It's the market we kind of expected, but... I wasn't expecting so many $500,000 yearlings, that's also been a very pleasant surprise."

Trainer Tony Alagna said a strong market for pacing fillies is, "a great indicator for the business. They used to give them away and now people are buying them and thinking about what they are going to do. If you follow the Brittany Farms philosophy that's how they built their broodmare band, by buying tremendous yearling fillies and thinking about what they were worth if they didn't make it to the racetrack... what could they contribute to the broodmare band. Nobody can say anything negative about what Brittany has done in this business, that's for sure."

SESSION TOPPER BRINGS $525,000

Hip 268 Wall To Wall topped Wednesday's session with a bid of $525,000 from Nancy Takter. The Walner filly out of Pearl Axe it was consigned by Reid's Preferred Equine, the leading consignor by gross sales ($4,027,000) during the second session. Through two nights, Preferred sits second in gross sales ($5,326,000) to Hunterton ($5,488,000).

Preferred and Lindy Farms of Connecticut bred Wall To Wall. The filly was raised at Lindy Farms.

"We're fortunate to represent a lot of breeders and small breeders," Reid said, "So, this is a big week for them. The fall is an important time. For the most part, I'm very satisfied. There were some pockets early on... trying to figure out what we did wrong to potentially improve for the future but the marketplace is going to dictate. They are the judge and the jury and you've just got to learn from it and go forward.

"I think overall I'm not going to complain, you just keep trying to get better every year.

As for what Takter liked about Wall To Wall, she said, "She's a Walner, very well put together. Lindy Farms does a great job raising their horses, so you know you're buying a good quality product. She's got an interesting pedigree, being European on the dam side. Hopefully, some of that European flair with the Walner will make her super-fast, super strong and she'll be really good next year."

Through two days, Takter is the sale's leading buyer. She has spent $2,747,000, total, to purchase 11 yearlings.

"I pretty much bought everything that I planned on coming to buy and then a couple of extra," she said, laughing. "You have to have horses or else you're not going to have horses to race next year.

"I was really happy that we got some of the pacers. We got a Lazarus filly [hip 146, Canadian Ballet $105,000] that I was pretty happy about – sister to See You At Peelers. I think Lazarus is going to do very well and she's dual eligible so that helps. There aren't that many of them in New Jersey, so you can race in the New Jersey Sires Stakes from the beginning. Hopefully, we can make some money early. She was a beautiful filly.

"We got some Tactical Landings that were nice. I think the Tactical Landings have been very well priced right now and I'm kind of happy that I'm getting in right now, because I think they'll be more expensive next year.

"Of course, you have to be a little bit careful with an unproven stallion because you don't know what you're getting, but in Tactical Landings case they are beautiful individuals and they seem to have a lot of power in their gait, if you watch their videos, when they turn up the field. I'm happy with the ones that I bought."

HEIMBECKER ULTRA GAME

Owner Steve Heimbecker is the sale's second leading buyer through two sessions. The Ontario resident has spent $2,342,000, total, to purchase 19 yearlings – eight on day one and 11 during the second session.

"For me, it's about numbers this year. I bought the highest-priced filly in North America last year for $375,000, Lightnier, and changed the name to The Big Hen. You can spend a lot of money, but I think it's about value. These are the best horses and I believe this is the best sale. I've got a lot of friends here that I haven't seen in a long time, so I think you mix everything together – everyone is trying to buy some horses and they haven't seen each other in a while, so I think it's the perfect storm," Heimbecker said.

Ontario's Steve Heimbecker is the sale's second leading buyer through two sessions. He's spent $2,342,000 to purchase 19 yearlings.

"We weren't here last year so that means something. A lot of the stuff I bought last year, I never saw... there's nothing like being here and I think there's a little... pent up buying power right now and that's the best way to put it because I really believe that coming from Canada or driving down to the U.S., people want to get things back to normal and I think everyone was here tonight. I look around and everything is full.

"It's good for the business and I think the prices were good. I think a lot of money was spent on really nice horses. I don't think there were a lot of miscues and I think people that are buying on day one and day two know what they are doing.

"I came in and I wanted deals and I wanted value, but it doesn't always work out that way.

"I wanted to buy more. My hand was up and I got outbid on a few of them. I did try for more, but I do think what's going on in the business is really good. New York is going to open up some more legs, there's more money in Kentucky right now. This place is amazing and I love it down here. They've got $18 million in purses and a lot of the purse stuff is going the right way."

As for where the horses will land, Heimbecker said, "There's a couple of horse that I bought with Julie (Miller) that will be split up, but the others I go 100 per cent on. There's some really nice horses that I bought with John Fielding, who is a good friend of mine, and they are with Nancy Takter. Hopefully, we'll have some luck there."

ALAGNA, JACOBS GO BIG

Alagna is the sale's third leading buyer through two days. He has spent $2,089,000, in all, to take home 16 yearlings.

"I think that most of the people that I'm working for would rather pay a little bit more and get something they really like, rather than settle for something they don't like as well," Alagna said. "We always support our stallions, so the Captaintreacherous fillies we bought, we don't mind going the extra on them, especially if they have Kentucky (eligibility).

"We were active buying Stay Hungrys as well. We want to support that horse. We still have a couple that we bought for value, you know, a $30,000 pacing filly and a trotting colt for $50,000, so we're still shopping for value, but most of my guys will overpay for something they really like.

Ken Jacobs, who owned and raced Walner before syndicating him as a stallion, purchased a $620,000 Walner colt (hip 54 Earthquake Bi) during Tuesday's opening session. On Wednesday, he bought Walner filly Singeth With Joy (hip 264) for $510,000 from Hunterton.

"Now, I'm set. I got a filly and I got a colt and I think those are the top ones in the sale," Jacobs said. "When you've got a horse of this calibre, you know you're going to overspend, but you just don't know by how much.

"Conformation, video, bloodline... I do a lot of research before."

Jacobs said Singeth With Joy would go to trainer Chris Ryder.

"I take care of all my trainers and each one got a horse – Linda (Toscano), Tony (Alagna) and Chris. I try to just do the right thing by all of them," Jacobs said.

That the second session had two $500,000 yearlings impressed Reid.

"I think it's phenomenal. I was talking to a consignor before and 10 years ago if you sold one for $300,000 in a session you might be the sales topper for the sale," Reid said.

ANVIL AND LACE LEADING CONSIGNOR BY AVERAGE

Through two nights, Anvil and Lace is the leading consignor by average (with three or more yearlings sold) with an average of $237,500 for four sold. The farm ranks ahead of Concord Stud ($186,429 for seven sold), Hunterton ($171,500 for 32 sold) and Hanover Shoe Farms ($155,100 for 20 sold).

Hanover Shoe Farms vice-president Dr. Bridgette Jablonsky said before Wednesday's session started that she was pleased with the results from Hanover's first-night yearlings. It is the first time since 2015 that Hanover has sold in Lexington.

"We're very happy. It was a good night. I think most of the consignors, if not all of the consignors we're really happy," she said.

"There were some that brought a little less, but at the end of the day we averaged $178,000 and if you're not happy with that, there's something wrong I think. That's a great average.

"We made the decision to bring some of our high-end trotters here because of the stronger European presence here. They are here for the racing and... I think when owners see the horses themselves and are there when the bidding is going on versus on the phone or online, I do think you get a few more bids."

Reid said Hanover's decision to sell in Lexington has been very beneficial to the sale's bottom line.

"That's a $2 million dollar consignment... to inject into it, and we're up $4 million for the sale already."

WALNER STILL LEADING SIRE

Walner continued to impress on night two. The trotting stallion led all stallions on the night with gross sales of $3,406,000 for 25 yearlings and through two nights leads by gross ($7,283,000) and average ($169,372).

Captaintreacherous was second in gross on Wednesday alone ($2,984,000 for 29 yearlings) and is second through two nights in both gross ($6,141,000 for 43 yearlings) and average ($142,814).

Reid, Walner's syndicate manager, said, "You haven't seen a sire do what he's done as a 2-year-old. The statistics are very good. He seems to be siring classic horses and the public has jumped on board in a big way."

ONLINE BIDDING

As for online bidding, the Proxibid platform sold two horses on opening night, one for $90,000 and another for $260,000. On Wednesday, 13 were sold online for a total of $929,000. Online bidders were the underbidders on 14 yearlings on night two, totalling $1 million in bids.

"You see some new faces in every day and some other faces are leaving," Reid said. "So, you'll see a transition. I call tomorrow hump day, then Friday night session is a little shorter and Saturday night with fewer horses. To have two nights like this, it's very healthy for the industry and very exciting as well. I see no reason why the momentum won't carry on. More importantly, we want to sell winners, sell champions and we want to sell nice horses. That's what people are here for and we just want to help them fulfill their orders and their dreams."

STALLION CHARITY AUCTION A HIT

From the Breeders Crown:

The 'Breeding for a Cause' charity auction at Wednesday's Lexington Selected Yearling Sale saw eight of the most sought-after breedings in the sport bring a record total of $207,000 for the 'Breeders Crown Charity Challenge' pot.

The 2021 Challenge, presented by the Libfeld-Katz breeding partnership, is on track to outpace previous year's donations, Steven Head bid $15,000 to breed to 2020 Dan Patch divisional champion Perfect Sting when he eventually goes to stud. But the son of Always B Miki, to date the leading 2021 money-earning 3-year-old in the sport with over $800,000 in the bank, still has plenty of racing to do before it's time to head for the breeding shed.

Brad Grant spent a whopping $55,000 for a breeding to Walner, the sport's current trotting super-sire, whose offspring Exile was the sale topper on Opening Night after being sold for $800,000. Lucas Wallin signed as agent for the Chapter Seven slot at $27,000.

Kountry Lane Standardbreds dug deep, bringing home a Tall Dark Stranger breeding for $21,000 and came back for a Captaintreacherous booking at $27,000.

Blue Chip Bloodstock signed for the high-performance trotting sire Bar Hopping at $12,000, and Indian Mound Bloodstock of Lexington held out for a mating to Muscle Hill for $33,000.

A breeding to the red-hot Ohio pacing sire Downbytheseaside went home with Tom Fanning as agent for Dave Van Wart for $17,000.

Many thanks go out to breeding donors Hanover Shoe Farms and Dr. Bridgette Jablonsky, the Captaintreacherous Syndicate, Blue Chip Farm and Chapter Seven Syndicate, Adam Bowden of Diamond Creek Farms, Southwind Farm and Muscle Hill Syndicate, the Walner Syndicate and Brittany Farms and Val d'Or for their generous donations.

This year, the proceeds of the auction and the Breeders Crown Charity Challenge, which has raised over $400,000 in its first two years, will benefit the enCourage Kids Foundation (Team Miller), John Theurer Cancer Center (Team Dunn), New Jersey Pandemic Relief Fund (Team Gingras) and Special Olympics New Jersey (Team Tetrick).

The battle for the first-place check will go through Friday, Oct. 29, when the freshman Breeders Crown Finals are contested at The Meadowlands. Post time is 6:20 p.m. Winners and check presentations will take place Sat., Oct. 30, prior to the Breeders Crown 3-year-old and up Finals with an unprecedented post time of noon.

by DEAN TOWERS

Late odds changes in harness racing are no easy fix

The New York Racing Association has been banning computer assisted wagering near post time and fixed odds are beginning to be examined, but a path forward remains elusive.

by Dean Towers

Back in 1975 at Roosevelt Raceway, a racing patron waited patiently in line for his or her turn to bet. Their horse was a 5-2 shot, they got their bet down, and after the horse won, the lucky gambler would receive about $7. If they got $7.60, it would be like some sort of windfall.

Today, as we all know, it's not like that.

In the first race on Friday, Oct. 1 at the Red Mile, Anvil Hands looked to be a pretty decent bet at even money or 6-5, and that's exactly what the horse was as they moved behind the gate. Forty-five seconds later, faces met palms as he dropped to 1-5. In the second race, Dave Menary's World at War Deo was 9-5 at the gate, 4-5 at the half; in the third, Lyon's Serenity was even money, only to be 1-2 after the wings opened.

It's just the way it is in 2021, because it's how the tote system works. In the first race at the Red Mile on Friday, 59.2 per cent of money came in at zero minutes to post; in the second race, 44.6 per cent of cash came late. On average, at all harness tracks we can expect about four of every $10 to come after the word go.

The general consensus is that this money comes from the bogeymen and women called "Computer Assisted Wagers," (CAW) but in my view that's way too simplistic.

First, CAW teams bet more than one horse (especially in harness racing), because they are bringing the win pool into equilibrium. Second, there are sharps all over – at Xpressbet, Twinspires or HPI – that know Lyon's Serenity is not an even money horse, but much closer to 1-2 or 3-5. And third, although we often lament late odds drops when they win, we have to consider that they only win a part of the time. Lyon's Serenity was crushed late but lost, and backers of Boudoir Hanover cashed a $5 mutuel, up from 6-5 at one minute to post.

Regardless, this is a problem, and one entity on the thoroughbred side – the New York Racing Association (NYRA) – began banning CAW wagering after five minutes to post in late July.

Thus far the results are mixed. I independently analyzed several NYRA races during August and did notice less movement in the odds board from zero minutes to post. However, win pool handle, according to the Daily Racing Form, was down 12 per cent.

Both I think should be expected. It's rational and common sense to conclude that without big money coming in late to correct an odds board, things will be corrected earlier, and odds swings late will show much less variance. And, it's an immutable truth that the algorithms used by the wagering teams require real time board data to settle on their win pool bet choices (and sizes). Without this input, their edge (pennies to begin with) will be eroded. These teams simply don't bet at all, or lower their bet sizes appreciably.

In effect, to "fix" a problem with a win pool in 2021, meant the business probably took in less money.

Whatever the final results of the experiment, I think it's clear that simply banning money from a pool is not an optimal solution.

In harness racing, late odds shifts have become so commonplace that bettors seem to be immune to it all. This is exemplified with the significant handle growth in multi-leg wagers like the Pick 4 and 5. Again this is perfectly rational gambling behavior. If a bettor doesn't know if a horse is going to be even money (a 50 per cent chance at winning the race) or 1-5 (84 per cent chance), why would they bother? Ask a sports bettor if the New York Giants moving from +6.5 to +7.5 makes a difference. It does and it will attract millions of dollars to the opposite side. In racing we can't even see the sides.

At the present time, I fully expect things to muddle along because the fixes – a new tote system, fixed odds or exchanges – represent a brand-new paradigm that will cost time and money. The late odds shifts and the customer's decoupling from the win pool is the worst kind of business issue. It's a problem with no fix.

After 20 years, Winbak's Garrett Bell is trading Maryland for the Arizona desert

by Dave Briggs

Team Winbak is out in full force at the Lexington Selected Yearling Sale, but for the first time in nearly 20 years, a familiar face is missing — former farm general manager Garrett Bell, nephew of farm owner Joe Thomson.

On Sept. 11, Bell left Winbak to move cross country to be with his wife, Kerri Brodek, who has been living in Arizona for the last year-and-a-half caring for her parents who are in declining health. Originally, the plan was for Bell to leave Winbak in December after sale season concluded.

"She'd come back (to Maryland) for a month or so, but we've been away from each other for almost a year-and-a-half. I took her out with the dogs and all our stuff on the first of August and I was there for three weeks and it was heaven. It was my heaven and, on my way back, I was thinking, 'I've got to get back as soon as I can,'" said Bell, who, before starting at Winbak, lived in California for over a decade and enjoyed visiting Arizona.

"I just love the desert," he said, acknowledging it's a complete change of scenery from living in Maryland.

"My initial plan was to stay (at Winbak) until the end of December, but when I got back I talked to Joe and I said, 'I haven't been that happy in a long, long time and I've gotta go.' He understood. He was not happy about it, but he completely understood and supported me the whole time. Not only is he a great guy to work for, but he's an amazing uncle."

Thomson said Bell will be missed.

"He is a good guy with a lot of common sense and he was an anchor for us. Whenever there was a crisis, he was on top of it and he could deal with it without a lot of emotion or a lot of going crazy," Thomson said. "He's my nephew and we'll miss him. I'll miss him at the sales and I'll miss his day-to-day, the way he operated (Winbak). I wish him good luck out there. He's gone out there with his wife's family and so forth and I hope everything goes the way he wants it to."

Thomson said Jack Burke has taken over for Bell as general manager and is the main contact for farm matters.

"Believe it or not, (Burke) is my wife's nephew," Thomson said. "He's taking on a lot more responsibility, but (yearling manager) Jimmy (Ladwig), I don't think you can find a guy that's much better than Jimmy when it comes to raising yearlings."

Bell started at Winbak on Dec. 2, 2001. He said he would have liked to have stayed until Dec. 2 this year to officially mark 20 years with the farm, but ultimately decided, "What's two months? It's 20 years. I've been there 20 years."

He said he is most proud of the growth of Winbak over the last two decades and, "the teamwork of the people that work there. It's just incredible how we get along and how we get things done. Jim, the yearling manager, he's been doing it for 20 years. One of our vets, Sarah (Mackie), she's been here for 18 years. Our broodmare manager, Becky (Healey), she's been here for 10 or 15 years. So, it's just the team and the teamwork. That's what I'm most proud of, I think. All the accolades and all the horses we've put out there that have won, that's phenomenal and that's just proof in the pudding that we do work together well and get the job done. Having Joe and JoAnn as the leaders, they always kind of let us do our thing. Of course, they have day-to-day input, but they let us do our thing and it's just been great. It really has."

As for what comes next for Bell, it's as much of a departure as Arizona is from Maryland.

"We're going to wing it for a little while. My wife walks dogs and she's got a dog walking business out there, thanks to her parents.

Courtesy Garrett Bell

Bell started his woodcarving hobby by carving a few Krampus masks and then graduated to carving dogs.

Her parents live in a giant retirement community with 4,000 houses, so there's a lot of retired people who want somebody to walk their dogs. So, I'll be walking dogs and helping her out with the dogs and her parents.

"As far as a true job, I'll figure that out when I get there. I plan on doing my own woodcarving and woodworking," said Bell, who got hooked on woodworking some seven or eight years ago on a trip to Germany to visit his brother.

"We were there at Christmas time and they had all of these Krampus parades. They have these masks that are handmade and they are worth... well, they are really priceless because they are handed down from family to family to family. It's this huge thing. We were at this parade and we just had a blast and I said, 'I've got to try to make one of those' because I just loved it. So, I did and I didn't like the first one. So, I made another one and it was okay. I think I've made five of them, I think.

"My wife didn't like them because they creeped her out so I sold them all, which was good. I got a decent price for them. I started doing dog busts. I've done eight or 10 dogs and I sold some of those and given a lot of them away. So, that's what I'm going to try to do. And, I've always tinkered with making small side tables and things like that, so I'm going to be doing that, too. If I can make money at it, then great and I will and, if not, then I'll have to find a job. Who knows, maybe she and I can just walk enough dogs to get by."

It's a long way from running one of the largest standardbred farms in the world.

"Sometimes, I would sit back and think, 'Geez, I'm running a multi-national, worldwide company' and it just blew my mind. We've got the stallions in Australia and I'm talking to people in Australia. The contacts and the people that I've met and made – it's just incredible for me," Bell said.

As for leaving racing, Bell said it might not be forever.

"I heard not too long ago that Nevada is opening up a program or trying to open up a standardbred program. I heard that Arizona is probably going to try to lock on to Nevada, which is trying to do something with California. So, it would be like a tri-state deal. I'm thinking, 'Well, I'll be out there, so if people need anyone... Who knows what will happen? I might go out there and get right back into the standardbreds."

Ontario Standardbred Adoption Society celebrating 25th anniversary

by Sandra Snyder

The Ontario Standardbred Adoption Society's 25th anniversary racetrack tour wraps up this month with the final three stops at The Raceway at the Western Fair District on Friday (Oct. 8), Woodbine Mohawk Park on Saturday, Oct. 23 and Rideau Carleton Raceway on Thursday, Oct. 28.

"Every single racetrack that we've dealt with thus far, and we only have three more to go, has been excellent to deal with, and it's just so nice to see the level of support," said board member Heather MacKay Roberts. "The horses are the backbone of the industry, so it's so nice to see people wanting the horses to go on to have a secondary life that's as full of the love that they had when they were racing."

While pandemic restrictions prevented Ontario Standardbred Adoption Society (OSAS) volunteers from taking their full fundraising and promotion show on the road, each racetrack coordinated a 25th Anniversary race and awarded the winner a commemorative cooler and OSAS swag. (See all the winners here <https://www.osas.ca/our-news#OSASEVENTS>). The coolers and anniversary gear the winners will be sporting in paddocks across the province will be a continual reminder of the essential role OSAS has played within the industry for the last quarter century.

Spearheaded by former caretaker Anita TenBruggencate, with the assistance of then Ontario Harness Horse Association general manager Reed Lawson, OSAS was nurtured into existence by a collective of volunteers and has continued to receive support from a broad cross-section of the industry.

"The racetracks and the breeding farms are phenomenal. I can't say enough about people that continuously sponsor us," said long-time program administrator Joanne Colville. "We're always heavily backed by all sectors of our industry. They understand the importance of a program like ours."

The organisation receives a base level of funding that amounts to 15 per cent of one per cent of the gross purse pool, and Agribands Purina Canada is an ongoing sponsor, providing nine metric tonnes of feed each year. An annual golf tournament and online stallion auction round out the regular fundraising initiatives. In celebration of the 25th anniversary, Ontario Racing sponsored the creation of note cards by equine artist Michelle Hogan which feature OSAS equine ambassadors Hiltons Hot Stuff, Reverend Hanover, Ruff Me Up and The Painted Pony (<https://www.osas.ca/ambassador-cards>). There are also sweat-shirts and t-shirts available with the 25th anniversary logo.

That funding, along with one-time donations like the 2019 Breeders Crown challenge or in-memoriam gifts, allow OSAS to care for about 15 horses at a time. As horses are accepted into the program they are assessed at Colville's Moffat, ON farm before moving on to a foster home. Those that are able to undertake a second career then enter training programs at facilities operated by Shelley Higgins and Susan and Bert Mollica before being offered for adoption.

Potential adopters are carefully screened and Colville said she has increased her level of scrutiny over the last 18 months as applications surged during periods of pandemic-induced inactivity.

"I don't push them out the door as quick as some, because I am a little bit afraid of everybody returning to normal and then the horses being forgotten," said Colville. "So we try to check out and vet out as much as we can to save any repercussions at a later date if things turn around, or should we go into another complete lock down where people aren't working or what have you."

New horses enter the program in a fairly steady stream, and in spite of the extra care taken in processing adoption applications, several have recently found their post-racing homes, including millionaire retiree Easy Lover Hanover.

"We were real busy in the spring and then it settled down a little bit, and now we've got two on the waiting list right now so we're going to go and round them up within the next, I would say 10 days. We've had a couple more adoptions. Easy Lover Hanover was just adopted on the weekend. He got a really, really nice home," said Colville, who is also the outrider at Woodbine Mohawk Park. "So it's been busy. It's been very good, considering all the challenges."

In recent years Colville and her team of volunteers, including daughter Emma Christoforou, have shown off the versatility of their standardbreds at a wide variety of events, from trail rides to Extreme Cowboy contests. The organisation's new website (<https://www.osas.ca>), updated three years ago by Kathryn Patchett of patchwork design, and their social media channels feature horses succeeding in every area of equine pursuit.

"We started going out to events where people were members of a hunt club or they were members of a riding club and we joined them on trail rides, wine rides, hunter paces. We went to the fairs and we showed some of the horses that were capable of it in open classes and I think that was what I would term our 'TSN Turning Point' in getting people to realise the real versatility of the breed," said Colville, who suggested the organisation shift from hosting Standardbred horseshows to showcasing the horses in the community. "It's been phenomenal. All of those events just help us grow and blossom with the new eyes and the new friendships we forge with people, and that gets them then looking at our horses."

Colville plans to continue that outreach work as pandemic restrictions ease and hopes that by the 50th anniversary all the reservations people have about standardbreds have disappeared and many more pacers and trotters are enjoying varied and successful second careers.

For their part, MacKay Roberts said the board, which also includes Jim Evans, Bill O'Donnell, Kelly Spencer and Ian Fleming, plans to complete a governance update that was derailed by the pandemic.

"We have a really varied board that understands all elements of the industry, which is really helpful," said MacKay Roberts, who serves as secretary. "And everybody is really dedicated because we've all made a living from this industry, so it is an opportunity for us to give back to it."

Everyone involved in OSAS, from board members to the many volunteers who have played a role in its success, can be proud of the organisation's longevity and in the number of Standardbreds that have graduated from its program.

"It's nice to be a part of it, 25 years is quite a feat," said Colville. "They haven't all been gravy, there's been a few tight ones in there, so we're glad to be around, we're glad to have the industry support and we look forward to the next 25 years."

International Stallion Stakes set to start Friday

Freshmen trotting colts and pacing fillies will hit the track on Friday (Oct. 6) in a total of six divisions for the International Stallion Stakes at The Red Mile.

The colts and geldings will compete in four divisions of the $302,000 Six Pack International Stallion Stakes, sponsored by the Six Pack Syndicate and Deo Volente Farms. Division one goes as the afternoon's third race and attracts current divisional star King Of The North fresh off a troubled trip in the Mohawk Million. The Walner colt starts from post 4 in rein to Mark MacDonald for trainer Ray Schnittker after going on a break from interference in the Mohawk Million but nonetheless recovering to finish fifth. He starts inside of the 9-5 morning line choice Branded By Lindy, who put forth a strong performance when taking a $71,000 division of the Bluegrass last week in 1:52. Yannick Gingras pilots that Chapter Seven colt for conditioner Domenico Cecere.

Bluegrass split winner Stride The Hill will face 5-2 morning line choice Classic Hill, whom he bested in 1:53.1 in his maiden-breaking score last week, in the second division of the Six Pack. Tim Tetrack picks up the drive on the Jim Campbell trainee from the pylon post while Scott Zeron sticks Classic Hill, trained by Marcus Melander, from post 4. A trio of other Bluegrass runner-ups – World At War Deo from post 2, Rose Run Xtra from post 3 and Keg Stand from post 8 – also compete in the second split.

Marcus Melander pupil Periculum will look to keep his momentum going off a 1:53.1 victory in a Bluegrass division last week when he starts from post 2 in the third grouping of the Six Pack. Mattias Melander sits in the bike to the inside of Lucas Wallin trainee Rebuff, who will now have Tim Tetrack in the sulky following a closing third-place finish in the Bluegrass with a :26.4 final quarter.

Lightly-raced Slay fronts the fourth Six Pack division while making his fourth start and scoring from post 4. The Tony Alagna trainee has recorded back-to-back victories, the first an 8-1/2-length romp in a 2-Year-Old event and the most recent a 1:52.4 win in a Bluegrass division. Andrew McCarthy drives the 7-5 morning-line choice in a seven-horse contest that includes William Wellwood elimination winner Temporal Hanover, who starts from post 5 with Brian Sears driving for trainer Marcus Melander.

Pacing fillies get underway with their two divisions of the $254,000 American Ideal International Stallion Stakes, sponsored by the American Ideal Syndicate and Brittany Farms, in the fifth race on the card. Chris Ryder's breakout filly Niki Hill ships south from a 1:50.2 stroll in the $395,395 Shes A Great Lady at Woodbine Mohawk Park and will put her perfect five-race record on the line from post 5 with Dexter Dunn in the bike. She enters a group with a pair of strong Bluegrass performers: division-winner Boudoir Hanover from post 7 with Todd McCarthy driving for trainer Tony Alagna and runner-up to Boudoir Hanover, Lyons Serenity, from post 6 with Tim Tetrack at the lines for trainer Jim King Jr.

Kentucky Championship winner Dont Fence Me In will try to rebound from a second-place effort in the Bluegrass last week when starting from post 5 in the second split of the American Ideal. Dexter Dunn again has the call on the morning-line choice, this time for trainer Tony Alagna, in a field with several returning Bluegrass competitors including third-place finishers Yes And Yes from post 1 and Galleria Hanover from post 3.

Friday's card features 11 races with the first slated to go to post at 1 p.m. (EDT).

Shabby Chic remains unbeaten, wins $100,000 DSBF final

Let It Ride Stables' Shabby Chic ($2.60, Tim Tetrack) remained unbeaten and was a dominant 1:55.2 winner in the $100,000 Delaware Standardbred Breeders Fund (DSBF) stakes for 2-year-old pacing fillies Tuesday (Oct. 5) at Harrington Raceway.

The Badlands Hanover filly improved to 5-for-5 in her career for trainer Mike Hall and boosted her lifetime bankroll to $79,000 in her wire-to-wire win from post position two over Bank The Win and Gaitway Gal. Shabby Chic rebuffed the first-over Gaitway Gal near the three-quarters and was a 3-length winner.

In the $15,000 DSBF filly pace consolation, Jeff Clark's Smokey's Passion ($12, Eric Davis) prevailed in 1:57.4 over Tahoe and Donna's The Best. The Roddy's Bags Again filly recorded her maiden win.

Lg's Reed O Wen ($5.40, Jim Morand) and Just Pump It ($20.60, Art Stafford Jr.) each won their respective $100,000 Delaware Standardbred Breeders Fund (DSBF) 2-year-old finals Wednesday (Oct. 6) at Harrington Raceway.

A new track record for 2-year-old trotting geldings was set when Nanticoke Racing's LG's Reed O Wen marched to the front from post position seven and never relented in a seven-length romp lifetime best of 1:59.4 over Canoe Trip and Wolfpack Russ. The Anders Bluestone gelding notched his fourth win in six career starts for trainer Les Givens. The old track record of 2:00.3 was held by Egosnattitudes (2014).

In the filly trotting final, Art Stafford and Art Stafford Jr.'s Just Pump It led most of the way despite post position eight and was a one-length winner in 2:03 over Our Last Penny and Miss Timber Wolf. The CR Commando filly registered her second lifetime win for her trainer/driver and co-owner Stafford Jr.

In the $15,000 consolation for colts and geldings, Brenda Teague's Tua ($3.40, Montrell Teague) was a 2:02.1 winner.

Live racing will continue on a Monday through Wednesday schedule until Oct. 20. Post time is 4:30 p.m.
