Balazsi bankable in bonkers opening session

Stefan Balazsi highlighted an outstanding opening session of the 81st Standardbred Horse Sales Company's yearling sale which saw the average soar 22.3 per cent and the gross up more than $3.3 million (21 per cent) over the first session of the 2018 sale.

Stefan Balazsi said it took “15 bad years” to end up where he is today as the man that bred three of the four highest-priced yearlings sold – including the two most expensive – during an outstanding opening session of the 81st Standardbred Horse Sales Company's yearling sale Monday at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, PA (more on that in a minute).

“I had 15 bad years, when nothing worked,” said Balazsi, whose Order By Stables of Sweden sells its yearlings through Concord Stud's consignment. “I had the pedigree, but they didn't race well. Now, the puzzle is there and they race well, incredibly well.

"You have to struggle with your ideas and, all of a sudden, the missing piece falls into place. It took years to figure it out."

Balazsi, the U.S. breeder of the year in 2018, topped Monday's session when hip 45 Gangsta Rat (f, Muscle Hill—Order By Wish) sold to Ake Svanstedt for $550,000, followed by Hip 88 Take This Society (c, Muscle Hill—Thasnotmyname) selling to Diamond Creek Farm for $475,000. Balazsi also produced Hip 171 Spy Booth (c, Muscle Hill—Amour Heiress) sold to Bryan Montgomery, agent, for $460,000.

The second last yearling sold on Monday, hip 171 Glacier Hanover (c, Father Patrick—Global Desire) broke up the Bid spotters were busy Monday in Harrisburg.

Balazsi / Concord natural hat trick when it sold for $470,000 to Jeffrey Snyder out of the Hanover Shoe Farms consignment.

Svanstedt said he loves Gangsta Rat's pedigree and, "she is a very good-looking horse. Everything was perfect for me... She was my filly favorite."

He currently trains Gangsta Rat's 3-year-old full-brother Marseille, a winner of nearly $500,000.

Balazsi said he was expecting to receive around the selling price for Gangsta Rat, "because she is gorgeous. She was the best-looking filly in the sale and the pedigree is excellent."

The $550,000 winning price was the result of a bidding war between Svanstedt and a group led by Jimmy Takter.

"I didn't see who it was. I'm just having a heart attack," said Balazsi.

BREEDER LOVES BREEDER'S ADVICE

Diamond Creek's Adam Bowden said a major selling point for Take This Society was how enthusiastic Balazsi was about the trotter.

"I love that the breeder was a big fan of the horse," Bowden said. "I think when the breeder is behind a horse like this it makes buying a horse that much easier.

"Stefan is a great guy and he's had great success and his families are hot right now. It's hard not to think that this is the next big thing."

Bowden was bidding against owner Richard Gutnick (owner of 2012 Hambletonian winner Market Share). The two were standing next to each other.

"I thought he could bring $450,000 and I thought I had him and Richard, in front of me, bid $460,000 and then I almost took him out at the knees," Bowden said, laughing, before adding the situation resolved itself amicably.

"(Gutnick) turned around and said, 'I'll take 25 per cent' so it makes it easier, right?"

Spy Booth is expected to be trained by Per Engblom, former assistant trainer to Takter.

"He is big and strong and well-built," Engblom said. "We trained the mom (Amour Heiress) with Jimmy. The pedigree is great and his full brother (King Alphonso) is one of the best 2-year-olds out there. What's not to like?"

Engblom said that, so far, he believes Spy Booth will be owned by Marvin Katz, John Fielding and some others.

"It's not 100 per cent set in stone yet, but we'll get to that," he said. "It was a little more than we wanted to pay, but sometimes you've got to stretch a bit to get the good ones."

WORKS OF ART

In recent year, Balazsi has produced such stars as 2018 Hambletonian-winning filly Atlanta and two-time Breeders Crown champion Gimpanzee. Last year, Balazsi's Fifty Cent Piece (f, Muscle Hill–Thasnotmyname) topped the entire Harrisburg yearling sale with a bid of $500,000. Balazsi also sold the seventh highest priced yearling sold in 2018 at Harrisburg— the Muscle Hill–Brooklyn colt Swiss House Onfire for $335,000.

Apart from horses, Balazsi said he is very interested in art and names his yearlings after paintings of famous artists.

"I name them after artists that I like, so the crop last year were all named after Basquiat paintings. This year, I took a street artist that I like very much, which is Banksy. All these names are coming from Banksy's street art," Balazsi said. "The best name I came up with this year from the painting, Take This Society. I loved that name. It's a very, very nice name."

He said he's been selling his yearlings through Concord for between eight and 10 years.

"They are a family and they work very hard, as you can tell from the horses – they look excellent and are in very good shape. I couldn't be happier with them," Balazsi said.

"We treat all of the horses like they are our own," said Concord's Julie Meirs. "It's our blood, sweat and tears that goes into creating and growing and eventually selling all of these horses, so it doesn't matter who the owner is."

As for Glacier Hanover, Snyder said waiting until the second last yearling to sell likely cost him a premium.

"When you wait until the end, you overpay. That's what always happens," Snyder said.

"He is just a beautiful horse. The mare is a full sister to Glidemaster so, you know, he's a beautiful horse and hopefully we'll have luck... We've got a really nice trotter in Sweden (Aetos Kronos). If he wins the Breeders Crown next week, he'll pay for part of this horse. Let's hope for the best."

cent) over the first session of the 2018 sale with virtually the same number of yearlings sold.

Since 2017, the opening-session gross is up nearly $6.9 million (55.7 per cent) and the average has soared 52 per cent.

This year's first session saw 168 yearlings collectively gross $19,227,000 for an average of $114,446 and a median of $90,000. In 2018, 170 yearlings grossed $15,902,000 in total for an average of $93,541 on opening day. In 2017, 164 yearlings grossed $12,350,000 for a first-session average of $75,305.

"It was a wonderful, wonderful sale," said Standardbred Horse Sales Company president and CEO Pete Spears.

"All the right people were here. I had a lot of people coming up and telling me how much they wanted to buy certain horses that got away from them. Everything was strong, top to bottom.

"The top end sold extremely well, the middle sold extremely well and I think Tuesday, is going to be better than Tuesday last year, not only in prices, but in quality. (This year) there were a large number of horses that would have ended up selling on Monday last year that are selling Tuesday. There are a lot of opportunities (Tuesday)."

Selected Yearling Sale saw two yearlings sell for $1 million or more and also smashed records for gross (over $18.2 million for 118 yearlings sold), average ($154,288) and number of $100,000 yearlings sold (68).

Monday in Harrisburg, 29 yearlings (17.3 per cent) sold for $200,000 or more and 46 yearlings (27.4 per cent) fetched $100,000 or more.

"That just follows from the great Lexington sale," Spears said. "I think buyers are very confident in the economy. There are a lot of good news coming out of harness racing right now. The Ohio program is coming way up. There's money in New Jersey. Even Illinois is showing some signs of life. The Nevada people were here talking about racetracks in Nevada and a breeders' program out there. What's not to like?"

HANOVER CRUSHED IT

Hanover Shoe Farms was, far and away, the leading consignor on Monday, selling 69 horses for a total gross of $8,680,000, an average of $125,797.

Hanover had a great day, we averaged $126,000, which is up about $20,000 from last year," said Dr. Bridgette Jablonsky, Hanover's executive vice-president and syndicate manager.

"We're really, really happy with our first-crop sires. It's always very fulfilling to see the first-crop sires sell well and we couldn't be happier with the way the Betting Lines and Bar Hoppings were received."

Betting Line grossed $1,590,000 for 18 sold (an average of $88,333). Bar Hopping grossed $737,000 for seven yearlings sold (an average of $105,286).

"We wish the best of luck to everyone that bought our yearlings today. They are getting into good hands and it was a super exciting day. Really strong sale and it stayed strong right until the very end for us. We're very, very happy," Jablonsky said.

"We still have really good horses to sell. We still have horses in every category that are nice. If we hold our own, if we do exactly the same Tuesday and Wednesday as last year, we're going to be up $2 million for the year. Combined with the (seasonal) earnings record, it's probably going to be another record-breaking year for us.

"The staff has been excellent, the horses have been excellent. I want to thank everyone, the staff, the sales company. It's been a really pleasant two days out there. We haven't had any issues and everything has gone smoothly. It's just nice to see everyone so excited about the business.”

Apart from the third-highest yearling sold, Hanover also sold the fifth-highest priced yearling, hip 47 Panda Hanover, a Somebeachsomewhere filly out of Panera Hanover for $400,000 to Dana Parham of Boca Raton, FL.

“Everything I look at I want to have a serious pedigree,” Parham said. “I read an article years ago about ‘Trophy Assets’, so like property, you know, like a five-star hotel in Hawaii. These are trophy assets. I want to have trophy broodmares, nothing less. So, that’s where I’m at.”

The filly will be trained by Tony Alagna, who also will condition hip 90 The Ice Countess (f, Muscle Hill—The Ice Queen), a full-sister to The Ice Dutchess, a winner of nearly $775,000, as well as hip 85 Takeway Hanover, a Somebeachsomewhere half-sister to Tall Drink Hanover ($778,000) that sold for $225,000.

“Dana (Parham) is trying to buy top-end pacing fillies and he bought Panda... and he bought the sister to Tall Drink with Brad (Grant), so that’s what he’s doing, buying yearling pacing fillies,” Alagna said.

As for The Ice Countess, Alagna said, “she’s beautiful and she’s got so much residual value as a broodmare, based on the fact that she’s got Mission Brief on the second dam, plus the two fillies that have already hit so there’s so much upside for this filly either way. If she just does a little bit of something on the track, her value is going to stay where it’s at.”

BURKE LEADS BUYERS

Burke Racing Stable LLC led all buyers on Day 1, spending $1,410,000, total, on 10 yearlings.

Svanstedt was next with purchases totalling $1,062,000 on six yearlings, followed by Courant Inc. with $972,000 spent to buy five yearlings. Snyder was fourth, spending $770,000, in all, on two yearlings, followed by Parham with $745,000 doled out to grab three yearlings.

The second of three yearling sessions begins today at 10 a.m. The two-day mixed sale begins Thursday.

Giving the Lad his due

Despite the fact Electric Lad is an ornery 14-year-old, Indiana horseman Ryan Bellamy believes keeping him is simply the right thing to do.

by James Platz

In the bottom-line-driven business of horse racing, a conditioned hay burner not earning his or her way is often quickly dispatched. Horseman Ryan Bellamy, however, is focused less on what Electric Lad has done for the trainer lately, and more on the body of work produced by the 14-year-old. The veteran pacer is winding down his long career, and recently notched his 54th career trip to the winner's circle at Harrah's Hoosier Park, tripping the timer in 1:54.1.

"Well, he made me a lot of money for a lot of years. I don't know the exact figures, but it seemed like $60,000 or $70,000 every year for probably four or five years it seemed like," said Bellamy. "He bought a lot of horses for me, that's kind of how I explain it. The money we made with him we bought other horses and made money with them. He's been good to me. I owe a lot to him."

The gelding, out of Precious Bunny mare Figmental, has managed to put together a resume that speaks to his durability. Since debuting as a 2-year-old at Indiana Downs, the pacer has managed to collect a victory in each of his 13 seasons of competition. The high water mark came in 2011 when the then 6-year-old claimed victory in 10 of 30 starts.

This season, Electric Lad has filed in behind the gate 13 times, and on Oct. 17, he broke through to earn his first seasonal score. Bellamy had hoped for better this year, but his veteran racer experienced setbacks that limited his racing schedule.

"It's kind of been a bumpy year. He had a foot bothering him earlier in the summer and then he got sick on me," the trainer said. "I thought he would race good that night, but I wasn't sure if he could win or not. It was cool. It was very satisfying to see him get the W. I'm hoping to sneak one more in by the end of the year, but I'm not sure that's going to happen."

Like many conditioned horses, Electric Lad has moved in and out of barns several times. He arrived for his first tour with Bellamy in April 2011. The conditioner had inquired about the pacer a few years earlier when under the tutelage of Walter Haynes Jr., and while his connections were not interested in selling, Bellamy observed an event in the paddock with Haynes' wife, Sara, that prepared him for what was to come.

"Sara was hooking him up and he either kicked or tried to kick her and missed. I remembered that after I claimed him," he recalled. "The first time hooking him up, he actually kicked my girlfriend. One of many times she's been kicked by him. That's just him. We know that, but sometimes it's just unavoidable. Anybody that's been around him has definitely taken their lumps."

What Bellamy, and any other trainer that has worked with Electric Lad over the years, has learned is that the grizzled combatant has fire. He is temperamental and wants things his way.

"Oh, he's nasty. Straight up, just one of the nastiest horses you could be around. He kicks, he bites. He's very ornery," said Bellamy. "He doesn't like being messed with. Just leave him alone and you're better off. He's been that way since day one."

For all the difficulties he displays in the barn, Bellamy likes the old campaigner. After making 10 starts over two different stints in 2011, he was claimed back by the trainer in June 2012. Over 15 races, Electric Lad added three wins and banked $37,695. The son of Electric Yankee made his way back to the Bellamy barn during parts of 2013, 2014, 2015 and 2016 before the Anderson, IN resident claimed him for the last time in May 2017.

"I don't know the exact figures, but most times when I lost him, I got him back at a discounted rate," the owner and trainer said. "He's still a useful racehorse. Later in his career, his value diminished, but I could always make money with him. I could always find the right spot to make money."

Electric Lad now boasts 375 career starts. Bred by John R. Miller, the soon-to-be retiree has hit the board 151 times, good for an average just a tick over 40 per cent. He has earned $452,083, doing so the hard way. The pacer took his 1:51.2 mark at Hoosier Park in 2014 at age nine. Last year, he collected six wins and accumulated $21,315 in earnings. Most importantly, he was still a sound and healthy horse.

"He paid his way last year, but I knew going into this year it was going to be a struggle to make a decent profit with him. I felt like I owed it to him, and I felt like it was cool to race a 14-year-old," Bellamy said. "He's had a heck of a good career and he's had longevity. I thought it would be cool to see a 14-year-old go out."

Electric Lad is in to go tonight (Nov.) 5 in a 5/8-mile dash at Hollywood Gaming Dayton Raceway, and then the trainer plans to make one more start before Hoosier Park closes next weekend. After that, the brown gelding may have a start or two left before calling it a career. Bellamy is still figuring out the next chapter in his charge's career.

"We'll probably hang onto him and come up with a plan. His temperament limits the opportunities. Maybe he'll mellow out a bit in retirement," he said. "It would be nice to break him to ride, but I'm not sure if that's going to happen or not. We'll keep him around. He'll be close by."

SUPERSTAR FEMALES OF HARNESS RACING

with VICTORIA M. HOWARD

Ester Balenzano – Loyal, loving and long-time owner

by Victoria M. Howard

Most things in life that are successful require a good team. Harness racing is no different.

There's the trainer, the caretaker, the athlete (horse), the racing officials, the fans and bettors, and the owners. There are different reasons why people spend their money on purchasing a racehorse. Of course, it's hopefully to make a profitable investment, but many just want the thrill of owning a winner and perhaps a world champion.

Owners pay the bills (which can be costly), visit their four-legged kids, cheer their horses on when they race and bring goodies to the barn as they continue to dream of hopefully getting that superstar.

One of these people is a woman named Ester Balenzano. She began her journey in the mid-'70s, racing mainly at the New York tracks.

"When I started dating my husband, Luca, he introduced me to harness racing and I have been involved ever since. The first horse I owned was named Diamond Time – and we know that all women love diamonds," Balenzano said, laughing.

"The very first horse Luca and I bred was Gemboa. He raced in the '80s and did very well for us, winning many, many races at Roosevelt and Yonkers."

Throughout the years, the Balenzanos have bred and owned many horses and were some of the lucky ones to be involved when the sport was at the top of its game. The couple raced mainly at the great Roosevelt Raceway and had some of the best reinsmen such as Carmine Abbatiello and Mike Lachance drive for them.

I asked Ester who she considered was the best driver today

Courtesy Ester Balenzano

Ester Balenzano and her boy Melady's Monet.

and she answered, "Currently my favorite driver is one that doesn't beat up my 'Boy Wonder'."

The Boy Wonder she's talking about is none other than Melady's Monet— Balenzano's 10-year-old millionaire trotter.

"Luca and I bred Monet's dam, Keystone Melady, in 2008 as a last resort. Bobby Hiel, a longtime friend of ours and trainer of Keystone Melady, picked Revenue S as the sire.

"In 2009, we were blessed with Monet's birth. Little did we know at the time how great this little boy would turn out to be. Unfortunately, we could not get Keystone Melady back in foal, so we adopted her out to two gentlemen who lived in Tennessee."

Melady's Monet is a homebred that has earned over $1.5 million dollars during his racing career, and today at the ripe age of 10 is still crossing the finish line first.

In 2019, Monet has earned $194,370 and won eight races, with the fastest winning time in 1:52.4.

During his lengthy career, the Revenue S gelding has won a total of 60 races.

Three years ago, Monet won the Vincennes Invitational on Hambletonian Day at the Meadowlands. In 2015, Monet was invited to compete in The Elitlopp, but the Balenzanos graciously turned the invitation down due to the horse's occurring major tie-up issues.

The Balenzanos thought more of his safety and health first than the bragging rights of having their horse race in the Elitlopp.

Having been in the sport for decades, I asked Ester her opinion on the sport's decline.

"In the '70s through the late '80s, the sport was phenomenal. Sadly, it is very different today. I personally don't like to see stake races with 3-4 entries from the same stable.

"Years ago, at the most you saw a 'coupled' entry from the same barn, but today it's not like that. It sort of makes those races uninteresting. I also don't like handicapped races. It's like getting penalized for winning a race. I think there should be a draw – the way it was many years ago."

Currently the Balenzanos own one horse, and that's Melady's Monet.

It's not the quantity, but quality, and one is all they or anyone would need if they were lucky to own a horse like Monet.

"Our Boy Wonder is still going strong and we could not be prouder. Monet loves to race and get his picture taken in the winner's circle, and if he's up to it – which is almost always – all the driver has to do is take the lines, and our boy will do the rest. He loves to race and win and the drivers all say when he is in a hole he can't wait to get out and into the action.

"To think we could ever wind up with another Melady's Monet is impossible, so we are enjoying this ride and are so blessed to have him and truly enjoy every race."

BREAKING STRIDE

with TREY NOSRAC

The Train ride to Somewheresville

by Trey Nosrac

My boss pulled the passenger door of my car shut, buckled his seatbelt, and went for my jugular, "Explain to me how the yearling you bought last October was fun."

"The ride baby, every yearling is a long, slow ride."

He blew a raspberry and said, "An expensive ride to Nowheresville."

Mimicking the butler from Downton Abbey, I lowered my voice and said, "Perspective my good man. It is best to consider buying a yearling as if you were purchasing a train ticket to an unknown destination. You may find yourself on a long or short trip. The trip can be pleasurable or hazardous. Statistically, the likelihood is that your excursion will be expensive and perilous."

He cupped his hands on top of his head and came close to shouting, "Who the hell gets on that train? Crazy people?"

"I keep telling you, it's the ride. Take last year's filly."

"The one you paid fifteen grand for?"

I nodded, "Let us examine her relative value."

"Please do Trey, walk me through the minefield of your brain."

"The first part of the ride was buying her, buying our ticket to ride. My pal and I spent weeks looking through catalogs, looking for yearlings we wanted, and watching videos. The pre-ride, planning the ride, and selecting the ticket is a lot of fun. Then the auction is exciting. We haven't even boarded the train and we are already having fun."

He asked, "Why that yearling, or should I ask, why that ride?"

"Every trip is different. From the first day the catalog was released we liked this trotting filly. We thought she would sell for around thirty grand based on what the last several sold for in her family. For this ride, we wanted a well-bred filly because at some point we will need to replace our one and only broodmare."

He huffed, "You thought this was a good deal, trust me, in the world of business, except for a few outliers, yearlings are not good investments."

I tried to explain the inexplicable, "They're dreams, yearlings are not IPO's. To quote Raymond Chandler, 'We have dreams, but we know now that most of them will come to nothing and fortunately, we know that it really doesn't matter.' This first stop on the yearling train ride is always a party. I mean, everyone leaves the auction with a champion at the end of their lead shank.”

He paused and then spoke softly, “Okay, the selection process could be enjoyable, but where is the rest of the fun?”

“Around every bend in the road, dreaming of a champion, renaming the filly, watching her being broke to harness, watching her jog, deciding on how to stake her, following her progress, following the progress of horses in her family who continue to race, and seeing her go the right way on the racetrack for the first time.”

“But your filly didn’t race!”

“That’s part of the ride. There will be good stops and bad stops, some predictable and some unpredictable. They all are of interest. For example, very early on the filly popped a gravel. I wasn’t sure what that was, but I learned. From what I read, it is when something works its way down the wall of the hoof and one day it “pops” out the bottom of the foot. This may not be a big deal, but for this particular filly, maybe it weakened part of her hoof wall and she developed a quarter crack. All winter long the trainer and groom had to deal with shoes and treatments.”

“The filly didn’t race because of this?”

“Who knows? She never seemed to be completely comfortable on that foot. She had good days and days that she seemed ouchie. She trained down to the teens, but the clock was ticking and we decided that her 2-year-old season was not in the cards.”

“And to you, this was worth, what, thirty grand?”

“Well, first of all, it was less. I have a partner, actually two partners, but one of them is silent, which is another story for another time. Second, the ride is not over, she may race great as a 3-year-old. She might be a champion. Third, she might make a great broodmare.”

He gave a smaller raspberry than the first, “Might, perchance, possibly, maybe ... on planet earth it doesn’t seem like that ride was enough for the price of the ticket to ride.”

“What’s enough? People are different. For some the money is a big burn, for others, it’s an insignificant blip. To those of us who love the game, that’s the cool part of buying these yearlings, you never know where the hell you are going and what’s around the next curve. The part of this ride that you and most people don’t, or can’t, wrap their mind around is losing money.”

“Duh, most people need to know where they are going. Most people need to believe that their investment is solid.”

“That’s why this game is not for most people. Turning a long-term profit is a happy delusion for owners. They heard rumors of a mythical sportsman who buys yearlings and makes money. His name is Yeti and he lives on Fantasy Island. My friend, if I can nudge you into playing the yearling game, consider it a hobby, an experience, or an experiment. Play it fair and don’t expect to add to your portfolio.”

“Well Trey, your portfolio took a beating.”

“Would I like to make money? Sure, but the dream is still flickering. The train is still on the tracks. The big question is, “Am I having enough fun to justify paying for the trip?”

“And you claim the answer is yes?”

I nod and say, “If losing money is going to sour you, don’t play. Take the money and buy a sailboat, take a long cruise, go on a safari, or refurbish your man cave. Heck, I know I guy who invested twenty grand in the first edition of a book in Latin last year. What FUN is that?”

“You plead a good case Trey, too bad much of it is insanity.”

“Anything else?”

“Yeah, next week I will give you dating advice on how to mix women and horseracing.”

He laughed, “Now THAT is insane.”
